Iowa Militia Guns Guard Strike-Shut Meat Plants

Troops Take Charge Booed by Crowd Sent After Rioting Police Gas Mob

By the Associated Press.

Sioux City, Iowa, Oct. 19.—National Guardsmen rolled into Sioux City tonight, ordered by Gov. Nelson G. Kraschel to reopen the strikebound Swift & Co. packing plant where violence flared last night.

Col. Gordon C. Hollar said 200 guardsmen were in the plant by midnight and then another 100 were mobilized in other buildings near the scene of the strike.

Two hundred more were en route from other Iowa towns.

Meanwhile, Gov. Nelson G. Kraschel conferred briefly with several strike leaders and city officials at Atlantic, Iowa, where he spoke at a political meeting, and then returned to Des Moines.

The first 100 guardsmen moved into the plant by way of a back door late this afternoon.

Guns Reported Mounted

[The troops set up two machine guns on the roof of the plant, and two others in positions commanding the street, the United Press said.

[Their arrival was greeted with mingled boos and cheers from more than 1,000 strikers and sympathizers who had milled all day around the plant.—Editor's note.]

A detachment of 30 guardsmen marched from the armory here, and companies from five other Iowa cities and from Sioux City itself were converging on the strike area to assist civil authorities.

The mobilization order, to prevent a recurrence of recent labor violence, was issued by Iowa Adjt. Gen. Charles H. Grahl, at Des Moines, following a proclamation from Gov. Kraschel.

The Governor, who called out troops July 19 in connection with the Maytag Washing Machine strike at Newton, said the military move was in response to a request from civil authorities here.

The strike was called September 29 when, officials of the C. I. O. union said, the company refused to meet the union's grievance committee. The company later denied this allegation.

Other Workers Quit

Union workers halted operations at neighboring Cudahy and Armour packing plants today following a turbulent night in which police fired tear gas bombs in an effort to disperse a crowd of men and women around the Swift plant. The Cudahy and Armour workers declared the day a "holiday" and prevented workers from entering those plants.

Union officials said the "holiday" was called in protest against reopening of the Swift plant after about 50 "back-to-work" advocates entered the plant under police guard.

Gov. Kraschel said his order "does not definitely establish our policy regarding the extent of the military's authority in Sioux City."

Washington Girl's Sense of Humor Palls on Police

Things were humming for a few minutes yesterday in Takoma Park, Md., and now police are debating how far a practical joke can go.

Called by radio to the home of Miss Grace Ellis, 57 Sycamore avenue, occupants of a scout car found no burglar and no one at home.

Just as they were leaving, somewhat bewildered, an ambulance, a fire engine, a delivery boy with a quart of mineral oil and a pound of peppermints, another with a gallon of ice cream (all C. O. D.), a furniture van and a bakery wagon with two large pies rolled up in quick succession. All had been called to the place by telephone.

John Cruit, Miss Ellis' brother, who was ultimately discovered napping on the sleeping porch, paid for the mineral oil and peppermints and convinced the others they weren't needed. Police forced their way through the press of scout cars, ambulances, fire appartus, moving vans, bakery trucks and bicycles and traced the calls. They were pondering last night what charges they might place against a 19-year-old Washington girl.

WPA Project to Teach Shut-Ins Restores Hope Of Normal Future for District's Child Cripples

Agency Rushes Setup Funds for Year Starts in Few Days

Joy drove gloom from the hearts and homes of scores of Washington boys and girls yesterday when the Board of Education announced 16 visiting teachers, under the WPA, would be employed to teach crippled youngsters who cannot attend school.

Long sought by public-spirited District citizens, the project will solve a problem recognized as one of Washington's gravest. Under the board's plan these children, facing the double handicap of physical infirmity and lack of formal education, may hope for self-help in the future.

Eighty white and 129 colored boys and girls will be covered in the new WPA educational project. Three or four times that number would like to receive the service but Federal WPA headquarters was compelled to restrict the program.

The original request was for 53 teachers and 12 supervisors, assistants and clerks.

"I hope and believe this marks a start toward permanent inclusion of visiting teachers in our public school system," Mrs. Henry Grattan Doyle, president of the Board of Education, said last night.

"The Post, by calling attention to the situation, helped much to bring about the project about to get under way."

Mrs. Doyle was uncertain when the project would start. It will take several days, perhaps longer, for the program to clear the Budget Bureau and White House. Meantime, the teachers and other personnel must be selected.

The teachers will set up classes at Gallinger, Freedmen's and Children's hospitals for those children who are hospitalized, and those who come to the clinics for out-patient treatment. In addition, a relatively small number of shut-ins will be taught in their homes.

Seven white and nine colored teachers will be assigned. The Democratic Chiefs Go on Stump Tours

G. O. P. Gains Feared Rayburn Sets Out Barkley in Campaign Ickes Talks on Coast

By Robert C. Albright.

Congressional Democratic leaders yesterday were assigned to embattled Pennsylvania and stiffly contested Middle Western territory in stump-speaking efforts to flatten threatened November dents in Democratic majorities.

Senate Majority Leader Barkley, House Majority Leader Rayburn and Speaker Bankhead were preparing to take the field. Cabinet officers already were on the stump in defense of Democratic slates, as the campaign entered the final heat.

In Los Angeles, Secretary of Interior Ickes declared the Roosevelt Administration is trying to head off "totalitarianism" by bringing "the forces of social justice within our own borders to equilibrium—in time."

Landon Hits Farm Program

And in southern Illinois, former Gov. Alf M. Landon was pressing Republican Middle Western gains by assailing the Administration's farm program and warning: "A President who thinks there is no Constitutional limit to his power is thinking in terms of the absolute ruler."

Before leaving for Pennsylvania for two speeches Saturday, the House Majority Leader declared House Democratic losses would be "few if any."

The Republican National Committee, meanwhile, announced a Columbia radio network address by Senator Capper, Republican, of Kansas, on Saturday at 10:45 a. m. In the fifth in a series of seven weekly Republican radio campaign addresses, Capper will speak from Topeka on "The New Deal and the Farm Problem."

Spokesmen for the Congressional Democratic Campaign Committee, who are busy dispatching speakers into contested zones, said they have not changed their estimates of a maximum loss of 25 House seats.

Losses Conceded

Some Senate Democrats are privately conceding a party loss there of four or five seats.

Representative Rayburn, who has been in Washington for a week, will speak in Uniontown, Pa., Saturday afternoon, and in Greensburg, Pa., Saturday night. He will speak for the entire Democratic ticket. Several Keystone House Democrats are reported in trouble, including Representatives Gray, Drew, Gingery and Swope.

From Pennsylvania, Rayburn will head into Indiana and Illinois, and later is expected to speak in Delaware and New Jersey. Representative Finly Gray is reported in serious dificulty in Indiana. While Democrats concede no House seats in Illinois, the entire mid-section of the State is a battleground. House Democrats in the State having fights on their hands include Representatives Boyer, Fries, Meeks, Rigney and Parsons.

Senator Barkley is speaking in Kansas tomorrow, Saturday and next Wednesday for Senator Mc-

Britain Scraps Pledge Of Jewish Homeland; Force to Rule Palestine

Navy Air Code Stolen Ensign Threatened Mail Bags Rifled

Special Dispatch to The Post.

New York, Oct. 19.—A ruse to obtain construction plans of the United States Navy aircraft carriers Enterprise and Yorktown by means of forging President Roosevelt's name to a letter on spurious White House stationery was described in detail today by Guenther Gustav Rumrich United States Army deserter who has pleaded guilty to an indictment for espionage.

Rumrich occupied the witness stand for the third successive day in the trial of Johanna Hofmann, Erich Glaser and Otto Hermann Voss, three of the 18 defendants named in the same indictment, before Federal Judge John C. Knox and a jury.

Plot Laid to Steward

The plot to forge the President's name originated, the witness said, with Karl Schlueter, steward on the North German Lloyd liner Europa, who is a fugitive defendant in the case.

Rumrich also told how Schlueter boasted that he was able to open the mail bags on the Europa, and showed Rumrich a photostat of a contract between the Bethlehem Steel Corporation and the Amtorg Trading Corporation, Soviet trade representatives. He had pilfered the original contract from a mail pouch, he told Rumrich, photographed it and returned it.

Rumrich said that Schlueter and Miss Hofmann, a hairdresser on the Europa, called at his apartment in the Bronx on January 14, 1938.

"Schlueter asked me what I knew of the aircraft carriers Enterprise and Yorktown," he testified. "He said the German navy was now going to build some aircraft carriers and it would be very useful to his superiors to get the plans . . .

"A Pretty Important Scheme"

"Schlueter thought we might get the plans by a scheme, but he said that in view of the importance of these plans it would have to be a pretty important scheme. He suggested that I write to Hamburg to suggest that I be furnished with some stationery that would show that the stationery was official White House stationery.

"In the event that I got this stationery he said he had a plan in mind. He said something about forwarding a letter to the construction chief of the United States Navy Department, the letter purporting to come from the President and bearing a forged signature by the President."

"You mean forged signature of the President, don't you?" asked Lester C. Dunigan, assistant United States attorney.

"Of the President," said Rumrich.

Rumrich said he sent a letter to Sanders, his correspondent in Hamburg, Germany, inclosing a news-

92 Officials Of Auto Union Named as Reds

Dies Group Hears Knox Ex-Aide Assails Chiefs Cites 'Incompetency'

By Sidney Olson.

Ralph Knox, former organizer for the United Automobile Workers, named 92 officials of that union as Communists or revolutionists in testimony before the Dies Committee on Un-American Activities yesterday.

Knox, a slender, glib young man, insisted that the U. A. W., powerful affiliate of the Committee for Industrial Organization, was "absolutely dominated" by Communists, and was officered by "a very low caliber of incompetent men."

Knox was ousted from his office as president of the U. A. W.'s largest local in Detroit by President Homer Martin on morals charges and for malfeasance in office, he admitted. In talking with reporters after the session he denied one of the morals charges and declared he had not taken any money from the local's treasury.

Smoothing the wings of his blue polka-dot butterfly-bow tie, Knox, dressed in a soiled leather jacket, charged that while he was in Washington for a month several years ago he was asked by several Government officials to join the Communist Party.

One of them he named as a Ben Wood, or Ben Wolf—he wasn't sure—and another, he said, was Leon Henderson. He said Henderson was promoting a strike in the

Balfour Reversed

By Joseph Driscoll

Special Cable to The Post.

London, Oct. 19.—The British cabinet was reliably reported in Whitehall today to have agreed upon a reversal of British policy in Palestine, with a decision to appease the rebellious Arabs and bring peace to the troubled Holy Land.

Prime Minister Chamberlain issued no communique concerning the two-and-one-half hour meeting with his ministers, but it was understood the 1937 Peel commission plan for partition of Palestine had been discarded in favor of a plan to buy peace from the Arabs by con-

Troops Back Peace Move

In accordance with this about-face abandonment of the scheme which was reaffirmed only a few months ago, the British expected the Arab leaders to call off their rebellion, the main pretext for which was the proposed partition. A further inducement to the Arabs to accept their victory without prolonging the hostilities is the presence of 20,000 British troops and police in Palestine, and the threat of more to come.

Once the rebellion is ended, the British will proceed to the second stage of the new Palestine program, which is to strengthen and expand the British administration of the country and enlist the active cooperation of both Arabs and Jews on the promise that eventually a united "independent" state will be set up under British supervision and with full protection for the rights of the Arab majority and the Jewish and Christian minorities.

Zionist State Dropped

Under the famous Balfour declaration of 1917, the British, with the approval of President Wilson, promised to establish in Palestine a national home for the Jewish people. The Peel plan of 20 years later provided for such a national home, although Zionist leaders thought the boundaries proposed were too restrictive to provide sufficient room for the hundreds of thousands of Jews who would flee the persecution areas of Europe if they had such a haven.

But now even the "Peel" State is to be abandoned as impractical, in the face of organized Pan-Arabian opposition. Already it is being suggested in responsible quarters that the third stage in the revised British policy will be to curtail Jewish immigration to Palestine, or to eliminate it altogether.

Renunciation of the Peel partition plan and the establishment of an "independent" state under British control, were two of the principal points in the peace

Details of Case Against A.M.A. Come Up Today

'Groundwork' Finished Taussig Testifies Graphs Are Shown

The Government today will begin placing before an extraordinary District grand jury the detailed testimony upon which it seeks to indict the American Medical Association and the District Medical Society for conspiring to restrain trade.

Officers of Group Health Association, Inc., which filed the complaint against the physicians' groups after several legal and publicity battles here, will take the stand today. They are due to tell of the maneuvers by the society and association which they claim were part of a plan to wreck their plans for supplying better medical attention at lower cost.

The Department of Justice yesterday concluded three days of "groundwork" testimony intended to acquaint the 23 salesmen, engineers, brewers and messengers with the functioning of the medical profession.

Charles W. Taussig, president of the American Molasses Co. and progressive medicine advocate, testified on the Nation's public health needs.

Taussig long has urged efforts to modernize the national methods of averting and treating disease. He made a survey of medical needs of underprivileged youths as chairman of the advisory committee of the National Youth Administration.

He was a spokesman for business at the National Health Conference

Death Banner Flies Again as Tram Kills Man

Accident on The Avenue 2d in 24 Hours White Flag Soon Down

By Howard F. Wentworth.

The black flag of death, its haunting skull and crossbones insignia announcing Washington's 70th traffic fatality, flies again today.

Another person—the second within 24 hours—died of accident injuries yesterday.

The new white banner of safety, raised Tuesday in front of the District Building by Commissioner Hazen, flew only a few hours before it was hauled down to signal the death of an 11-year-old boy.

Hardly had it been replaced by the black flag of tragedy when a 60-year-old man, crossing the street at Tenth street and Pennsylvania avenue northwest, was killed beneath the wheels of a street car.

He was identified at Emergency Hospital as Joseph Whitehouse, of 1410 Crittenden street northwest. He was walking against a signal

Strachey Told To Leave U. S. On Saturday

Inquiry Order Affirmed Can Appeal to Courts Habeas Is Last Hope

The next to last hope of Evelyn John St. Loe Strachey, English author-economist, to stay in this country vanished yesterday when the Immigration Service affirmed the recent deportation decision of a special inquiry at Ellis Island.

The last hope of the hulking, beak-nosed man who is accused of Communism rests in an appeal to the courts, through a writ of habeas corpus, and in New York his counsel, Arthur Garfield Hays, said last night that he would ask such a writ.

The Ellis Island decision ordered his deportation aboard the next Cunard White liner, sailing Saturday. That upset plans of the French Line, whose Normandie brought Strachey here, to transport the internationally known writer home at their expense.

Rudolph Reimer, commissioner of immigration at Ellis Island, who first detained Strachey, said after hearing of the action in Washington:

"Mr. Strachey came to the United States to make some money, and when he departs we can pursue the

5 CCC Workers Perish Fighting Pa. Forest Fire

Emporium, Pa., Oct. 19 (AP).—Five CCC workers died today in a forest fire which trapped them in a small wooded gully 25 miles south of this north-central Pennsylvania town.

Col. C. L. King at Indiana, Pa., district CCC headquarters, said three of the dead had been identified as: Gilbert Mooney, 40, of Ridgway, Pa., in the technical service of the Department of Forests and Waters, attached to CCC Camp 132; Basil Bogush, 18, Conemaugh, Pa., and John Boring, 18, Johnstown, Pa.

The other two were burned so badly they could not be immediately identified.

Four were taken to hospitals badly burned about the hands and face.

Mooney led a squad of about 20 boys into the heavy underbrush and second growth timber which skirts the Sinnamahoning creek, where the group was surrounded by four separate fires. Others of the party escaped.

Paralytic Mother Gives Birth In Respirator

Fort William, Ontario, Oct. 19 (Canadian Press).—A 17-year-old mother, suffering from infantile paralysis, gave birth to a baby girl while lying in a respirator in a hospital today. The case was believed here to be unparalleled in medical history.

The baby weighed two pounds, nine ounces. Attending physicians reported tonight the mother, whose name was not divulged, was doing "as well as can be expected." The baby was given a "fair chance" to live.

Hospital authorities said the mother has been in the respirator since September 3. During the delivery of the baby, oxygen was administered when it was necessary to remove her from the respirator for three brief periods.

Fleeing Dentist, Girl, 9, Begins World Trek Via Thumb Route

Has $1.50 Savings Gets Hitch-Hike Driver Brings Her Back

Armed to the teeth, her baggage packed and her savings of $1.50 clutched in a moist fist, Jannie Humphreys, 9, yesterday fled the dentist's buzzing horrors. Last night she was home again, arms, baggage and funds all intact, still to face the dentist today.

Jannie left her home at 111 Third street northeast, ostensibly for school. Several hours later she entered her mother's place of employment in the 600 block of Pennsylvania avenue southeast, in tow of a family friend. Between times Jannie had started a trek into the great unknown.

With her cap pistol, a small straw suitcase and her $1.50, she walked a few blocks from her home and put her thumb to work.

Jannie's thumbing was successful. A stranger picked her up, got her talking about herself and discovered where she lived. This stranger took her to a neighbor who delivered her to Mrs. Humphreys.

Fuehrer Told of Truce Church Gives In Violence in Vienna

By the United Press.

Vienna, Oct. 19.—Reichsfuehrer Hitler arrived in Austria tonight on a visit which many observers believed might develop into a personal investigation of the recent anti-Catholic disorders and a new wave of violence against Jews.

The Fuehrer arrived at Linz at 5:30 p. m., supposedly for an overnight stay en route to the southern zone of the Sudetenland surrendered to him by Czechoslovakia, and conferred a short time later with Vienna Nazi leaders who met him there.

In Vienna, meanwhile, Nazi youths in civilian clothes swarmed through the Jewish quarter, breaking into houses and terrorizing occupants in a new surge of anti-Semitic violence which has been spreading for several weeks.

After visiting "Zone No. 1" of the German-occupied area in the southern Sudetenland, Hitler is expected

Youth Day at Congress Gloomy Picture Painted 'Christ or Chaos' Faced

Special Dispatch to The Post.

New Orleans, Oct. 19.—This third day of the Eucharistic Congress was devoted largely to the Catholic youth of the land. They were told by gray-haired prelates that the alternatives in the future they will inherit are from this age of wars, oppressions and distress are "Christ or chaos."

That message, sounded this morning at a children's mass celebrated under smiling skies in the City Park Stadium, was repeated in various forms throughout the day and evening at ceremonials, some for adults, others for the growing generation, some for laymen, others for the members of religious orders. Priests and the prelates denounced present-day materialism and a lack of the spirit of "love thy neighbor as thyself." In every sense it was a "national" congress, with few good words spoken for what goes on these days in Europe.

The voices of 11,000 children,

Rehire 5,000, Labor Board Tells Republic

Appeal Is Expected
Blame Put on Firm
Back Pay in Terms

By the Associated Press.

The National Labor Relations Board laid responsibility for the 1937 strike in Republic Steel Corporation plants on the company's "unfair labor practices" yesterday and ordered it to offer re-employment to 5,000 strikers.

There was no immediate word from the company as to whether it would appeal to the courts, but in Cleveland steel circles the opinion was that this was a foregone conclusion.

The board's decision followed, in the main, its order of last April which Republic appealed to the United States Circuit Court. Subsequently, the labor board withdrew this order when the Supreme Court condemned the procedure the Government had followed in the Kansas City stockyards ruling made by the Agriculture Department.

Girdler Blames Law

Tom Girdler, chairman of the board of Republic, denounced the original labor board order, asserting it reflected the "one-sided character" of the Wagner act. He blamed the "arrogance" of C. I. O. leaders for the strike.

In hearings before the labor board, the steel company contended that the strikers had disqualified themselves for re-employment. Its attorneys argued that acts of violence by individual strikers made reinstatement inequitable.

The board excepted only 11 men, however, in its sweeping order for reinstatement of the strikers. Those excluded, the board said, were men who had pleaded guilty to possessing and using explosives and, in one case, to the malicious destruction of property to the value of $300.

Orders Remedial Pay

"It must be remembered," the board said, "that the acts of which the respondent (corporation) complains were committed by strikers in the heat and turmoil of bitter industrial strife in which the threat of violence on the part of the respondent against the strikers was ever present and frequently carried into execution."

The order also instructed the corporation:

To pay remedial wages to any striker who is not given a job, or placed upon a preferential rehiring list, within five days after he applies for re-employment.

(The company was ordered to dismiss employes hired after the strike, if necessary to make places for reinstated strikers.)

To reinstate 12 employes with back pay and to award back wages to 14 others.

To pay employes for earnings lost as a result of what the board called "lockouts" at the Canton tin-plate mill and Massillon works May 5-20, 1937, and May 20-23, 1937.

To disestablish as collective bargaining agencies the employe representation plans in the plants at Massillon, Canton, Youngstown, Warren and Cleveland.

Deductions Allowed

Board officials estimated that the sum involved under items 3 and 4 was about $41,000. The order said the company could deduct sums employes had earned on other jobs when computing remedial payments, but if these sums included wages earned on Federal, State or local governmental work relief projects, the company must pay it over to the agency.

The lengthy decision set forth a long list of alleged unfair labor practices by the company and said the history of these practices "had placed the union (the C. I. O. steel workers organizing committee) in a position where it had to fight for its life or be destroyed. The company, not the union, had chosen the way of industrial strife."

Receivership Asked For Hospital Society

Garland T. Glascoe, stock salesman, yesterday asked the District Court to appoint a receiver to administer the affairs of National Hospital Service Society, Inc., which has about 5,000 members.

Glascoe claimed the organization owed him $2,635 and that its officers were neglecting to accumulate a surplus out of which his claim could be paid. He told the court that he believed providing hospitalization for the members would leave such a surplus if a receiver were in charge. The money is now being spent on salaries, he charged.

The Gallup Poll

Institute Celebrates Third Anniversary Has Set All-Time Record for Accuracy

By Dr. George Gallup,
Director, American Institute of Public Opinion.

New York, Oct. 19.—Reports of public opinion on more than 900 important issues, correct forecasts of 56 out of 62 election tests, and continuous measurement of the trends and tides of public sentiment from week to week are among the achievements of the American Institute of PublicOpinion as it celebrates its third anniversary tomorrow.

GALLUP.

Hundreds of thousands of voters have been questioned by the Institute since it first began reporting public opinion October 20, 1935. In the beginning 30 newspapers subscribed to its service and published its reports once a week. Today the Institute has 72 subscribing newspapers, including The Washington Post, and the reports have been stepped up to a minimum of three a week.

Its surveys, conducted with the aid of a staff of more than 600 field investigators, cover a representative sample or cross-section of the voting population in all walks of life in every State.

Accuracy

The 1936 Presidential election was the first major test of the institute's accuracy. President Roosevelt's victory was forecast with an average State-by-State error of only six percentage points. Forty-two of the 48 States were correctly placed. The Institute reported that only three States (Maine, Vermont and New Hampshire) were sure for Landon.

Since that time all surveys in which a comparison could be made between the institute's findings and an election have shown the correct results. The institute predicted the Detroit mayoralty election in November, 1937, within two percentage points, the Maine sales tax referendum of August, 1937, within five points.

This summer it forecast the results of four primary elections in succession—Kentucky, South Carolina, Georgia and Maryland—with an error of two points or less.

The six States incorrectly placed in the 1936 election constitute the institute's only error to date. Its batting average for accuracy is .903.

With its finger directly on the public pulse, the Institute has been able to foreshadow many coming events by revealing the direction of public thought.

Following are some of the events and issues of recent importance on which the institute has reported public opinion:

Its survey showed the public opposed to curbing the power of the Supreme Court many months before President Roosevelt announced his court enlargement plan. The plan itself was consistently opposed by the majority of voters during the months before it was finally shelved in the Senate.

The wage-hour legislation passed by Congress in the last session had been approved in principle by the voters in institute surveys for more than a year previous.

By varying majorities, the voters favor Government regulation of the stock markets, regulation of child labor, reciprocal trade treaties, revision of the Wagner labor act, distribution of birth control information, a drastic campaign against syphilis. They oppose the closed shop and the check-off, but think sit-down strikes should be made illegal. They are strongly in favor of neutrality and isolation, but believe the Government should strengthen its armed defenses.

Warship Builders Given Leeway For Bigger Profit

By the Associated Press.

The Treasury and Navy Departments made public yesterday new regulations for determining the cost of naval construction which have the effect of increasing the possible profit of private shipbuilders.

The Vinson-Trammell act of 1934 limits profits from naval construction to 10 per cent of the total cost. Shipbuilders have contended it was impossible to realize a profit that large because intangible expenditures could not be included in the accounting.

The new regulations permit shipbuilders to figure in their costs some intangible items such as engineering overhead, administration and construction guarantee expenses. The old regulations, Navy officials explained, required the contractor to show "a piece of steel or a rivet in place" for every item of expenditure.

Roosevelt Takes Bullitt, Josh Lee On Picnic in Sun

Hyde Park, N. Y., Oct. 19 (AP).—President Roosevelt and a group of official and personal guests packed a cold lunch today, motored about 20 miles to a private picnic grounds, and spent several hours informally discussing foreign and domestic questions in the sunshine.

In the party were William C. Bullitt, ambassador to France; Harry L. Hopkins, WPA chief; Senator Josh Lee (Democrat), of Oklahoma, and Col. Arthur Murray and Mrs. Murray, of the Isle of Hell, Scotland.

Senator Lee stopped by for a brief call on his way North and the President invited him to join the excursion into the Dutchess County hills.

Hopkins has been going over relief problems here since Mr. Roosevelt's arrival Sunday night. He joined the President at New York along with the Murrays.

Justice Dept. To Investigate Oil Monopolies

All Phases in Inquiry
Glass Hearings First

The Department of Justice, which prosecuted the old Standard Oil trust about 25 years ago, has been delegated by the joint Congressional-Administration monopoly group, to study the huge oil industry, it was learned yesterday.

The investigation will take in every phase of operations in the industry, with the antitrust division, headed by Thurman Arnold, probing production, refining, oil station operations and transportation and marketing.

A number of oil experts have already been suggested to testify before the hearings. Among these are Joseph Pogue, vice president of the Chase National Bank; Edward Swanson and Dr. John Fry, members of the Petroleum Conservation Division of the Department of Interior, and J. E. Lawrence, counsel, Mid-Continental Rail Shippers Association.

The monopoly committee is expected to deal with the glassware industry first with hearings beginning November 14, and then follow with oil.

One of the major phases of the investigation is the question of divorcing pipe lines from oil producers.

Ownership of pipe lines by some of the major producers has been vigorously attacked by the independents, who claim the former are able to undersell them because the independents must meet the added cost of transporting their crude from the well to refineries.

As of the close of 1935 there were 92,037 miles of petroleum pipe lines in the United States built at a cost of $763,000,000. In addition the oil companies had invested another $119,000,000 in these properties. Pipe line operating revenue in that year totaled $197,368,000, indicating net income of more than $78,000,000.

The monopoly committee is expected to investigate patent holding companies in the oil industry and their tieup with operating and producing companies.

Particular attention will also be paid to the price structure of crude oil and gasoline. Mr. Arnold in a speech August 19 hit at oil company control of gasoline distribution, which he described as "shot through with unnecessary duplication of filling stations, advertising costs and service costs."

Steel Producer Ends Price War; Levels Boosted

No Official Comment
Concessions Withdrawn
Other Firms Follow

By the Associated Press.

New York, Oct. 19.—The steel industry's "undeclared" price war which for the last week had industrial circles agog was abruptly terminated today by the action of a leading producer in canceling steep price cuts on a wide variety of steel products.

Other producers who had followed in the price slashing immediately withdrew concessions of $4 to $6 a ton, which had been offered in a grim drive for more business, restoring prices to the June level.

Ending of the competitive drive, which had led to conclusions the industry would remain deeply in the red, was marked by a variety of unofficial explanations, but it was believed in informed quarters the price cuts had achieved at least a part of their objective of giving the producers big order tonnages. This was indicated by reports from producing centers like Cleveland, Chicago and Pittsburgh.

Talk of concessions on steel had been heard for several weeks, but the real crack came last week with the disclosure of a slash of $4 to $6 a ton on hot and cold rolled sheets for the automobile trade. In the readjustment today these products were among the first to be put back to the old price levels.

News of the withdrawal of the cuts brought not a single word of official comment from any of the major steel companies.

Early in the year steel makers found themselves facing pressure from Washington for price reductions "to stimulate steel consumption." Some spokesmen for the industry argued lower prices would merely increase the industry's losses and prove a doubtful business stimulus. Nevertheless, the industry did cut prices.

Confirming the re-establishment of the June level of steel prices, "American Metal Market" will say tomorrow that producers are quoting hot rolled sheets at 2.15 cents per pound, cold rolled sheets 3.20 cents, hot rolled strip 2.15 cents, cold rolled strip 2.5 cents at principal basing points.

Davey's Impeachment Urged Over Pensions
Ickes Fears Roosevelt May Have to Run Again

By the Associated Press.

MARTIN L. DAVEY

Ferguson made his comment after talking by telephone to representatives of the Federal Social Security Board, which has insisted on Administrative changes in the Ohio system before Federal funds are restored for the State pensions.

"There's only one thing to do," Ferguson told a score of legislators. "We can either force Gov. Davey to do his duty or impeach him."

Ferguson said that until provision was made for Ohio's 111,000 old-age pensioners to get their full allotments, averaging $23, he would not certify Gov. Davey's salary for payment and would not approve any more bills nor the upkeep of the executive mansion.

Knoxville, Tenn., Oct. 19 (AP).—A candidate balked today at "being placed on exhibition for five minutes like a pet coon or a performing monkey before the Knox County League of Women Voters.

Hal Clements, Republican nominee for State Senator, expressed his resentment in a letter to the league after being invited to appear before it briefly to present his views on various issues sponsored by the women.

Pitt Tyson Maner, president of the National Young Democratic Clubs, said yesterday the "real question" in the November elections is whether President Roosevelt's program "shall be supported and continued."

In a letter to associates throughout the country, Maner said that Young Democrats are in "an enviable position for real constructive work" because "we have no wounds to heal or animosities to forget."

The clubs' national charter prevents their participation in primaries.

Monroe, La., Oct. 19 (AP).—Newt V. Mills, incumbent, apparently was renominated to Congress on the face of almost complete unofficial returns from yesterday's Fifth District second Democratic primary.

Reports from 251 of the district's 252 precincts gave Mills 20,271 votes and his opponent, State Representative Will Harvey Todd, of Bastrop, 19,740, a majority of 531 votes for Mills.

Los Angeles, Oct. 19 (AP).—Secretary Ickes predicted today that President Roosevelt "might have to run" for a third term in 1940, but added quickly:

"For his sake I hope he doesn't."

The Interior Secretary, on a tour of Pacific Coast PWA projects, said selection of a Democratic Presidential candidate "is in the laps of the gods," and added he thought the President "would carry the United States if he ran again."

Daniel Elected Goodwill Chief

Ernest Humphrey Daniel, business and civic leader, yesterday was elected resident of the board of trustees of Goodwill Industries here, succeeding Col. William C. Tufts, who recently resigned. President of the Carry Ice Cream Co., Daniel, is also director of the Beatrice Creameries of Chicago and treasurer of the International Association of Ice Cream Manufacturers.

The article reviews Mrs. Watkins' business career since she joined the staff in the finance office of the District schools and traces her progress to her present position.

Group Health Gaining, Says U. S. Official

Good Doctors Now Aid Dr. Zimmerman Talks Cites Private Leadership

The Civil Service Assembly of the United States and Canada was told yesterday the outlook for group medicine has gained considerably with the surmounting of legal obstacles and the increasing number of "well-trained doctors" who have "come to believe that group practice is the modern way to practice medicine."

R. R Zimmerman, personnel director, Federal Home Loan Bank Board, predicted "in the future it will be much easier to organize group medical arrangements."

Speaking at the assembly session, which lasted only half a day—the remainder of the program turning into a sightseeing tour—Zimmerman emphasized that administrators "need not shy away from co-operative medical plans because of fear of costs. Employes will pay for good medical care and will provide the necessary leadership for management," he said.

He told the assembly, which passed the group health topic along without debate, that the sponsors of Group Health Association, Inc., studied the Standard Oil Co. employes' clinic in Baton Rouge, La., and out of this study the organization in Washington came into being.

The issue of group medicine is now in a Washington court, but the assembly did not discuss the matter.

Cites Private Leadership

"And here I should like to drop the note that, as personnel officers in Government, are we not prone to give undue attention to questions of procedure, techniques, and routines are not enough to the human aspects of our work?" Zimmerman asked, adding:

"Private employers, through the influence and leadership of the personnel men in industry, have unquestionably gone much further in considering the needs and wants of workers. The better employers have done a good deal in making provision for the protection of their employes against the major hazards of life," he said.

He believed that a model plan should emphasize preventive practice. "It is known that only 2 per cent of the total medical bill goes for preventive practice, and it is known, too, that if that percentage were only slightly increased, the total bill could be substantially reduced," he said.

Physicians hold back from preventive procedures for two reasons, he said: First, the doctor is afraid that he will be accused of soliciting practice, and(second, he is afraid that the patient will feel that he is trying to run up a bill.

Gives "Four Essentials"

"Now, if the patient makes no demand for it and the doctor is afraid to sell it, preventive medical service will never be given under our present system," Zimmerman stated.

So four "essential characteristics of a well-organized group medical plan" were given as prepayment provision, emphasis on preventive practice, co-ordination through group practice, and membership support and control through a co-operative organization.

Otherwise the assembly discussed safety work among Federal, State and city personnel. In the afternoon the members, numbering more than 300, attended a reception at the residence of Civil Service Commissioner Samuel H. Ordway in Chevy Chase, Md. The three commissioners, Lucille Foster McMillin, Harry B. Mitchell and Mr. Ordway, were in the receiving line. At 8 p. m. they went to the Archives Auditorium to see Government sponsored movies.

The annual dinner will be held this evening at the Mayflower Hotel.

'Perfect Husband' on Trial for Slaying Wife's Lover Hears Her Say, 'I Loved Him'

Mother on Stand Scolded Daughter Wanted to 'Go to Hell'

By the United Press.

Chicago, Oct. 19.—A mother and daughter testified in the murder trial of Rudolph Sikora today—the one attempting to save her son-in-law from the electric chair, the other siding with the State against a "perfect husband."

Margaret Sikora, 22, Rudy's trim wife, answered defiantly when defense counsel asked about her love affair with "Beloved Eddy" Solomon.

"Yes," she said, "I loved him."

Mrs. Elizabeth Boehme, Margaret's mother, wept while she told of her own and Rudy's attempts to break up her daughter's affair with the glib accountant who worked in the same office with her.

Mother Aids Defendant

Margaret testified for the State, her mother for the defense.

The State charges that Sikora, $150-a-month clerk, cold-bloodedly ambushed Solomon, firing five shots into his head and body.

The defense has pleaded "unwritten law" and "temporary insanity" brought on by weeks of brooding.

Mrs. Boehme said that after Rudolph and Margaret separated, she went with him to the basement flat where Margaret was staying with a friend.

She said Rudy told his wife:

"Margaret, I prayed for you last night."

Margaret answered:

"If you think I'm going to hell why don't you let me go in my own way?"

Mrs. Boehme, dabbing at her eyes with a handkerchief, told of repeated conferences in an attempt to break up the affair and of a letter which she received from Solomon in which he promised to stop seeing her daughter.

"Sobbed for 15 Minutes"

She showed the letter to Sikora two or three days later, she said, adding:

"Rudy went into the bathroom and sobbed for 15 minutes."

She said that on the last four days preceding the slaying August 22, Sikora complained to her "My head feels like it's bursting."

Mrs. Boehme was the day's last witness and she was still at the witness stand when a bailiff led Sikora past on his way back to his cell. As he passed, she leaned over and kissed him on the cheek.

Sikora, a moody, apparently disinterested defendant, roused himself only once today. That was when his wife walked past his place at his counsel table on the way to the witness stand. She did not glance at him and his gaze quickly returned to the floor.

Margaret confessed her love for Solomon, a man 13 years her senior, but was prevented by State objections from answering questions designed to bring out intimate details of the affair.

Colored Youth Admits Breaking Into 29 Houses

Less than 24 hours after his arrest, a 17-year-old colored youth confessed to 29 housebreakings in the Columbia Heights section since September 2.

Policeman D. F. Donohue, Tenth Precinct, seized the boy in an alley near Fourteenth street and Columbia road Tuesday morning when he noticed the boy peering into back yards. A knife with a 7-inch blade was in the youth's possession.

Sneaking into homes through rear windows and unlocked doors, the boy said he stole pocketbooks, money and foodstuffs.

Engineer's Suit For Mexican Divorce Halted

Rudolph C. Haefeli, engineer, of 2011 Kalorama road, was restrained by District court yesterday from going ahead with a divorce suit in Mexican courts until his wife's plea for an injunction against the proceeding has been heard.

Mrs. Haefeli's complaint said that she and her husband signed a separation agreement in Reno, Nev., September 25, 1936, by which he was to pay $150 a month for her and their three children, who live with her in Paterson, N. J.

The complaint said the husband was $717 behind in payments, and that on October 7, 1938, he sued for divorce in Juarez, Mexico, on the ground of "incompatibility of dispositions." The wife was served by New Jersey officers, the complaint said, and warned that she must reply in person in eight days.

The complaint asked that Haefeli be permanently enjoined from going on with the action so that the wife might be spared the "embarrassment and humiliation" of bringing suit to avoid any decree her husband obtained in Mexico."

'Adam's' Thief Indicted Here With 32 Others

Admired Museum Statue So He Took It Home Belonged to Manship

Gordon Greathouse, 26, who said he frequented the Corcoran Gallery of Art for two years to admire a $600 statuette of "Adam," was indicted by the District grand jury yesterday for taking it away under his overcoat.

C. Powell Minnigerode, director of the gallery, said police found the statuette in Greathouse's lodgings.

The statuette, a bronze piece which belonged to Paul Manship, sculptor-member of the Fine Arts Commission, vanished March 1 and was recovered October 11.

At the same time, money and fountain pens taken from the Empire Pharmacy, 1738 Connecticut avenue northwest, on July 8 were recovered. They were stolen by a man who hid in a ventilator until the store closed and then selected what he wanted from the stock.

The 55 indictments handed up to Justice Proctor accused 33 persons. They included:

Murder: Benjamin Jordon, 28, colored, for the death of James Lloyd, 26, colored, September 29, in a brawl in 1900 block Fourteenth street northwest. Rape and assault with intent to rape: James E. The grand jury ignored the following charges: Brooks Bailey, 22, colored, housebreaking; Willie H. Hayden, 19; Leonard Johnson, 20, both colored, joy riding; Joseph T. Jones, 29, colored, theft of Government property; Pryor F. Hefner, 44, receiving property stolen from the Government.

Britain Scraps Plan to Erect Jewish State

Palestine

memorandum brought to London earlier this month by the Irak foreign minister, representing Arabs of Palestine, Syria, Transjordania, Irak, Saudi Arabia and Egypt. Two further points were that the Balfour declaration be annulled and that Jewish immigration be stopped to stabilize the population of Palestine around the present figures of 900,000 Arabs and 400,000 Jews.

Indications are that the Arabs' insistence upon maintenance of the present ratio of two to one, against the Jewish population, will be met in any one of three ways:

Jewish immigration to continue, but only if there is enough Arab immigration to preserve the present ratio.

Immigration from all sides to be restricted, perhaps suspended for an experimental period of two years, after which the experiment may be made permanent.

All present immigration to be stopped.

Certain officials would like to take the last step first, but probably some compromise formula will be evolved because of the thousands of messages which have been received from prominent Jews, Protestants and Catholics in the United States, protesting any stoppage of immigration or surrender of the Balfour declaration.

Although it is known that the Palestine partition scheme is dead beyond resurrection, the British policy in other respects will not be revealed in detail until next week. A statement of government policy will be presented then, together with the long-awaited report of the Woodhead commission.

The Woodhead commission went out to Palestine to arrange the technical details of the partition as outlined by the parent group, the Peel commission. It now falls to the lot of the junior group to kill the work of the parent commission.

Government advocates admit this constitutes another humiliating surrender to force, but they argue that the partition of Palestine could never be carried through without provoking a Pan-Arabic uprising with dangerous consequences to the British Empire, and particularly the imperial "life line" running through the Suez Canal sector.

Arabs Mopped Up

Jerusalem, Oct. 19 (AP).—British troops today mopped up Arab rebels who had defied British arms for more than four days.

The third battalion of Coldstream Guards hunted through the subterranean passages and cellars of the most ancient quarters of this holy city.

At least nine persons were killed. The expedition into the storied old city section suffered three casualties. Two guardsmen and a policeman were slightly wounded.

Troops deployed through the winding streets of the walled old city at dawn. Throughout the day newspaper correspondents perched on a hotel roof outside the walls heard the gunfire.

While the number of Arab casualties was not known, nine Arabs, including a woman, were killed by 1 p. m. and 18 wounded. Forty arrests were made among the hundreds questioned.

The Jerusalem military command asked all inhabitants to remain indoors "in view of the operations being taken by the military in support of police in the old city."

Many of the Arab band which had wielded defiant control of the Moslem section escaped last night ahead of the British expedition.

Some gained freedom through subterranean tunnels, others by lowering themselves with ropes suspended on St. Stephen's Gate.

Two Royal Air Force members and two Jews were wounded on Jericho road yesterday. A Jew was killed in Jaffa.

paper clipping of President Roosevelt's memorandum to Cordell Hull, Secretary of State, regarding the bombing of the gunboat Panay in December, so that Sanders might see the appearance of White House stationery.

This letter was mailed, in accordance with Sanders' instructions, to Mrs. Jessie Jordan, in Dundee, Scotland.

Mrs. Jordan, who since has been sentenced in Scotland to serve four years for espionage activities, was then under investigation by British authorities, and Rumrich's letter was intercepted by British postal officials.

A photostatic copy of this letter, placed in evidence by Dunigan, shows Rumrich gave detailed directions for the manufacture of the White House letter paper.

"I shall need this stationery by not later than March 1. It will get us the Enterprise and Yorktown plans without much expense. Meanwhile I would like to have you inquire from the main office, whether the sum of $300 can be placed at my disposal for this purpose. This is a round figure and I don't think I'll need that much. But it may be necessary to deal with situations as they arise and it is always good to have a bit of capital at hand. I will give you the details in a separate letter."

Rumrich never received the stationery, nor was he able to put the scheme into operation, because he was apprehended by Federal agents in February.

"A Lucky Strike"

Schlueter told him, Rumrich said, that he had "made a lucky strike," in finding the Bethlehem-Amtorg contract. Schlueter said he had access to the mail bags and frequently looked through them "to see if there was anything of interest." He steamed open letters, photographed those that interested him, resealed them and returned them to the bags. He found the contract, he told Rumrich, because his curiosity was aroused when he saw an envelope postmarked Zurich, Switzerland, and addressed to the Bethlehem Steel Corporation.

Rumrich expressed surprise and doubt at Schlueter's story. Then, he said, Schlueter remarked "You don't have to believe me," and turned to Miss Hofmann, saying, "Jenny, get that contract out of the bag."

Miss Hofmann, Rumrich testified, produced a number of photographs. "They were photographs of the contract applying to industrial matters," Rumrich said, "and photographs of letters and cablegrams between Bethlehem Steel and the Amtorg, and of machinery, specifications, and all kinds of details that I just don't remember."

Rumrich, who has admitted telling many "fictitious" tales to impress his superiors in the spy ring, today told of an incident which made it appear that Schlueter was not above embroidering the facts in order to make a good impression.

Rumrich said that his 21-year-old brother, Hans Joerg Gustav Rumrich, was living in Czechoslovakia, and after being taken into Rumrich's confidence, expressed a desire to become a German agent.

Rumrich told Schlueter that he had written to Sanders about his brother, but Schlueter, who said he worked directly from Berlin, was scornful of Sanders and the Hamburg office. Schlueter said he would see Rumrich's brother himself on his next trip to Europe, and asked Rumrich what his brother was doing.

"I told him I hadn't seen my brother for several years," Rumrich testified, "but from his letters he seemed to be quite a roughneck and a typical little Nazi.

"'Well,' Schlueter said, 'he'll be the man for us. We need someone to do some work for us in Czechoslovakia because that is one of our next objectives.'"

Thereupon Rumrich sat down and wrote a letter of introduction to his brother and gave it, he said, to Miss Hofmann. He did not hear from his brother again until after his arrest. Dunigan introduced this letter in evidence.

In it Hans said he had seen Miss Hofmann and Schlueter, and congratulated Rumrich on his "$1,000 coup."

"It requires a great deal of perspicacity to do such things," he wrote. "I hope that I will be able to achieve such perspicacity."

This part of the letter baffled Rumrich until he met Miss Hofmann some time later in the office of the Federal Bureau of Investigation. "I asked her," he said, "what this meant about a $1,000 coup. She said that Schlueter was just bragging a little to induce my brother to work for him."

Spied on Communists

Miss Hofmann also told him, Rumrich said, that his brother was working in the Communist Party in Czechoslovakia as a German agent.

Rumrich said Schlueter had asked him to try to establish contacts with young officers in the army and navy, and to this end he had written a letter to Ensign W. B. Brown, on the aircraft carrier Saratoga, whose name he had seen mentioned in a newspaper.

This letter, dated January 24, 1938, Dunigan was also able to introduce in evidence. In it Rumrich said, "there are ways of making money. An enterprising young man can make money without much trouble. Why don't you wake up?"

He advised Ensign Brown to place the following advertisement in the New York Times if he wanted to make money: "Brownie—O. K. for contact—W. B."

The letter was signed "Brownie" and bore a postscript saying, "if you pass this on to the service there will be dire consequences." Rumrich said he had received no reply.

Erich Glaser, who had been living with Rumrich, re-enlisted in the Army on January 7 and from that time was stationed at Mitchel Feld, L. I. Rumrich said he saw him nearly every week-end, however, either in Rumrich's apartment or at Mitchel Field. He told Glaser, he said, that he was working for German agents, but did not reveal their names to Glaser.

It was Glaser, according to Rumrich, who discouraged the scheme to acquire coast mobilizations plans by overpowering Col. Henry W. T. Eglin, commanding officer of Fort Totten. The plan was for Rumrich to pose as a general staff officer, telephone an order to Col Eglin to bring the plans to the Hotel McAlpin for "an emergency council" and there to overpower him with gas.

Rumrich said that Glaser did accede to his requests in subscribing to the Army and Navy Register, giving him notes on an Army code used between an airplane and a ground crew, and supplying him with names of members of the Army who were of German descent.

Schuleter had asked Rumrich to obtain 50 United States passport blanks, to be used in sending German agents to Russia. Rumrich said he had received so many suggestions from Schlueter and another agent, Schmidt, that he "got some ideas of my own," and decided to get the passports by posing as a State Department official.

"I told Glaser," he said, "that I would call up the passport bureau and ask for the blanks. There are two entrance to the bureau, and Glaser was going to watch one and I the other, to see if anyone left with a bulky package. Glaser agreed."

Rumrich said that both Sanders and Schlueter advised him to apply for reappointment to the air corps. This, in time, might have proved embarrassing to Rumrich, because he had told Sanders and Schlueter that he had resigned as an officer, whereas in fact he had deserted from his post as an Army mess sergeant. He was able to pass off this predicament temporarily, however, by assuring his superiors that he had applied for reappointment and that his commission was on the way.

Benjamin A. Matthews, counsel for Glaser, asked at the opening of today's session that witnesses be excluded from the courtroom, the first such request that has been made. Eight persons left the room, among them Leon G. Turrou, former agent of the Federal Bureau of Investigation, who conducted the inquiry into the spy ring.

At the request of Lamar Hardy, United States attorney, John T. McLaughlin, a special agent of the FBI, who will be a witness, was allowed to remain seated at the Government counsel table.

Rumrich will resume his testimony at 10:30 a. m. tomorrow.

Fraulein Johanna (Jenni) Hofman, who heard herself called a messenger for an espionage syndicate as Guenther Gustav Rumrich, confessed spy, took the witness stand in the spy trial at New York. The girl, a German, was cool and more than slightly amused as she listened to testimony

Strachey Told To Leave U. S.

Strachey

even tenor of our ways once more."

Speculation here last night envisaged a new possibility—that the British government, anxious at this time to preserve the best possible relations with this country, had maneuvered to halt the proposed 60-day lecture tour of the author, who has repeatedly espoused Communism in books and on the platform, but insists he has never formally joined the party.

It was noted that "reliable information" had been the basis of the decision by the American consul general in London, Douglas Jenkins, to revoke Strachey's passport after the author had sailed. The natural belief was that such information could only have come from the British government.

Jenkins informed the State Department that Strachey was not only a member of the Communist Party of Great Britain, but was elected a member of the executive committee of the party at an annual convention at Birmingham, September 16-19 of this year, and that the British Communist Party is affiliated with the Third Internationale.

Roosevelt Invoked

The immigration service's review board, rejecting the plea of Arthur Garfield Hays, counsel, American Civil Liberties Union, that an American consul is without authority to revoke what Hays contends is a "valid passport visa," based their decision on an executive order issued by President Roosevelt.

That order empowered consuls to issue visas on the basis of the best information in their possession.

Strachey fought deportation in 1935, when a storm of protest from liberals all over the country arose against an order to deport him for communistic beliefs. Senator Bronson Cutting (Democrat), of New Mexico, championed the author as "a distinguished political philosopher," and thousands of Americans—including authors, publishers and citizens of all types—who had enjoyed Strachey's best-selling books, wrote letters attacking the order.

Publicity Helps Books

Strachey's books, always among the highest-selling non-fiction works, immediately jumped in sales throughout the country, and the present publicity is again expected to "needle" lagging sales of his more recent writings.

Mild of personality, the plump-faced, big-framed author, an avowed Communist many times over, and nephew of the late Lytton Strachey, Queen Victoria's biographer, has repeatedly denied that communism seeks to destroy governments by violence. Strachey contends that peace comes to the masses only after communism has fought the efforts of a dying capitalist class to overthrow democratic processes and substitute therefor some type of fascism.

Holds Reds Peaceful

Strachey believes that Communists abhor violence and that the only hope for peace in the world is the abolition of the capitalist system of production and the building up in its place of a socialized system based on public ownership.

He has often asserted that Communists do not deny others civil liberties, but rather, that freeing the masses from the capitalist yoke, as he puts it, will greatly enlarge the scope of their civil liberties—a scope which he says is vastly exaggerated by what he calls a millionaire-dominated, far-from-free press.

But Strachey, for the record, has never admitted actually belonging to the Communist Party and says he does not participate in official Communist activities. For this reason he has been excoriated by the Communist press as "a coward," and "a publicity-grabber."

He most vigorously denies that he is not a serious Communist, however, and has slapped at the charge that his activities are "press-agent stunts."

Warren Snyder, Salesman, says of Old Quaker: "Boy—that's a good whiskey . . . it's a real smooth drink!"

Out of 1,000 Men Who Sampled Old Quaker—Now 3 Years Old—960 Found It Rich in Flavor, Smooth and Mellow . . . Supporting Our Belief That Old Quaker Rivals Many Higher Priced Brands!

• Here's great news for every man who enjoys good whiskey but doesn't enjoy paying high prices for it. Old Quaker—now 3 years old—rivals many fine whiskeys that are more expensive. Here's why we think so:—

We went to 1,000 men and asked them to sample Old Quaker. "Smell it!" we said. "Taste it! Swallow a drink of it! And give us your frank opinion."

None of these 1,000 men knew the name, age or price of the whiskey he was trying, yet 960 commented on the smoothness, richness, mellowness of Old Quaker, confirming our belief Old Quaker is an amazing bargain at this price.

What This Means To You

If these 960 men are right—here's a simple, direct way for you to save money on whiskey. Change to Old Quaker, now 3 years old! Make this same simple trial yourself! And see for yourself if it isn't news for every thrifty drinker!

J. T. Raiford, Engineer, tells Investigator Anderson: "Now I know why people like straight whiskey. I'll buy Old Quaker in the future."

J. C. McWilliams, Accountant, tries Old Quaker and remarks: "This is my type of straight whiskey."

Colonies Held Hitler's Price For Paris Pact

High Demands Reported Air Superiority Also Renunciation of Soviet

By the Associated Press.

Paris, Oct. 19.—Reichsfuehrer Hitler's reported price for a guaranty of Franco-German peace appeared too high to France today.

Germany was said in well-informed quarters to have offered to guarantee French frontiers against attack if France would return Togo and the Cameroons, pre-war German colonies in West Africa; if France would recognize that Germany should have numerical superiority in war planes and if France would assure Germany a free hand in central and eastern Europe and renounce the Franco-Russian mutual assistance pact.

The possibility remained, however, that sufficient common desire existed so that some kind of an agreement might be reached. British leaders have been described as urging the French to seek something parallel to the Anglo-German friendship pact initialed at Munich.

Warning to Italy?

In the willingness of both France and Germany to explore possibilities of an non-aggression pact some Paris observers professed to see a diplomatic game aimed at Italy—a warning by France that Italy should confine itself to the Mediterranean and a hint by Germany that unless Italy abandoned its support for Hungarian claims Germany could find a powerful friend in France.

Count Johannes von Welczeck, German ambassador to France, talked to Georges Bonnet, foreign minister; and Andre Francois-Poncet, French ambassador at Berlin, flew to Hitler's Bavarian home, Berchtesgaden.

Daladier Sees Russian

Premier Daladier's friends hoped an agreement with Germany would improve his domestic position. He conferred with Soviet Ambassador Jacob Surits, presumably as to what effect a Franco-German agreement would have on Franco-Soviet relations.

In a drive against spies the French government forbade foreigners to settle in the Paris region without special authorization. Resident foreigners and tourists are exempt. Giuseppe Picone, listed in police records as an Italian anarchist, was arrested as he was leaving on a boat train for the United States. He was accused of violating an order expelling him in 1929.

Harvard Calls For Plebiscite on Partition Plan

Cambridge, Mass., Oct. 19 (AP).—Harvard officially was mum tonight concerning an attempt of the Cambridge City council to make the university a separate municipality, but the suggestions and speculations of the sons of Harvard and the "townies" were loud and multiple.

The Harvard Crimson, undergraduate daily, howled for a plebiscite and announced it would ask Reichsfuehrer Hitler to officiate.

The Lampoon, Harvard's fun-making monthly magazine, raised a swastika banner and demanded that it be made a "free city."

The Cambridge City Council last night instructed the city solicitor to "file appropriate legislation" to carry out the suggestion.

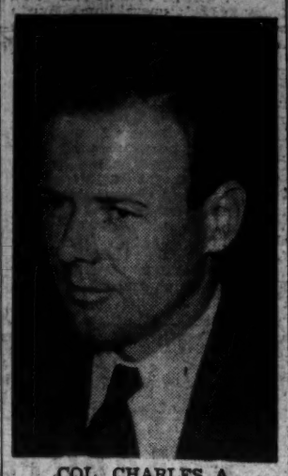
Lindbergh Gets Decoration From Hitler



COL. CHARLES A. LINDBERGH

At Wilson's Reception Presented by Goering Flier Has No Comment

By the Associated Press.

Berlin, Oct. 19.—Col. Charles A. Lindbergh was decorated by Field Marshal Goering last night, utterly without ceremony then and without fanfare today.

A government spokesman said tonight that as far as he was concerned, nothing was known regarding the award. The decoration was the Nazi Order of the German Eagle, one of Germany's highest.

Five classes of the order to honor foreigners were established by Reichsfuehrer Hitler in 1937. It was not learned immediately which class the American flier received.

Lindbergh was decorated at a reception given by United States Ambassador Hugh Wilson in honor of him and Marshal Goering.

When the Nazi leader passed down the receiving line he paused when he came to Lindbergh and said he had orders from Hitler to give him this decoration as a token of Germany's esteem for what Lindbergh had done for aviation.

Lindbergh said simply "Thank you," and hung the decoration around his neck.

The flier went on an inspection tour of German airplane factories and laboratories today, accompanied by Maj. Arthur W. Vanaman, assistant United States military attache, and representatives of the German air ministry.

Police said Grosso had been under investigation for several months.

Nazis Believed Aiming Resale Of U. S. Cotton

Would Be Broker Control Central Europe Take All Trade There

By the Associated Press.

Germany, in the opinion of experts here, aims to become the broker for American cotton for all of central Europe.

Officials, analyzing recent speeches in which German officials made overtures for a trade agreement with the United States, have concluded that Germany has expectations not only of supplying central European nations with German exports but of acting as the broker for products she herself does not produce.

They recall recent speeches by Rudolf Brinckmann, German secretary of state for economics, in which he said Germany would take at least 3,000,000 bales of cotton from the United States annually.

The significance of these figures, they say, lies in the fact that Germany's total consumption of cotton, in American officials' estimates, is 1,485,000 bales a year.

Experience of Others

Experts here believe that the difference between what Germany can consume and what she is willing to take from the United States comprises what she intends to resell to other nations.

Latin-American nations which have been selling Germany large quantities of coffee on barter arrangements have found their markets for coffee in other countries of Europe interfered with by German sales of coffee to those other countries in barter deals.

Exporters of British India who likewise were selling extensively to Germany found themselves in a similar difficulty.

The German offer on cotton means she would be taking one-sixth of the total American production.

For Baltic Also

In the 12 months ended in July of this year Germany bought from the United States 655,894 bales.

The countries whose cotton deals with the United States Germany would seek to handle, in the opinion of experts here, are Poland, Czechoslovakia, Hungary, Yugoslavia and Bulgaria.

Poland, in the 12 months ended in July, bought 232,943 bales of American cotton; Czechoslovakia, 134,593; Hungary, 4,400; Yugoslavia, 16,308, and Bulgaria, 5,488.

Germany, it is thought here, may also have some thought of acting as broker for American cotton to the Scandinavian Baltic states.

Working on Rumania

Bucharest, Oct. 19 (AP).—Rumanian official circles said today that Germany was making great efforts to line up Rumania in her southeastern European economic sphere.

These circles declared that despite such pressure Rumania, fearing that political dependency would follow in the wake of economic change, has shifted her economic policy only slightly if at all.

Germany is the largest market for Rumanian exports. However, although Germany was said to sell at cheaper prices, Rumania would prefer to deal with Britain and France as they pay in currency while Germany works on a barter basis.

'Isms' Assailed By Mgr. Haas

New Orleans, Oct. 19 (AP).—Mgr. Francis J. Haas, of Catholic University, Washington, speaking at the Eucharistic Congress today, said the inherent rights of individuals and families were being invaded if not threatened with destruction.

Points to Weltanschaung

"It is enough," he said, "to point to the spread of communism, fascism, racism and social injustice. Unnecessary to add they propose a weltanschaung, a philosophy of life toally at variance with fundamental Christian concepts.

"At present the peoples of the world are living under either authoritarian or democratic governments," he said. "The authorifarian, whether Communist or Fascist, are functionally governments of terrorism. The principal democracies are thinly veneered economic dictatorships based on class struggle."

Kamal Ataturk Slightly Better

Istanbul, Turkey, Oct. 19. (AP).—President Kamal Ataturk, seriously ill, was slightly improved tonight, said a bulletin issued by his physicians at 8 p. m.

He was so ill, however, that Turkish statesmen talked openly of foreign and domestic policies in the event of his death. All Greek Orthodox and Jewish sanctuaries have been crowded for two days as prayers were said for the president.

National Engineer Body Names D.C. Man Official

Walter L. Simpson, of the Powhatan Hotel, PWA engineer, was elected treasurer of the National Society of Professional Engineers yesterday at their meeting in Pittsburg, the Associated Press reported.

Other officers named were Perry T. Ford, Columbus, president; John C. Riedel, Brooklyn; J. W. Beretta, San Antonio, Tex.; W. C. Bickford, Port of Seattle, Wash., and Sultan G. Cohen, Indianapolis, vice presidents.

Only Patrols Active On Spanish War Front

Hendaye, France, Oct. 19 (AP).—Action on the Ebro River front of the Spanish civil war was limited today to "feeler" attacks by government and insurgent patrols, each side hunting for a weak spot in the other's line.

Ralph Knox, former president of one of the largest locals of the U. A. W., as he testified before the committee investigating un-American activities yesterday that Government officials had invited him to join the Communist Party. Knox, a Detroit automobile worker, said the invitation was extended when he was in Washington for 30 days in connection with a case before the NLRB office of Gen. Hugh Johnson, NRA chief, at the time.

But when Representative Mosier (Democrat), of Ohio, asked him if he didn't mean John Donovan, he said maybe it was Donovan and not Henderson.

He added that another Government official, probably named Eldridge, was introduced to him on that occasion, but hte could identify Eldridge only as a man who had an office on the thirteenth floor in some Government building.

District zoning officials last night said that only the National Press Building and the Munsey Building have 13 stories. No Government office building has 13 stories. Nearest are the RFC and SEC with 12 stories each.

(Leon Henderson, former NRA economist, is now WPA economist, and is generally known as an exceptionally ardent New Deal Democrat. John Donovan, of the NRA's Labor Board advisory council, was ousted by Gen. Johnson and later reinstated by the National Labor Relations Board after his case became a cause celebre in 1934. The board found he had been dismissed for "union activities.")

Knox said that the Government "Communists" even introduced him to an "attractive young lady," a stenographer named "Miss Bell," who acted as his companion. He added:

"I didn't have to buy any meals, though. I didn't even drink any cocktails."

He said he met another Communist who worked in the White House postoffice, but couldn't remember his name.

Homer Martin, U.A.W. president, against whom Knox was particularly bitter, will testify Friday morning before the committee, Chairman Martin Dies, of Texas, announced yesterday. Martin ousted Richard Frankensteen and three other U.A.W. officials, for alleged communistic activities, early this year, but the C.I.O. heads later reinstated them, with a plea for harmony.

Knox and an earlier witness, Clyde Morrow, who declared he joined the Communist Party to get data for the Americanization committee of the American Legion, separately testified that Communists, "controlling" the automobile workers, were responsible for the sit-down strike wave which paralyzed Michigan's automobile industry much of last year.

Angry at Foreigners

Knox was especially vindictive toward foreigners and Jews whom he named as Communists. He repeatedly referred to foreign-named persons as "Arabs," which he pronounced "Ay-rabs," and in stumbling over the pronunciation of many of the names of persons he vowed were Communists he burst out once:

"Ah, the place sounds like a Babel. It's a squirrel cage, Detroit. All Arabs, or Bulgarians, or Macedonians, or Syrians or worse."

Chairman Dies cautioned him not to denounce persons for their origin, but he continued anyway.

Knox, after naming the 92 U. A. W. officials who, he said, were Communists, wearied of the long recital and suggested to Dies that maybe that was enough. He said:

"I guess you're pretty well satisfied that we were just crawling with Communists." Dies said he guessed he was.

Holds Members Disgusted

One of those named by Knox as a member of the C. P. O. (Communist Party Opposition, a leftist group which split from the Communist Party) was Francis Henson, who Knox said was the private secretary to Homer Martin. Henson, said Knox, had never worked in an auto plant.

The majority of U. A. W. members, said Knox, "are absolutely disgusted with their leaders, especially with their radicalism and communism."

Harold Cranfield, of the National Labor Relations Board, in a telegram to the committee yesterday attacked the testimony of William Gernaey, former labor spy of the Corporations Auxiliary Co. of Cleveland. Gernaey had linked Cranfield, formerly an investigator for the LaFollette Civil Liberties committee, with communism. Cranfield asserted that Gernaey's statements were "utterly falsified."

War Forces Assailed by U. S. Prelates

Eucharist

raised in song, had scarcely fallen into silence this morning before they heard a bitter commentary on the kind of world their elders would seem to be leaving for them.

The auxiliary bishop of Chicago, Bernard J. Sheil, struck the theme for the day as he addressed the boys and girls. For, them he could paint no such world of "opportunities" as the youth of this land once used to hear about from their elders.

Bishop Sheil described the present "as the day of fearful reckoning" for the not very Godly events that have marked the affairs of grownup society and of nations in recent decades.

Over 500 Faint

Packed into the stadium around the army of boys and girls were more than 50,000 adults. Every seat in the vast amphitheater had been taken on a day so muggy and sweltering that more than 500 participants fainted.

Most of those stricken by the humid heat were boys and girls, fatigued by hours of regimented waiting.

At the conclusion of the mass the children—and their elders—saw and heard the Papal Legate, George Cardinal Mundelein, of Chicago, and the Archbishop of New Orleans, the Most Rev. Joseph Rummel. Neither of these prelates had been scheduled to appear at the stadium ceremony. Cardinal Mundelein assured the children that this was their day. He reminded them that "our Savior loved little children best of all." He mentioned that their prayers had "kept the rain away," today and he gave them a special blessing from the Pope.

The Cardinal, like Bishop Sheil in the sermon, told them the world of tomorrow would be their world. He emphasized, too, that they would be "the church of tomorrow."

Bishop Sheil told them that today "We see a world in which countless millions are hungry, naked and wretched in the midst of superabounding plenty, a world in which millions willing, able and eager to work cannot make a decent livelihood for themselves and their children.

"In a world from which democracy has all but vanished. Older folk had heard lying voices proudly proclaim that they would make the world safe for democracy forever.

"We heard the same voices confidently announce to all the peoples of the world that they would end all war. We see a world which is red with carnage and no man can say how much farther the dread pestilence will extend."

Assails Versailles

Then he stingingly brought out the fact that when statesmen assembled at Versailles to carve out a new world in 1919, they asked no advice or help from spiritual sources. He also referred to the new era of optimism of America's 1920's.

"When these same men attempted to recreate the world in their own image and likeness," he said of the Versailles statesmen, "the names of God and his Christ were never heard in their deliberations. The most powerful and beneficient spiritual agency in the world was contemptuously excluded from their councils. We heard deceitful voices declare in the name of blasphemous materialism that at last poverty was conquered and abolished from the earth and the reign of abounding plenty established forever. You all know what actually exists."

But, despite the depression, the war scares and the abuses of materialism, Bishop Sheil told the rising generation he was not a pessimist.

"How," he asked, "can anyone be a pessimist who fights under the banner of Christ?"

"Down," he cried, "with the bitter international rivalries, lying chicaneries and deadly hatreds which poison and render all normal life impossible. Up with the fatherhood of God and the universal brotherhood of all men. There is an imperative need to find something better than this defunct, decaying materialism. We have the only possible foundation for right, happy human life: Thou shalt love the Lord, thy God, above all things and thy neighbor as thyself.

"The pitiable condition of the world before us today should make clear to every enlightened mind the alternatives which confront us. It is Christ or chaos. It is misery, war and death without Christ. It is peace, happiness and eternal glory with Christ. Let the challenging slogan ring in the ears of the world until all men are compelled to hear —'For there is no name under Heaven given unto men whereby they can be saved except in the name of Jesus.'"

Colored People Aid

While white children and grownups were assembled at the stadium, colored persons by the thousands, young and old, assisted at solemn pontifical mass this morning on the campus of Xavier University where the celebrant was Archbishop John A. Floersh, of Louisville, with the Bishop of Charleston, the Most Rev. Emmet M. Walsh, delivering the sermon.

Tonight Cardinal Mundelin appeared before a colored multitude. He presided at Xavier University at a holy hour devoted to adoration of the Blessed Sacrament. Afterward the assembly took the Holy Name pledge, read by the Very Rev. Thomas J. Conlon, O. P., of New York, national direetor of the Holy Name Society.

From 11 o'clock until midnight there was another holy hour for men only in City Park Stadium. There the benediction was given by the Most Rev. Stephen J. Donahue, Auxiliary Bishop of New York and administrator of the Archdiocese of New York. This was followed, at midnight, by a pontifical low mass.

Concludes Tomorrow

Tomorrow, which has been declared a holiday in New Orleans by civic as well as religious authorities, the eighth National Eucharistic Congress will be concluded with a solemn procession through miles of the city's streets. More than 100,000 persons have registered to participate.

The schools, city offices, the courts and most places of business will be closed.

At the stadium, tomorrow evening, Cardinal Mundelein will give his benediction to the multitude. The acclamations will be led by the Bishop of Buffalo, the Most Rev. John A. Duffy.

Children and grownups by the thousands are to sing hymns in unison throughout the line of march. The musical program will be directed from the air by a priest riding in a blimp.

Hitler Talks To Nazi Chiefs In Austria to visit the lower Danube province, including Braunau, where he was born.

Among those with whom Hitler conferred at Linz was Eric Gruber, Nazi district leader of the Upper Danube, who was reported to have been instrumental in bringing about an informal truce between the Catholic Church in Austria and the Nazi regime.

Gruber reportedly told Hitler of "satisfactory discussions" which he had with Dr. Johannes Maria Pfoellner, Catholic Bishop of Linz.

The outbreaks against the Jews have coincided with the demonstrations involving Catholic youth and Nazis, which flamed up October 7 over a "youth hour" speech by Theodore Cardinal Innitzer. The Catholic-Nazi struggle ebbed today after the Catholic Action Society, apparently bowing to Nazi demands, agreed to an informal truce.

Mobs Invade Homes

Tonight's vandalism in the Jewsih quarter began at dusk. Youths carrying iron bars and stones smashed windows and forced their way into homes where they ripped apart beds.

The outbreak was the second in 24 hours. All last night the Jewish Leopoldstadt district was the scene of vandalism. The Jewish community soup kitchen, where impoverished Jews were fed, was demolished.

Some Jews reported they were threatened with eviction from their flats.

Meanwhile a number of Catholic youths who participated in a demonstration before St. Stephen's Cathedral October 7, and sang hymns and shouted "Heil Christ," were discharged from their jobs under Nazi pressure, it was reported.

Mary Pickford Sees Seamy Side Of Washington

Mary Pickford, America's sweetheart of silent movie days, made a sightseeing tour of Washington yesterday, very much on its seamy side.

She saw new houses being built by the District Alley Dwelling Authority and climaxed her tour with a visit to King's Court, the city's inhabited alley. She wondered "how human beings could live in places like this." Her tour was conducted by John Ihlder, executive officer of the authority.

She was convoyed by Sergt. Joe Harrington, of Metropolitan Police, who was her police escort 20 years ago when she sold Liberty Bonds here.

Called suddenly to New York on business, Miss Pickford canceled plans for today and will leave by plane this morning. She is expected to return next month.

Kuhn 'Believes' Nazism Wouldn't 'Ever Fit Here'

Albuquerque, N. Mex., Oct. 19 (AP). Fritz Kuhn, of New York, leader of the German-American Bund, said today he did not believe Nazism would "work in the United States."

"This country has everything," said Kuhn, who is here for a rest. "If we had true democracy there wouldn't be a single man out of work. Everyone would have an even chance.

"Nazism wouldn't ever fit here."

Kuhn described the bund as a "100 per cent American organization," and declared it was not organized for espionage or sabotage.

Kuhn said he approved the original purpose of the Dies committee, but denounced its methods.

May Ask Part Of Hungary, Czechs Hint

General Staff Acts 1910 Basis Urged Slovaks at Munich

By the Associated Press.

Prague, Oct. 19.—An apparent stiffening of Czechoslovakia's attitude toward Hungarian territorial demands was indicated tonight when the Czech general staff hinted the nation might counter with a claim for certain Slovak areas around Budapest.

At Hungary's capital city negotiators continued their efforts to thresh out the problem, while representatives of the new Slovak and Ruthenian autonomous states prepared to present their side to German diplomats at Munich.

Complicating efforts for agreement was a statement by the Czech general staff that Hungarian provocators were inciting rebellion among the Slovaks in an attempt to sever the state from the nation.

Violations Claimed

The general staff also cited what it said were several instances in which Germans had overstepped the frontier created by the Reich's absorption of Sudetenland.

It was stated in reliable German quarters that Germany had indicated a willingness to return parts of Sudetenland to the Czechs.

The general staff's possible claims on Hungarian territory, it was said, would be based on Hungary's belief that the census of 1910 should be used in a determination of Budapest's demands for Slovak areas.

A 1913 map of the Austrian Militar-Geografisches Institute, showing islands of Slovak peoples around Budapest, was exhibited by the military.

The delegation meeting with the Germans at Munich includes Dr. Joseph Tiso, Slovak prime minister; Dr. Ferdinand Durciansky, a member of Tiso's cabinet, and Edmund Bacinsky, minister for the Ruthenian autonomous state.

Budapest Anxious

Budapest, Oct. 19 (AP).—Its streets plastered with pictures of Polish statesmen, symptomatic of the new sympathy between Poland and Hungary, Budapest waited anxiously today for word of a settlement of Hungary's territorial claims on the Czechoslovak republic.

The official announcer was silent, but diplomatic circles heard that only one stumbling block remained: A determination whether Hungary's demand that Slovaks and Ruthenians be allowed to vote their own wishes should be met.

Hungary hopes that those peoples, now autonomous within the framework of Czechoslovak republic, would favor union with this foreshortened part of the old Austro-Hungarian empire.

Such an anschluss would establish a common Hungarian-Polish border.

Hungary's hope for anschluss was understood to be strongly supported by Poland.

Poles Woo Rumania

Bucharest, Oct. 19 (AP).—The Polish foreign minister, Joseph Beck, made a quick trip to Rumania today, and was reported to have suggested —without success—a division of Czechoslovakia's easternmost segment among Poland, Rumania and Hungary.

The Rumanian foreign office is hostile to any increase in the territorial size of Hungary.

The rumor was circulated in diplomatic circles that Rumania had offered Poland a plan to establish, with Yugoslavia, Bulgaria and Greece, a "Baltic-Aegean axis of small states" which would parallel the Berlin-Rome axis and aim at a closer political and economic relationship among those countries against Germany's "surge toward the southeast."

Winner Loses! To Lead Donkey Carrying Loser

It's a matter of some dispute among members of the Men's Bible Class of Potomac M. E. Chapel, Potomac, Md., if the loser won't win tonight and the winner lose in settling a membership drive that ended September 20.

Under terms of the contest, Guy Perry, captain of the losing team, must ride an old gray mare behind the Potomac Band a long mile from Potomac Cross Roads to the church. But while Perry rides, Roy Oden, winning captain, must trudge along leading the mare. All question of who won or lost will be unimportant when the church is reached and the Perry team prepares and serves a dinner for the Oden team.

The class, of which Norman Ingalls, sr., is president, is taught by Dr. J. W. McConnell, social science instructor at American University.

Jury Indicts Ruth Etting's Former Husband; Her Marriage to Shooting Victim in Doubt

Snyder Is Jailed Under 3 Charges Daughter Testifies

By the United Press.

Los Angeles, Oct. 20.—A grand jury tonight indicted Martin (Col. Gimp) Snyder, former husband of radio torch singer, Ruth Etting, on charges of attempted murder, kidnaping and violation of the State firearms act, as an outgrowth of the near-fatal shooting Saturday night of Myrl Alderman in Miss Etting's home.

The charges carry a maximum sentence of 50 years in prison. The death penalty section of the kidnaping code was not invoked.

An hour later Snyder surrendered in court and was remanded to jail in default of $50,000 bail. Snyder had been at liberty under $10,000 bail. He will be returned to court Monday to enter a plea.

Hints Alderman Not Mate

Hints that she actually was not married to Alderman came from the blonde blues singer as she emerged from the grand jury chambers, where she gave a graphic eye-witness account of how he was shot and seriously wounded by Snyder, the man she divorced 11 months ago.

Highlights of Miss Etting's testimony as relayed from the secret chambers included assertions that Snyder dissipated $70,000 she gave him at the time of their divorce last November, and recently hounded her for more.

Snyder frequently threatened her life.

Pleads Self-Defense

On last Saturday night, he stood before the singer, Alderman, and his daughter, Edith Snyder, in the music room of Miss Etting's home and at gunpoint threatened to kill all three, she said. Only the fact that the lights went off after Alderman was shot prevented Snyder from carrying out his threat, said Miss Etting.

After the singer completed her story, Snyder was taken before the jury, but refused to testify. He has made no statement since telling police Sunday that Alderman shot twice at him before he opened fire and wounded the musician once in the abdomen. Alderman, who was Miss Etting's accompanist until her retirement, is recovering.

Miss Etting, who after the shooting corroborated Alderman's statement that they were secretly married "about four months ago," hinted today there had been no elopement.

Grand jury sources said she gave her legal name as Ruth Etting—not Alderman—and to reporters who asked her whether she actually married her former accompanist, she replied:

"Well, they couldn't find any record of it, could they?"

She was referring to statements of Tiajuana officials that they had found no record of the marriage.

Deputy District Attorney Edwin Myers, who presented the witness to the grand jury, interrupted to recall that "this is no love tangle case."

"The love tangle question has no bearing on the issue," he said.

The question was brought to bear a moment later, however, when a process server tagged the singer with a summons for the $150,000 alienation of affections suit filed against her by Alderman's former wife, Alma Alderman. The latter accused Miss Etting of luring him away from her with lavish gifts and promises of an easy living.

Ruth Etting is shown in a close-up yesterday just before her grand jury appearance at Los Angeles. Her step daughter, Edith Snyder, has sided with the singer in the days since her father, Martin Snyder, former husband of the singer, shot Ruth's new husband, Myrl Alderman

Associated Press WIREPHOTO.

In her appearance before the grand jury Miss Etting was quoted as saying she and her stepdaughter were in the house when she saw Alderman and her former husband climb out of a car. Alderman's face was white, and he was shaking his head as if to warn her as he entered the door, a gun prodding him in the back. With an oath, Snyder was said to have ordered the two women into the music room.

"I began pleading with him, saying, 'We've all got our lives to live, Moe, and it won't do you any good to do this,'" she related. "He said, 'Im going to kill all three of you.'

"I started pleading again and just at that moment Myrl started to speak. He never got the opportunity, though, because Moe fired two shots. One went over Myrl's head and lodged in the wall. The second hit Myrl. As he fell, the light went out."

The darkness appeared to frighten Snyder, according to the witness, who said he started screaming, "Call the police."

Daughter Shot at Him

"I ran into my bedroom and got my gun. Moe followed me. I held my hand behind my back and he said, 'What have you got there?' and pulled my arms from behind me. In the scuffle the gun went off and I ran out of the bedroom."

Snyder was said to have thrown the gun on the floor and run out the back door. His daughter picked up the weapon and fired one shot at him. It went wild.

Miss Etting's story was reported to have been corroborated by Miss Snyder, who was weeping when she finished.

Chaney was removed to a hospital at Joplin, Mo., where X-rays revealed that he had suffered torn ligaments in his leg, but that no bones were broken.

Japan Sends 60 Motorboats Against Canton

To Use Small Streams Battle Expected in Week Yangtze Town Falls

By the Associated Press.

Hongkong, Oct. 19.—Sixty armed motorboats were believed en route along the South China coast tonight to add an assault by river to Japanese overland drives against Canton. The boats carried a sort of naval warfare into the network of shallow waterways athwart Canton where heavy warcraft would run aground.

It was popularly assumed in Hongkong, British crown colony southeast of Canton at the river mouth, that the Japanese were determined to reach Canton by November 3.

The Japanese command, with at least 60,000 soldiers already on the march—most within 50 miles of Canton—was adding reinforcements.

Strong indications were that the battle for the metropolis might take place within a week. Foreign military observers believed only an exceptional turn of events could block the Japanese.

The Kwangtung and Canton defense army was made up of hundreds of thousands of southern Chinese, mostly unseasoned and ill-equipped. Chinese military authorities insisted the major defense of Canton had not started.

Japanese bombing and machine-gunning planes continued "softening" the Chinese resistance, although several squadrons of Chinese ships reached Kwangtupg Province. A Chinese news agency said the Chinese engaged Japanese aircraft in several air battles.

Shanghai, Oct. 19, (AP).—Japanese military authorities announced tonight the capture of Hwangshihkang, 50 miles southeast of Hankow, carrying the Yangtze River offensive a step nearer the Chinese military capital.

Severe fighting continued on the northern and southern wings of the 150-mile semi-circular front closing in on Hankow.

Meeting Called Here to Protest Plight of Jews

An interdenominational mass meeting will be held in Constitution Hall Sunday night in an effort to marshal public opinion in Washington in defense of Jewish rights in Palestine. The meeting is one of several hundred being held throughout the United States.

Charles Edward Russell, president of the Pro-Palestine Federation; Representative Fish (Republican), New York, and Senator Radcliffe, of Maryland, are scheduled to speak.

In a letter to the members of the Washington clergy, Rabbi Isadore Breslau, of the Emergency Refugee Committee, has appealed for sermons this Sunday devoted to refugees from Germany, Austria and other lands.

Appeal Made to U. S.

Tel Aviv, Palestine, Oct. 19, (AP).—American Jews in Palestine today appealed to the United States to "exercise its good offices" to protect their interests. They were "apprehensive of reports of contemplated changes or modifications of the mandatory status as assured by the Anglo-American convention of 1924."

School Project Lightens Gloom Of Shut-Ins

project is to be set up to run until June 30, 1939.

"It is the purpose of school officers who will co-operate in administration of the project to provide instruction adaptable to the needs of the children," said Dr. F. W. Ballou, superintendent of schools.

The Health Department, as co-sponsor of the project, will provide materials for occupational therapy and especially for crippled children, Dr. Ballou reported.

Included in the group classed as shut-ins are crippled children, those with delicate health who must stay at home under physician's orders, tubercular children not enrolled at Glenn Dale, and those with defective vision.

In addition to the teachers, two general supervisors are provided, one for white and one for colored children.

Adm. Woodward Calls for a Navy 'Second to None'

New York, Oct. 19 (AP).—Rear Admiral Clark H. Woodward, commandant of the Third Naval District, tonight urged construction of a United States Navy "second to none" and warned that great nations fall to second or third-rate states on relinquishment of their sea power.

In an address prepared for delivery at a banquet celebrating the 157th anniversary of Cornwallis' surrender to Washington at Yorktown—climactic battle of the Revolutionary War — Admiral Woodward cited President George Washington's message to Congress on December 7, 1796:

"To secure the respect of a neutral flag requires a naval force organized and ready to vindicate it from insult or aggression."

Admiral Woodward said Washington's words "applied very emphatically to us in 1916—and apply to us equally strong today."

Government Files Brief on Patents With High Court

By the Associated Press.

Arguments in a case in which the Government seeks to limit the monopoly on patents were begun yesterday before the Supreme Court.

The case is a rehearing of the court's 5-to-1 ruling last May 2 that General Talking Pictures infringed on patents held by the Western Electric Co. and others by using equipment for purposes other than that for which it was purchased.

Samuel Darby, of New York, counsel for General Talking Pictures, began his argument only a few minutes before court adjourned for the day. The Government entered the case yesterday by filing a brief as a "friend of the court," contending that the restrictions imposed under the licenses "must necessarily impede and discourage healthy competition and private enterprise."

D. C. Employes Find It's Little Slips That Hurt

The District circulated yesterday a list of accident causes, some humorous and all painful, involving its employes in the last month. Examples:

An employe of the Playground Department was hit in face by baseball, injuring tooth.

Plaster fell in the auditor's office, causing slight brain concussion to employer.

City refuse worker had left hand bruised when struck with crank handle as he was attacked by a citizen.

here last summer. He declared the tendency of some interests to denounce as "destructive to democracy" every movement to help the underprivileged. He advocated large Federal expenditures to improve health conditions, as did Dr. Michael M. Davis, of the Rosenwald Foundation, who testified in the grand jury room yesterday.

The grand jurors were subjected to their first treatment with charts and records, of which the record is expected to contain a truckload, by the next witness. Clem Linnenberg, staff economist of the Department of Justice anti-trust division, followed Taussig to the stand, carrying in a number of diagrams.

Almost 100 witnesses are still to be heard by the grand jury.

Committees Named

Chicago, Oct. 19 (AP).—The American Medical Association announced today the personnel of its committee for conferences with Federal officials on the national health program.

The association's house of delegates, at its Chicago meeting in September, authorized its speaker, Dr. Harrison H. Shoulders of Nashville, Tenn., to appoint the committee. His selections were:

Dr. Irvin Abell, of Louisville, Ky., chairman; Drs. Walter F. Donaldson, Pittsburgh; Walter E. Vest, Huntington, W. Va.; Henry A. Luce, Detroit; Fred W. Rankin, Lexington, Ky.; Frederic E. Sondern, New York; E. H. Cary, Dallas, Tex.; Rock Sylvester, Wauwatosa, Wis., and Olin West, Chicago.

Announcement in the association Journal said commmunications concerning proposed conferences had been sent to President Roosevelt and Miss Josephine Roche, chairman of the Interdepartmental Committee to Co-ordinate Health and Welfare Activities.

It said a conference between the association committee and Miss Roche's committee had been scheduled for October 31, in Washington.

Md. Group Opposes Scaled Income Levy

Baltimore, Oct. 19 (AP).—The Maryland Taxpayers Association, meeting here last night, went on record as opposing a graduated State income tax and increased expenditures for State or city departments.

"We are satisfied that the present taxes are too high and we take the stand that we will battle against increase," said President E. T. Newell. "Let us try to peg tax rates at their present basis."

light, police reported, and was in the center of the eastbound car track when struck.

His death will keep the skull and cross bones flying for another 24 hours—a public reminder that Washington's traffic fatality toll is rising steadily even in the face of city-wide safety activities.

Second in Two Weeks

Whitehouse was a roomer at the Crittenden street address. Friends could give but little information about him, except to report that he had a sister, Mrs. George W. Stark, living in McKeesport, Pa.

Newton E. Robertson, 28, motorman of the street car, was released to appear later at a coroner's inquest. He said the elderly man stepped directly in front of his car and there was no time to avoid the accident.

It was the second fatal mishap along downtown Pennsylvania avenue in less than two weeks. On October 6, James P. Pugh, 73, of Alexandria, Va., was killed by a street car at Eleventh street.

Although four persons have been fatally injured in traffic this month, the city is still behind last year's record at this time. The figures are 70 this year, as against 84 in 1937.

The white safety banner was lowered soon after its dedication to mark the death of Herbert Anderson, 11, of 918 M street southeast, the city's nineteenth child victim of the year. He was injured Sunday and died Tuesday night in Providence Hospital.

With the greater part of Washington's present traffic toll traceable directly to carelessness on the part of victims, traffic authorities last night renewed oft-repeated pleas for caution.

Traffic Director William A. Van Duzer predicted that safety efforts of the past several months would be wasted unless "everyone who uses the streets awakens to his and her responsibility."

Brown Asks Co-Operation

"It is a personal problem for every resident of the District," he said. "We are doing all we can—it is up to the individual."

Maj. Ernest W. Brown, police superintendent, lamented the fact his limited personnel will not permit the assignment of crossing policemen at every dangerous intersection and again appealed for co-operation in "our fight against death and injuries."

As an added means of protecting children, the Commissioners announced yesterday that public hearings will be held November 4 on recent proposals to ban parking in the vicinity of playgrounds.

Van Duzer, in line with suggestions from the Commissioners' traffic safety committee, recommended parking prohibitions on all streets adjacent to school buildings and playgrounds.

Someday You too will use flameless Cooking

With the discovery and use of coal came a new cooking era. The coal range gave a more uniform heat, required a little less labor—but still there were ashes, clinkers, soot and smoke—pots and pans to scrub—and the pesky stove to be polished regularly.

DOCTORS and dieticians point out the healthful qualities of various vitamins in foods. With Electric Cooking—Flameless Cooking, foods that are rich in healthful vitamins retain those values unimpaired.

When you cook vegetables the Flameless way, you use very little water. You don't need large quantities of water because the electric cooking unit can be perfectly regulated. Foods cook in their own natural, healthful juices. You get all of the flavor and vitamins! You don't pour them down the sink—you put them with the food and get the benefits therefrom.

In and near Washington are 15,000 homemakers whose families daily partake of healthful meals cooked electrically. Among them are your friends and neighbors. Ask them critically what they think of Flameless Cooking. Let them tell you the facts concerning their actual experiences. This is the Electric Age and more and more people are adopting the Flameless method of cooking. Why don't you try it?

Ancient Egg Thrills 400 Ornithologists

Isn't an Ordinary One About 20,000 Years Old Probably a Cormorant's

Four hundred members and guests of the American Ornithologists' Union yesterday thrilled to the sight of an egg.

It was no ordinary one but an egg, or what was left of it, of a bird that flew western America upward of 20,000 years ago. It is one of the rarest fossils in existence.

Dr. Alexander Wetmore, assistant secretary of the Smithsonian Institution, displayed it to the conference, which is being held at the National Museum.

Intensive investigation has failed to disclose the species of bird that laid the large egg but it might well have been a cormorant, Dr. Wetmore said.

"The shape and texture of the shell are such as to leave no doubt in my mind that the specimen is actually an egg," he asserted. "Beyond this it is possible to speak only in supposition.

"The specimen may represent the egg of a bird of unknown family or may come from a family group in existence today. The first proposal seems improbable, as the appearance of the egg is such as to suggest a modern type, probably one of a group found in the Great Basin today."

The precious remains consist of about half of the full shell and are well preserved. Measurements showed that the complete egg was about 63 millimeters long and 38.5 wide.

A resident of Lovelock, Nev., found the fossil along the shore of Lake Lahonton, and turned it over to Nevada University. It was forwarded recently to the National Museum here.

Closing scientific sessions of the convention will be held today. Delegates will visit the Patuxent wild life research refuge tomorrow and on Saturday they will tour National Zoological Park.

Not So Strictly Fresh

Police Records Stolen on Eve Of N.Y. Inquiry

7,200 Gone in Brooklyn Manhattan Checked Some Mislaid There

By the Associated Press.

New York, Oct. 19.—Investigators began today a comprehensive survey of police records in Manhattan, following disclosure that records of 7,200 arrests had been stolen in Brooklyn.

Twenty-five investigators and accountants from the office of William B. Herlands, commissioner of investigation, began the survey after a conference with Inspector Michael P. Murphy, head of the confidential squad of Police Commissioner Lewis J. Valentine.

Stolen on Inquiry Eve

The wholesale theft of the crime records was made from the presumed security of Brooklyn police headquarters between 4:45 p. m. Monday and 9:25 a. m. Tuesday, on the eve of the special investigation of official corruption charges for which Gov. Lehman has appointed John Harlan Amen special prosecutor.

As for the possibility that records also had been stolen from police stations in Manhattan, a high official at headquarters said it was true certain records requested by Herlands had not been located in the Manhattan stations where they are supposed to be.

Duplication Possible

Commissioner Valentine personally supervised the questioning of every person, civilian and police, who has access to the Brooklyn headquarters.

"We can reconstruct the books from the records of the police department and the magistrates' courts," asserted Valentine.

Investments Linked to Rise In Construction

Conference Opens Here
O'Leary Is Speaker
Employment Discussed

Recovery of the construction industry to "reasonable employment levels" depends upon a revival of capital investment, John W. O'Leary, chairman of the executive committee of the United States Chamber of Commerce, stated last night on the eve of a two-day construction industry conference.

The meeting, which will be held at the chamber's headquarters, will be the first of its kind in several years. Co-operating with the Chamber of Commerce are the Construction League of the United States and trade associations in the construction field.

In a statement pointing out the purpose of the conference, O'Leary said that during the active period prior to 1931 approximately 3,500,000 men were employed, directly or indirectly, in private nonresidential building. During these years about $5,000,000,000 of new private money flowed into this market.

"This compares with the expenditure of some $3,800,000,000 during the same active years, which provided a yearly direct and indirect employment for some 2,000,000 men," he said.

"Based on Department of Commerce figures of total private new construction expenditures, it may conservatively be estimated that there were employed in the year 1937 approximately 1,000,000 men in private nonresidential construction and about 800,000 in private residential building.

"Since public improvement expenditures have been kept large by emergency financing, and cannot be appreciably increased without undue burdens on taxpayers, it obviously follows that recovery of the construction industry to reasonable employment levels hings on revival of private capital investment.

"It is also obvious that revival of nonresidential construction is just as important as an expanding housing program, and it may conceivably develop re-employment comparable in magnitude to the potentialities in the residential field."

Rep. Crawford Charges Navy With 'Shakedown'

Saginaw, Mich., Oct. 19 (AP).—Representative Crawford (Republican), Michigan, protested today in a letter to Secretary Swanson against what he said apparently was an attempt by the Navy Department to "shake down" Saginaw manufacturers who want Government contracts.

He said manufacturers had been asked to donate funds for a Navy Day celebration at the Navy Yard in Washington.

"I sincerely hope we have not reached the day when it is necessary for the armed forces of the Nation to resort to a 'shaking down' procedure of this type," he wrote.

Newport News, Va., Oct. 19 (AP).—L. T. Barrow of Martinsville was elected State councilor of the Junior Order of United American Mechanics at the close of the Virginia convention this morning at the Hotel Warwick. Barrow succeeds S. W. Murphy, of Richmond, as head of the State organization.

Lynchburg was selected as the site of the 1939 convention.

State Inspection Of School Buses Follows Crashes

Richmond, Va., Oct. 19 (AP).—Two school bus accidents in the vicinity of Charlottesville within the past week brought from Col. Marion Battle, director of the State motor vehicle division, the announcement today that State officers are now making an "inspection of school bus equipment" throughout the State.

Their reports, he said, should be assembled in the "near future."

"The recent accidents in which school buses were involved should bring forcibly to the attention of all the very serious subject of the transportation of school children," Maj. Battle said.

When this inspection is complete, it is understood that the motor vehicle division will take up with the county school boards hazards existent in defective equipment, in overloading and in young drivers.

Engravers Asked to Fight Counterfeiting

Baber, 'T-Man,' Speaks
Tells of Crooks' Skill
Convention Here Ends

Photo-engravers and the "T-men" of the United States Secret Service should work hand-in-hand to make the public "counterfeit money conscious," Julian T. Barber, of the Secret Service Division, Treasury Department, said yesterday.

Speaking at the forty-second annual convention of the American Photo-Engravers Association at the Mayflower Hotel, Barber said a close relationship between the two groups should exist "based upon a common purpose to preserve the integrity of the currency of the United States."

Describing the counterfeiter as a person "wholly without conscience, not moved by impulse or heat of passion," Barber said that cool deliberation is a contributory factor to the counterfeiter's success in making and passing fake currency.

"Some of these persons are so skillful they lead the Secret Service a merry chase, often over long and tortuous trails," he said, "trailing the swindlers who prey upon the easily victimized public which fails to interest itself in the quality and character of our legal tender."

A study of printing and engraving values should be included in curricula of high schools and colleges to teach students how to tell legal currency from false, he said.

Thirty-five new counterfeit note issues, nearly all photo-etched productions, were discovered last year, 15 of which were especially deceptive and resulted in a wide program of education through circulars and press notices, he said.

Postlude

By Ray C. B. Brown.

District of Columbia Federation of Music Clubs presents Irving Lean, violinist, and Elena Crivella, pianist, in Roosevelt High School auditorium Wednesday night. Program: Concerto in C major (Vivaldi-Kreisler), Concerto in E minor (Mendelssohn), Waltz in C sharp minor (Chopin), Fantasie-Impromptu in C sharp minor (Chopin), "Danza Ritual del Fuego" (De Falla), Concerto in D major (Paganini-Kreisler.)

Two meritorious young resident musicians, Elena Crivella and Irving Lean, must have been gratified last evening both by the sponsorship of the District Federation of Music Clubs and by the hearty reception accorded them by an audience of goodly size in Roosevelt High School auditorium. The applause, frequent and prolonged, was well earned by the musicianly quality of their playing and by their very evident sincerity in aristic endeavor.

Mr. Lean essayed, and commendably accomplished, the exacting task of performing three concertos arranged in an order of cumulative difficulty. The first was Kreisler's edition of the C major concerto by Antonio Vivaldi, the early Italian composer to whom Bach paid many a compliment of adaptation, and even imitation. The second was the Mendelssohn concerto which remains, no matter how frequently one hears it, a work of captivating charm, and the third was Niccolo Paganini's D major concerto, transformed and ornamented with intricate cadenzas by Kreisler.

Since he last appeared in recital, Mr. Lean has obviously been in studious vein, for his playing showed marked advance in technical skill, and he now handles with ease dexterities of bowing and fingering which formerly gave him more concern. His besetting enemy is still nervousness, which showed in certain lapses from pure intonation, in occasional harshness is drawing the tone, and in some slurring of rapid passage work. But in each instance these matters were counterbalanced by clear phrasing, a fine and poetic cantabile, and impeccable harmonics. He is a serious and idealistic musician whose promise is becoming achievement.

Elena Crivella was a sympathetic and neat collaborator at the piano, adapting her dynamics with respect for the proportions of tone. In her group of solos she displayed a fluent technique, a lyric quality of expression, and skill in pedal shading. Her style of playing has attractive grace and the stamp of personality.

State to Operate Washington Mill At Mount Vernon

Richmond, Oct. 19 (AP).—The Virginia Conservation Commission today set November 7 as the closing date for the six State parks, declined to establish a new State park at New Point Comfort, in Mathews County, and decided to operate the Washington grist mill at Mount Vernon next year.

It also recommended that the next General Assembly make the song "Carry Me Back to Ole Virginny" the State's official anthem.

The grist mill at Mount Vernon was restored by the previous conservation commission at a cost of $52,000. It is located within three-fourths of a mile of the famous mansion.

The chairman said an admission charge of 10 cents a person probably would bring the State considerable revenue. The commission will work in co-operation with the Mount Vernon Ladies Association in keeping the restored mill open to the public.

In the past, the first day of "homecoming" has been held on Saturday, but the day was changed this year in order that members of the clergy might return to their churches for Sunday.

MANY NEVER SUSPECT CAUSE OF BACKACHES

This Old Treatment Often Brings Happy Relief

Many sufferers relieve nagging backache quickly, once they discover that the real cause of their trouble may be tired kidneys.

The kidneys are Nature's chief way of taking the excess acids and waste out of the blood. Most people pass about 3 pints a day or about 3 pounds of waste.

Frequent or scanty passages with smarting and burning shows there may be something wrong with your kidneys or bladder.

An excess of acids or poisons in your blood, when due to functional kidney disorders, may be the cause of nagging backache, rheumatic pains, leg pains, loss of pep and energy, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes, headaches and dizziness.

Don't wait! Ask your druggist for Doan's Pills, used successfully by millions for over 40 years. They give happy relief and will help the 15 miles of kidney tubes flush out poisonous waste from your blood. Get Doan's Pills.

Rayburn Off With Barkley On Stump Tour

Rayburn

Gill, who is hard pressed there by the Republican nominee, Clyde M. Reed. Barkley will speak in Wisconsin for Senator Duffy next Thursday, and October 28 will speak twice in Illinois for his party's Senatorial nominee, Scott W. Lucas, and the rest of the ticket. Barkley's stump tour will wind up in Pittsburgh, Pa., on October 29. The Senate leader's Pennsylvania efforts will be concentrated on aid for Gov. George Earle, said to be trailing in his Senate race with "Puddler Jim" Davis, Republican.

Completing the leadership invasion of Pennsylvania, Speaker Bankhead is scheduled for one speech there November 3. The following day Bankhead will speak at Terre Haute, Ind., with another speech scheduled at Rock Island, Ill., on November 5.

Women Lined Up

Several other House and Senate Democrats are being signed up for campaign duty. The Senate contingent will include Senator Green, of Rhode Island, in Cleveland, Ohio, October 26; Senate Majority Whip Lewis, in Wisconsin and Illinois October 25 and 26; Senator Lee, Oklahoma, in Kansas next week and Senator Neely, of West Virginia, in Wisconsin the last three days of the campaign.

A battery of women speakers also is being lined up by Senate and House Democratic campaign committees. Already assigned are Mrs. Thomas F. McAllister, director of the women's division of the Democratic National Committee, for speeches in Michigan and Indiana; Mrs. Anna Dickey Olsen, director of the Minnesota National Emergency Council, for talks in Illinois and Iowa, and Mrs. Emma Guffey Miller, sister of Senator Guffey, for Pennsylvania speechmaking.

Cabinet members, including Postmaster General Farley, Secretary of War Woodring, Secretary of Agriculture Wallace, Secretary of Commerce Roper, Secretary Ickes, Attorney General Cummings, Assistant Attorney General Keenan and Undersecretary of Agriculture Wilson, already have heavy-duty campaign assignments. States to be covered (some many times over), by individual members of the Cabinet contingent, include Ohio, Kansas, Illinois, Indiana, Utah, Pennsylvania, Connecticut, New Jersey, California, Iowa, Michigan and South Dakota.

House Majority Leader Rayburn yesterday declined to join the ranks of election prophets, but said that in no event would Democratic losses be sufficient to handicap House handling of next session's Administration program.

He said the House Democratic organization would benefit by a slightly smaller, more compact majority, but he refused to concede any sizable whittling down is in prospect.

As for next session's legislative program, Rayburn said it would be largely devoted to "consolidating Administration gains." He said details of the program remained to be worked out, but predicted "some action" on Government reorganization, taxes and supplemental farm and social security legislation.

Find Out What Makes You Constipated!

You know that constipation often gives you that dopey, sunken, bogged down feeling. Why not get at the cause and prevent it?

If you eat what millions do—things like bread, meat and potatoes—the chances are all that's the matter with you is you don't get enough "bulk." And "bulk" doesn't mean what you may think. It's a kind of food that isn't entirely digested, but leaves a soft bulky mass in the intestines that aids elimination.

If this is your trouble, what you need is crisp crunchy Kellogg's All-Bran for breakfast. It contains both "bulk" and Nature's great intestinal tonic, vitamin B. And it's not a drug, not a medicine!

Eat All-Bran every day, drink plenty of water, and see if the old world doesn't look a lot brighter! All-Bran is made by Kellogg's in Battle Creek. Sold by every grocer.

Country Could Use 300,000 Mice Per Year in Medicine

Some of the methods by which experiments with standardized breeds of mice may become the most important of cancer studies were explained to local geneticists last night by Dr. C. C. Little, one of the country's foremost cancer research experts.

Dr. Little is director of the Roscoe B. Jackson Laboratory for Cancer Research, Bar Harbor, Me., a member of the National Cancer Council, and managing director of the American Society for Control of Cancer. He spoke at the George Washington University Medical School under auspices of the Washington genetics committee.

In this country 300,000 mice could be used yearly in medical research, Dr. Little said. His laboratory breeds about 55,000 a year. Many effects of cancer could not be studied without such pure breeds of mice.

PUC Sets Hearing On Parking Ban

Further parking restrictions along a new bus route proposed for the Glover Park-Trinidad western terminus will be discussed Monday at 10 a. m. at a Public Utilities Commission open hearing, it was made known yesterday.

James Martin, executive secretary for the commission, has invited Traffic Director William A. Van Duzer to the hearing to discuss the advisability of restrictions along any of the streets in the route.

The present route in Glover Park is via Thirty-seventh street, Tunlaw road, Benton street, Huidekoper place, Beecher street and Tunlaw road. The terminal is on the north side of Benton street, east of Huidekoper place.

Suggested extensions of route include the use of Tunlaw road, between Calvert and Benton streets; Calvert street, between Tunlaw road and Thirty-ninth street, Thirty-ninth place or Fortieth street; Thirty-ninth street, Thirty-ninth place or Fortieth street between Calvert and Benton streets; and Benton street west of Tunlaw road.

Prosperity Held Best Road to Peace

Ways to transform "our war boom" into a progressive and peaceful prosperity, to give democracy a weapon of defense, were discussed last night at the annual meeting of the National Council for the Prevention of War at the Washington Hotel.

Such a transformation would remove the economic causes of fascism and communism—"such as bad housing, unemployment, and desperate poverty"—it was declared by discussion leaders. Group opinion will be crystallized at discussions continued today, when resolutions will be adopted.

Approximately 40 representatives from New York, Philadelphia, and the District of Columbia are attending the meeting. Other topics being discussed at five round tables include: possible means of keeping America out of war, "use of our huge gold and silver reserves to strengthen the financial status of all nations and facilitate world trade," trade agreements, legislation "restricting the use of our Navy to defense of the United States from invasion," and perfection of the Pan American system of treaties.

Policemen Watch Clock; It's Wrong; Catch Burglar

Most people, it seems, get in trouble when they watch clocks, by Privates M. O. Myers and A. B. Nicholson, of the First Precinct, watched a clock and caught a burglar.

A restaurant at 17 H street northeast had been looted by burglars four times, and each time the electric wires that were attached to the night light and the clock outside were cut.

Warned to watch the restaurant closely, Myers and Nicholson decided to watch the clock. Early Sunday morning they passed and looked at the clock, which showed 3:05 a. m. Myers looked at his watch and immediately knew something was wrong, for his showed 3:15.

Entering the restaurant, they found a colored man, who gave his name as Clifton R. Payne, of no fixed address, crouching on the floor. At First Precinct he was charged with housebreaking and in Police Court yesterday he admitted four other cases of housebreaking.

New Wage-Hr. Rules Issued By Andrews

Defines Exemptions
Regions Incorporated
In Effect Monday

With three days remaining before wage-hour pay and time standards automatically take effect, Wage-Hour Administrator Andrews yesterday issued a new series of definitive regulations and prepared with an incomplete staff to launch the initial phase of the law.

For guidance of employes, Andrews defined in general terms professionals, executives, outside salesmen and persons engaged in local retail capacities, who will be exempt from the act. A series of additional interpretations will be announced over the week-end.

The wage-hour division's limited budget, meanwhile, was reflected in a doubling up of territory assigned to regional directors. Named temporary director of Region 4, in which Washington falls, was Earle W. Dahlberg, of Alabama, formerly with the Bituminous Coal Commission, and onetime deputy NRA administrator.

Dahlberg permanently was assigned director of Region 7 (including Florida, Georgia, Alabama, Mississippi and Tennessee), but due to appropriation shortages he will take over Region 4, Region 10 (Texas and Louisiana) and a part of Region 9 until Congress can provide additional funds. The jurisdiction of Wesley O. Ash, named permanent director of the division's Western region, likewise was doubled to include six additional States.

Includes Maryland, Virginia

Besides the District of Columbia, in Dahlberg's temporary fourth region territory will be Maryland, Virginia, West Virginia and North and South Carolina.

Andrews is relying heavily on aid from State labor departments in initial enforcement of the act. Pending additional appropriations by Congress, it was said yesterday that thousands of inquiries being submitted to the bureau must remain unanswered. Staff appointments and designation of industry committees will be sharply confined.

First-year features of the law, laying a 25-cent-an-hour floor under wages, and a 44-hour-week ceiling over hours, take effect 12:01 a. m. Monday.

The No. 1 industry committee (for textiles) was in recess, but a special subcommittee yesterday invited representatives of 35 leading trade associations to conferences beginning November 1, to determine what processors should come under jurisdiction of the textiles industry committee.

Director Mary Anderson of the Women's Bureau, meantime, in a special report to Secretary of Labor Perkins said that because wages in general have been lower and hours longer in the garment industry in the South than in other sections, "Southern workers stand to benefit most tangibly from the new law."

Covered 235 Factories

The Women's Bureau study covered 235 factories manufacturing men's work clothing, work shirts and dress shirts, and covered 40,000 workers, nine-tenths of whom were women. The report showed one-fourth of the employes in clothing plants had weekly hours exceeding 44. One in six in work-shirt plants and nearly one in five in the dress-shirt plants worked 44 hours or over. More than one-half of the workers in Arkansas and Virginia, and one-third of those in Tennessee had average earnings under 25 cents. Sharp wage contrasts were shown from State to State, and within individual States in products made for the same competitive market.

In defining specific types of labor exempted from the law, Administrator Andrews said revision of the definitions can be applied for, and if a reasonable cause for amendment is presented, opportunity will be provided for a hearing.

Under the new regulations, professional employes exempted from the act were defined in part as those customarily engaged in work:

(1) Predominantly intellectual and varied in character as opposed to routine mental, manual, mechanical or physical work, and

(2) Requiring the consistent exercise of discretion and judgment both as to the manner and time of performance, as opposed to work subject to active direction and supervision, and

(3) Of such a character that the output produced or the result accomplished cannot be standardized in relation to a given period of time . . .

Local Exemptions Listed

Executive and administrative class exemptions would include those whose primary duty is the management of the establishment or a department thereof "and who customarily and regularly directs the work of other employes therein, and who has the authority to hire and fire other employes . . ."

Exempted local retailing employes would embrace those regularly "engaged in making retail sales the greater part of which is in intrastate commerce," or who perform work incidental to that.

Under the "outside salesman" exemption, any employe customarily performing work "away from his employer's place of business," who is regularly engaged in making sales, and "who does no substantial amount of work of the same nature as that performed by nonexempt employes," would be included. The order said routine deliveries, whether or not prior orders are placed by the purchasers, will not be considered sales.

William Samuel Noisette, private messenger of J. Edgar Hoover, holds one of his favorite paintings, "Wash Day in Dixie." Noisette, who started painting in 1933, is exhibiting in a one-man show at the Phyllis Wheatley Y. W. C. A. Building. He is 38 and has sold more than 100 paintings

'Really Has Something,' Its Creator Says
Many of His Landscapes Sold Here

With "Wash Day in Dixie" as the featured picture, the fifth annual one-man art show by William Samuel Noisette—colored messenger who tends the door leading to the office of J. Edgar Hoover—opened Tuesday at the Phyllis Wheatley Y. W. C. A.

"That picture really has something," Sam admitted as he showed visitors about. "It ought to have, though. I kept thinking about it for years before I painted it. It's from things I remember about North Carolina, my home."

Sam, who has been painting since 1910, is completely self taught—but has no trouble selling his wares.

"Indeed, I do sell them," he declared. "More than 100 of my pictures have been sold to FBI officials. They started buying after I painted the portrait of Mr. Hoover's dog. That was a good picture. Mr. Hoover'll be down here to the exhibit before its over. He always comes. I sell outside the FBI, too. Courtney Riley Cooper has one of my pictures."

The Hoover dog is the only portrait Sam ever did. He's a landscape artist. "Mostly an autumn landscape artist, I guess you might say. I like to paint autumn scenes best," he said.

In almost evrey one of Sam's landscapes small figures of people can be found. Sam thinks they add interest to the landscapes. "See that old couple there in the snow scene?" he asked. "They're all bent over and almost slipping down on the slick ground. That helps the picture."

The Rocky Mountain pictures and the seascapes in the exhibit are what Sam calls "conversation paintings." "I haven't been to those places," he explained. "I painted them from conversations I have heard about them."

Every spare minute Sam has, he said, he spends painting or sketching. His pictures reveal a keen enjoyment of color and a masterful way of using it freely without blatancy.

"I key it down," Sam said. "And I don't work on one picture too long at a time. I always have two going at once. One is to rest me from the other."

Pilot Spurns Role Of Hero in Landing Burning Airliner

Montgomery, Ala., Oct. 19 (AP).—Pilot Dave Hissong, flame-seared but whole, rested in seclusion today while the 13 persons he steered to safety in a crippled, blazing airplane sang his praise.

Hissong, with fire licking at his head and hands, one motor gone and a wing kicking into the air, mushed his big Eastern Air liner down in a dark clearing near here last night and today shrugged off the role of hero.

"I only did what any other pilot would have done under the circumstances," he said.

Clipper in Trouble

Honolulu, Oct. 19 (AP).—Passengers voiced praise today for A. E. Laporte, Pan American Airways pilot, who sideslipped the Philippine Clipper from an altitude of about 8,500 to 100 feet after one of its starboard motors began smoking and spitting.

The incident occurred 600 miles from Guam after departing from Manila. The plane skimmed above the waves for 10 or 15 minutes and then resumed the flight to Guam, where the motor was changed.

Investigate Burning

By the Associated Press.

The Civil Aeronautics Authority sent four men to Montgomery, Ala., yesterday to investigate the burning of an Eastern Air Lines plane.

Phil Salzman, of the Air Safety Board, and R. F. Nicholson, C. B. Northrop and F. E. Tobin, inspectors stationed at Houston, Tex., will make the investigation.

Cripple Cleared Of Blocking Walk

Edward Bernstein, 37-year-old legless cripple, stood trial before Police Judge Walter J. Casey yesterday on his wheeled platform on a charge of obstructing a sidewalk.

He had been arrested Sunday night by Policeman M. A. Kelly, First Precinct, and made to post $5 collateral.

Bernstein told the court he tried to keep his pet monkey quiet because people always crowded around.

Judge Casey dismissed the case after Bernstein pleaded he was the only support of an elderly father.

2-Week Fog Curtails East Shore Shipping

Cambridge, Md., Oct. 18 (AP).—Fog of two weeks duration in the Chesapeake Bay and fishing ports of the Eastern Shore is curtailing shipping at night, watermen reported today, but the weathermen reported it as a seasonal phenomenon.

Watermen here, Crisfield and other shore points have been returning early from oyster beds in order to avoid the fog.

Upward Trend, Lack of Boom Please Roper

Points to Automobiles
Lumber Also Cited
Building Rise Seen

The upward movement in business is proceeding "along the most desirable lines," Secretary of Commerce Roper said yesterday, "in that it is both gradual and general, without the tendency to boom proportions."

He told his press conference that "thus maintained, the country will build a safer and more enduring prosperity on firmer foundations."

Welcoming the resumption of production schedules by the automobile industry as "an outstanding illustration of this trend to a gradual broadening of the recovery base" he said that "improvement also is showing itself in the other important lines, including the glass and paper industries."

"In the case of lumber," the Secretary continued, "the improvement in construction has resulted in new business attaining a balance with production. Building permits are far ahead of last year in most important centers . . .

"As automobile schedules are translated into actual manufacturing operations, the effect on steel and many other related industries will be more pronounced."

Meanwhile, officials of the United States Housing Authority said Administrator Nathan Straus would report tomorrow to President Roosevelt that all of the agency's funds available for loans would be contracted for or earmarked in December.

He also will report a "pressing need" for more funds for the slum-clearance, low-cost housing program.

Work on Blue Ridge Parkway To Be Completed in 3 Years

Front Royal to Swift Run Gap Stretch Finished
Project's Speed Depends on Congress' Action
Bird's Eye View of Present Status Given

By the Associated Press.

Richmond, Va., Oct. 19.—Work on the Blue Ridge Parkway, begun in the spring of 1936, will be completed in Virginia within about three years if appropriations by Congress continue at the rate of the past several years, State highway engineers estimated today.

Much of the work has been completed or is under construction on the scenic highway, connecting with the Skyline Drive at Jarmans Gap at the southern end of the Shenandoah National Park and, when finished, with the North Carolina portion of the highway at a point near Galax. By next summer, motorists will be able to travel from Front Royal, along the Skyline Drive to Jarmans Gap and continue on to Rockfish Gap at Afton.

A. H. Pettigrew, senior assistant engineer of the highway department, explained that the project is in various phases of advancement, from the work in some sections of making preliminary surveys and obtaining rights of way, to surface treating in other sections of the completed road.

Front Royal to Swift Run Gap, 60 miles, completed.

Swift Run Gap to Jarman's Gap, 32 miles, grading will be completed this fall and surfacing by next summer.

Jarman's Gap to Rock Fish Gap, 8.8 miles, grading and laying of rock completed, and now being surface treated, the section to be completed by next spring.

Rock Fish Gap to Love Postoffice, 13.6 miles, right of way obtained for about two-thirds the distance, grading probably will be started shortly. About three rights of way cases unsettled and may be disposed of within next few weeks.

Love Postoffice to Tye River Gap, 13.3 miles, negotiations for rights of way completed.

Adney Gap to Pinnacles of Dan, about 47 miles, all work completed except surface treating. Probably be completed late this fall.

Pinnacles of Dan to Piper Gap, about 20 miles, contracts for grading and surfacing have been awarded and work is under way. Will be completed in 1940.

Piper Gap to the North Carolina line, about 10 miles, bids will be received early in November.

LINCOLN ZEPHYR

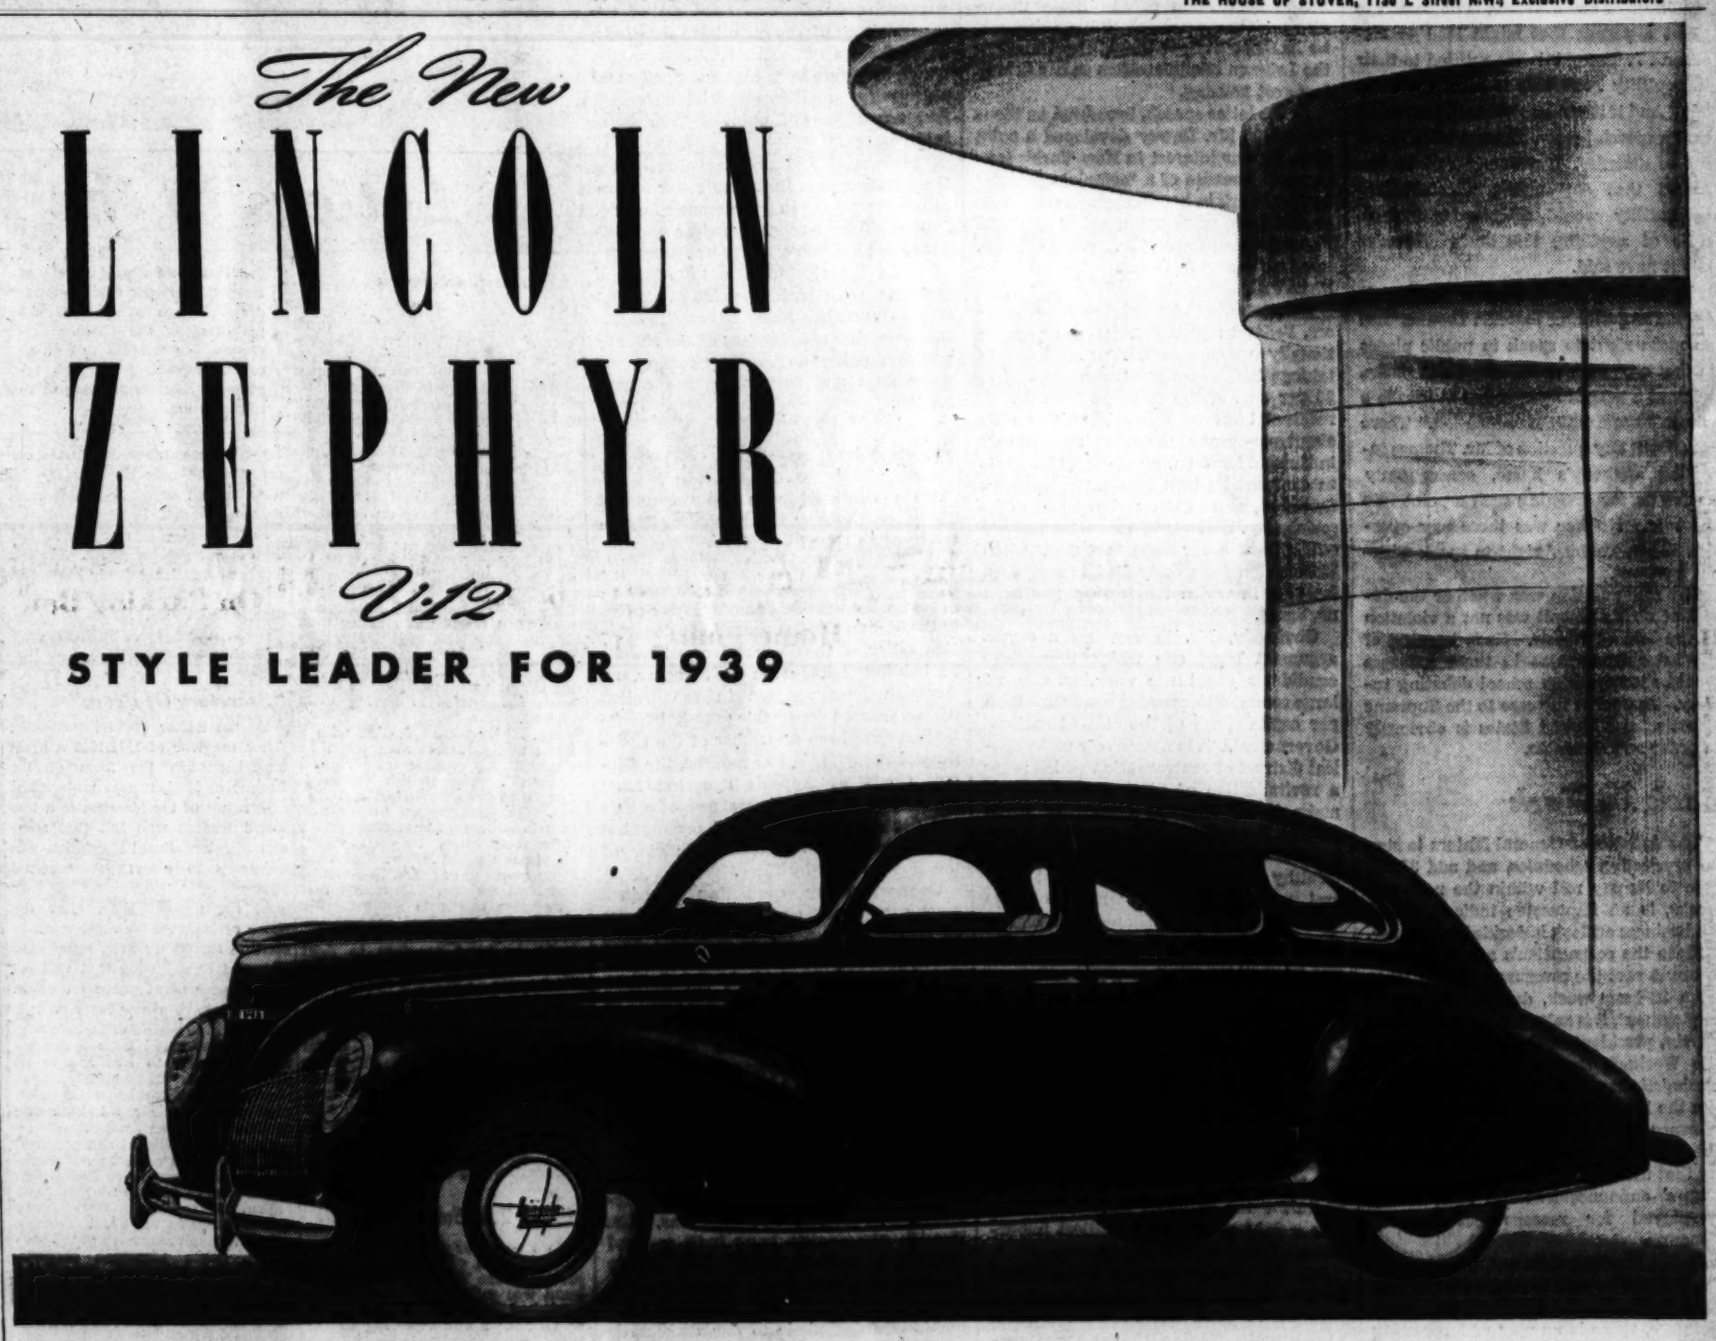
STYLE LEADER FOR 1939



THIS "TWELVE" . . . THE ONLY CAR OF ITS KIND

Three years ago the Lincoln Motor Company announced a car new in idea, appearance and performance—the 12-cylinder Lincoln-Zephyr. The public had not seen an automobile like it before. . . . The Lincoln-Zephyr for 1939 is still a new car. It is improved and refined. But the fundamental design which ushered in a new era of styling remains unchanged!

This year's Lincoln-Zephyr is more beautiful than ever before. Radiator grilles, set low in the manner so much admired in last year's car, now sweep back vertically. Louvers are concealed. Shields, extending down from the doors, cover the running-boards. The long, sloping rear deck, keynote of Lincoln-Zephyr design, seems handsomer than ever. Simplicity and grace rule. Here is the modern car—pattern for the future!

But style alone does not make a motor car. What underlies the Lincoln-Zephyr's streamlined beauty? Many other distinctive features establish this decisively as a car apart . . . the brilliant performance, the trussed construction, the economy of operation, the flowing ride.

For beneath this outward beauty, in all closed types, is a framework of steel trusses—the famous "arch-bridge" construction. Body and frame are a rigid unit combining lightness and strength.

A 12-cylinder engine in any medium-price car is unusual. The Lincoln-Zephyr V-type 12-cylinder engine has established its own standards of power, smoothness, flexibility. Its amazing record of 14 to 18 miles per gallon will still be causing comment when 1939 is over!

This year, the Lincoln-Zephyr has hydraulic brakes. They offer smooth, gentle stops under all conditions. . . . New this year, too, is the complete rubber-insulation of springs, axle assemblies and engine from the body-frame. Even greater quietness results in a car already quiet. . . . Interiors have been completely redesigned. Many refinements of appointments are in evidence. Seats, again, have chair-height comfort!

Today, more than 60,000 enthusiastic people own and drive the Lincoln-Zephyr. It has opened to them a new world of travel! The Lincoln-Zephyr V-12 for 1939 will continue to set new standards in all ways—to give value beyond its medium price. . . . Your new ride is waiting! Choose from six handsome body types, including two convertibles, the Sedan and the Coupe.

BENEATH ITS OUTWARD BEAUTY

A combination of features that makes it the only car of its kind.

1. Unit-body-and-frame—steel panels welded to steel trusses.
2. V-type 12-cylinder engine—smooth, quiet power.
3. 14 to 18 miles to the gallon.
4. High power-to-weight ratio—low center of gravity.
5. Modern comfort for six—passengers "amidships" in chair-height seats—the gliding ride—direct entrance—high visibility.
6. Hydraulic brakes.

Unfinished Business

On Tuesday the Supreme Court of New Jersey upheld the refusal of Mayor Hague's police officials to grant an outdoor speaking permit in Jersey City to Norman Thomas last April. The full text of the court's opinion, written by Justice Joseph L. Bodine, is not available. But if passages quoted are indicative of the whole, that document is certainly not distinguished either by clarity of reasoning or by the absence of prejudice that should be demanded in any decision dealing with so vital a right as freedom of speech.

"That the police," wrote Justice Bodine, "could quell any disorder, is no reason to grant a permit that might lead to disorder. . . . The public are entitled to their tranquillity . . ." This is Fascist reasoning. And if it can be thus easily assumed that a speech by Mr. Thomas might have led to disorder, it certainly can be assumed that any public which values tranquillity would remain tranquil in spite of anything this Socialist leader might have said.

In another place Justice Bodine is quoted as declaring that Mr. Thomas "has no more right to speak in public places in that city, such as highways and parks, without a permit than he has to invade a citizen's home without foundation." There was never any question of Mr. Thomas invading anybody's home, consequently no reason for dragging such a point into the case. Neither was there any question of Mr. Thomas' right to speak without a permit.

The sole question was whether the denial of such a permit was not a violation of the Bill of Rights. Such begging of the issue as appears in these passages would shame a high school debating society. Appeal of the case to the Supreme Court of the United States is obviously in order and desirable.

Back To Work

The decision of General Motors to step up production schedules, and add 35,000 men to its pay roll within the next two weeks, is an impressive indication that the business outlook is decidedly brighter.

Since the corporation's action is timed to counteract the pressure of union labor for a 32-hour week, designed to spread employment, it is only natural that Homer Martin, president of the United Automobile Workers, should indulge in rather pessimistic comment upon what seems to him the inadequacy and probable impermanence of the increased employment. There is, however, some reason for believing that the enthusiasm over the General Motors' announcement has been rather overplayed for reasons not entirely economic.

As Mr. Martin points out, the corporation will not be able to rehire all the men who were on the pay rolls last year. Furthermore, there is no way of forecasting the extent or duration of the upturn in demand for automobiles. In spite of earnest efforts to provide more stabilized employment, this industry is still highly seasonal. It is also subject to sharp fluctuations in output in accordance with changes in general business conditions. Since automobiles are semidurable consumption goods, and luxuries for many buyers, they can be made to last a long time whenever the potential customer is pressed for cash.

President Sloan himself significantly emphasizes the fact that there is "no real way of judging the depth of the better demand now manifesting itself." In view of that uncertainty the company is taking obvious risks in building up substantial inventories during the winter months. This fact is positive evidence that the management recognizes its responsibility to provide as much work as possible "not only in its own interest, but in the interest of its workers." But rejoicing over the re-employment of 35,000 men by a single corporation is chastened by the knowledge that there is no real stabilization in an industry which still dismisses or rehires such huge aggregations of workers at a stroke.

"In the automobile industry," Homer Martin says, "we need stabilization of employment rather than periodic hirings and firings." That is undoubtedly true. The challenging problem is how to achieve such ideal conditions in the automobile or any other industry that produces for a constantly changing market demand. When democracy learns how to eliminate seasonal and cyclical fluctuations in industrial activity, with all they mean in the way of mass unemployment, it will have conquered the greatest threat to its security.

The New York Contest

Gov. Lehman, following a two-hour conference with President Roosevelt at Hyde Park on Tuesday, remained silent on the attitude he will take toward New Deal policies in the New York gubernatorial campaign. That, he said, will become apparent as his fight for re-election progresses. And he reminded reporters that his campaign will have its formal opening only today, less than three weeks before the voting.

In sharp contradistinction is the aggressive fight which Thomas E. Dewey, the Republican nominee, has been waging for the past fortnight. Showing an intimate knowledge of the major issues confronting the State, its energetic district attorney is taking them up one at a time in a series of striking speeches. His attack has been so successful that Gov. Lehman, even before he starts his campaign, has been maneuvered into a defensive position.

That defense is not going to be easy. For Mr. Dewey's evident strategy is to indorse all meritorious New Deal objectives while showing just where and why their roseate promise is unfulfilled. Thus the Republican nominee has already revealed, and sharply condemned, serious maladministration of the State unemployment insurance act. Thus, this week, he has effectively exposed the failure of the Lehman administration in the field of low-cost housing.

In the latter speech, broadcast on Monday night, Mr. Dewey developed a point of particular interest to New York's taxpayers. Because of a "complete default" by New York in handling "a job the State should have undertaken years ago" the Federal Government, Mr. Dewey charges, has had to step in to cope with the tenement evil.

But, from the viewpoint of New Yorkers, Federal housing projects are exceptionally uneconomical. For such undertakings the State contributes from 20 to 25 per cent of the required revenue. It receives back as Federal projects only about one-third of the value it contributes in Federal taxation. A failure by the State to confront its own housing problem is, therefore, more than a dereliction of its social duty. There is also an unnecessarily costly burden for local taxpayers when Washington feels compelled to assume a function in which the locality has been negligent.

Obviously, Mr. Dewey has a cogent argument here, one which Republican candidates could use effectively in all large communities paying more than their per capita share of the cost of national Government. It is not merely philosophical distrust of centralization which urges a revitalization of State government to make it an effective agency of social reform. From the purely economic viewpoint it is good business when the more wealthy Commonwealths forestall Federal undertakings for which, because these localities must shoulder so high a share of the outlay, they will eventually pay through the nose.

There is, of course, nothing unnatural in the fact that Mr. Dewey has so far been showing much more activity than Gov. Lehman in the New York campaign. The latter is reluctantly running for re-election because the White House figures that the Lehman candidacy is the only way to keep a Democrat in power at Albany. The incumbent Governor has nothing to gain by victory in this contest, while for the youthful district attorney it is a fight of supreme political importance.

But the greater activity foreordained for Mr. Dewey would not automatically mean the very intelligent campaign which he is actually waging. He is not attacking any of the social aims of the New Deal. He is, on the contrary, attacking Gov. Lehman for failing to achieve these aims in New York State. And since the Governor is himself by no means a wholehearted New Dealer this makes his position the more uncomfortable.

Gov. Lehman must, before November 8, face up to the charge that his custodianship of power has been long in promises and short in tangible fulfillment. And where the opposition is intelligent this will from now on be increasingly the question posed for supporters, warm or luke-warm, of the Administration.

Established Institution

Three years ago today the American Institute of Public Opinion issued the first public "Gallup poll." Since then it has conducted hundreds of surveys designed to test public opinion on current political, economic and social issues. By means of selective preliminary polls it has forecast the results of every important election, and checks against actual returns show that the institute's record for accuracy is remarkably high.

The rapidity with which this unique service has expanded is evidence of the growth of confidence in a scientific effort to determine what the people think on current issues and to detect changes in the trends of public opinion. These polls mark a radical departure from the usual haphazard methods of similar undertakings carried on sporadically in the past. The fiasco of the last Literary Digest poll, preceding the Presidential election of 1936, emphasizes the unreliability of a nonselective voting system which emphasizes the numbers rather than the representative character of those voting.

The Institute of Public Opinion has achieved its success by relying upon a scientific system of sampling. "The crucial factor in the entire undertaking," as Dr. Gallup himself puts it, "is the nature of the cross-section used in the survey. If the cross-section is properly chosen, a very small sample will accurately represent the larger body of public opinion from which it is taken and great increase in the number of voters will bring no impressive increase in accuracy."

The purpose of the institute, therefore, is to reach representative groups and to give the votes of each group proportional representation in the final summarization. Among the factors habitually considered are representation by States, sex of the voters, urban or rural residence, size of income, age and partisan affiliation. Moreover, results are checked by personal interviews with voters, the numbers personally interrogated depending upon the nature of the problem at issue.

It is not only necessary to exercise keen judgment in developing the sampling process, but the phrasing of questions is likewise of prime importance. The institute reports that special tests are made of wording before questionnaires are sent to field reporters. There is an ever-present danger that an inquiry will be misinterpreted or stated in a form itself suggesting an answer. Not all of the institute's questions have been free from these defects of technique. But on the whole they rate very high for clarity and objectivity—qualities essential to secure a free expression of opinion from those interrogated.

The special and unique value of the Gallup surveys is that they cover a wide range of subjects in a systematic fashion, thus enabling leaders in public and private life to obtain a better understanding of what the electorate is thinking and feeling. With such knowledge, democracy is much less likely to commit costly blunders, due to ignorance of the state of public opinion on issues affecting the daily lives and future fortunes of the Nation.

Deportation And Logic

Does membership in the Communist Party constitute a valid reason for deportation of an alien?

That is the important question which will be determined by the Supreme Court in reviewing the decision of a lower court in the Strecker case, overruling a deportation order of the Department of Labor. In holding that Joseph G. Strecker, an Austrian long resident in the United States, was not deportable merely because he had once been a member of the Communist Party for a few months, the Circuit Court of Appeals departed from precedent. For the general run of previous decisions had identified communists with those who advocate overthrow of the Government by force.

Confronted by conflicting decisions among the circuit courts, the Department of Labor is in a dilemma which calls urgently for clarification of our immigration laws and particularly for a more intelligent understanding of the nature of communism. There is no law specifically banning alien communists from this country. And the deportation act is primarily designed to bar the entry of the foes of organized government—that is, anarchists and terrorists.

Whatever may have been true in former years, it can no longer be assumed that communists are today bent on destruction of established institutions. The Russian communists have built up and support a well-organized and highly centralized government. Their conception of the state is undoubtedly fundamentally antagonistic to our democratic traditions. But the spiritual gulf that separates the Russian communist from the believer in democracy is no greater than that which divides us from adherents of the similar authoritarian doctrines preached by the German Nazis and the Italian Fascists.

Unless we wish to ban the entry of all foreigners who do not share our enthusiasm for the American form of government, it certainly is neither fair nor logical to disbar communists while admitting loyal followers of Hitler and Mussolini. The exclusion of communists seems particularly absurd, moreover, since we properly permit the Communist Party to carry on its work in our midst, and to seek votes for its candidates, even for the office of President of the United States.

A number of recent events, such as the disbarment of a harmless British lecturer on the ground of alleged communism and pressure of the Dies committee to expedite deportation of the West Coast labor leader, Harry Bridges, for similar reasons, emphasize the need for a final judicial ruling.

The Supreme Court, in its review of the Strecker case, will presumably put an end to the prevailing uncertainty by deciding whether communists are to be classified with anarchists and terrorists or recognized as simply belonging to a regular party organization employing the usual political method of extending its power by the appeal to reason.

Churchill's Speech

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: First we read the speech in which Hitler denounced Winston Churchill. Then we heard Winston Churchill speak to the United States in answer to that speech.

Hitler was vehement and violent; he was abusive and direct; but he spoke as a man who had to tell his people something and did not want them to know what it was all about. He only wanted them to know what he thought and what should be done. He didn't have an argument to conclude. He just told his people and the British government what to do. He told them that he couldn't deal with such men as Churchill, Eden or Duff-Cooper. They are rational and intellectual men; they would know better than to give away land to Hitler to prevent war. Hitler gave his ultimatum. He is experienced in giving ultimatums; and after the Czech crisis he is used to having them obeyed.

But Hitler wasn't dealing with a weak and spineless man when he directed his attack at Winston Churchill. The British conservative is a man of intellect and reason. He knows what to say and how to build up his argument to a logical conclusion. He didn't direct his attack against Hitler. Churchill spoke about the Fascist, Communist and Nazi systems. He proved that they were trying to dominate the world. His argument showed the democratic countries that they ought to band together to fight against the progress of Hitler and his cronies. Churchill spoke as a man who knew what he was talking about.

If Churchill would have been in Chamberlain's place the German dictator would either be fighting a losing war, or facing revolution in his own country. He would have been the loser in the Munich conference; not Czechoslovakia and the civilized world.

About The Saengerbund

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: The attention of the board of directors of the Washington Saengerbund was called to a short article published in your esteemed paper of October 9 and referring to the Washington Saengerbund. Since this article contained some erroneous statements and since the Washington Saengerbund has never found it necessary to leave the public under any misapprehension regarding its status and its aims, the board of directors would thank you for bringing the following facts to the notice of your readers:

The Washington Saengerbund is one of the oldest civic organizations in the City of Washington. It was founded in 1851 and its aim was and is the cultivation of music in general and of German choral singing especially. The organization does not have, as stated in the above-mentioned article, 600 members. A membership drive is being undertaken at present to raise the membership from approximately 250 members to 600 or more, and the appeal to join this organization is addressed to every one in Washington enjoying a good name and being interested in the aims of the Saengerbund, but especially in the cultivation of the art of singing by male choruses.

Thanking you for the interest shown in the Washington Saengerbund and hoping that you will bring this corrected statement before your readers, we are,

E. H. MICHAELIS, Secy.

The Higher Cause

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: The decadence of poor old Europe makes the soft-hearted amongst us weep scalding tears. For in those quaint old-world purlieus war clouds are never completely obscured, ready to shower down their blessing of bloody annihilation.

A man knows, without the formality of a peremptory call to the colors, that he may give his life for dictator and country—in the order named.

But America is more advanced, despite her greater youth. She has left such decadence far in her wake. Here a man may give his life or limb for his traffic.

"Secretary Of Peace"

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: After the War of 1914-1918 a great experiment in the form of the League of Nations was undertaken as a result of the idealism of a few world leaders who felt that some sort of international regulation was necessary to direct governmental affairs.

At the present time, after the peace of 1938, we too must think of starting something new, some kind of world organization that will establish permanent peace on earth. Truly we have a new lease on life. We are in the position of a man who has just recovered from a deathly sickness, eager to live life to its fullest degree. We as a nation must now take positive steps to eradicate once and for all time the cankers of human society.

The most intelligent and practical plan which has come to my attention is the Secretary of Peace plan which aims to accomplish this noble reform by instilling a world peace consciousness in the heart of every citizen through extensive peace education, peace literature contests, peace scout movement, peace and friendship expeditions to foreign countries to be carried on through the medium of peace ships, peace ambassadors, etc.

I believe we are ready now, after a narrow escape from the horrors of world disaster, to begin such an idealistic world movement through which the fundamental causes of war can be removed from mankind forever.

The Civil Service

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Your editorial of October 18, "Precepts, Practice," exposes a disease dangerous to the health of a sterling civil service. An ounce of practice in any Government office is worth a pound of precept.

Ideals are suggested from time to time by the high minded; appeals are sent by Government personnel officials to organizations stressing the advantages of pursuing the right course. The ideas are as fleeting as the voice of the spokesman. Improvement does not follow. Federal departmental administrators do practice subterfuge, evasions of the civil service law, which weaken civil service stability.

Time is ripe for an about-face. Constructors should take the place of wreckers; new minds should look on old practices with an analytical eye. The field of employment is wide open for men who, knowing the ideal, are courageous enough to consistently support it.

Let's vitiate the idea that civil service has to be a perennial topic of discussion and admit into the service only henceforth employes equipped with a 100 per cent pure disposition to enforce civil ethics—if such a goal is really the intention.

The Park Bank

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Those Park Bank depositors who received a jolt five years ago when headlines screamed of that bank's debacle had a pleasanter surprise in this week's headlines. That is, some of them did. For numbers of elderly depositors the announcement comes too late.

But there is a third group. Relief was denied (by the Court) those making deposits after the expiration date on the theory they should have known the charter had expired and were victims of their own negligence in failing to ascertain that fact. We were among those 'negligent" ones and so are denied redress.

What irony! When we moved to Washington just before the abovementioned expiration date and opened an account at the Park Bank, it did not occur to us to ask there: "Has your charter expired?" It did not occur to us that a flourishing bank with thousands of depositors in the heart of the Nation's Capital was doing business illegally!

So for four years we passed our hard-earned savings, for which we sacrificed, with a cherished end in view, through the window to those we are now told we should have known were unqualified to receive them. We were new to Washington and patriotic then. Had any doubts assailed us, the fine big bronze plate at the bank door would have reassured us, naive that we were.

It read: This bank is under the supervision of the United States Treasury. LARRY O'ROURKE.

Parking Signs

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Why do the police in the sign shop stick up any old kind of a sign in any old place? For instance, the new signs on Vermont avenue between I street and Thomas Circle. I have been parking there for a couple of years, but the other morning I was confronted with the following official police sign: "For holders of official parking permits and members of Congress."

Now isn't that a pretty section of the city to stick up one of those signs? The only time a Congressman gets on Vermont avenue is when he walks, or gets a 20-cent cab to the Burlington or Portland hotels. As for the official parking permits, it's perfectly okay to shove them up in front of Government buildings. I wonder if the D. C. Commissioners have ever seen anyone go shopping and park his car in front of the House Office Building. Then why do our lawmakers rate a sign on Vermont avnue?

I hope to see these signs removed by the District's high command.

"Make America Safe"

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: It is too late now to remake Europe safe for democracy. America would certainly have no heart now for such a futile and thankless task. Greatly as most all of us detest Hitler and Mussolini, yet the people of their countries having let their constitutional governmets be destroyed and made their beds with dictators, must doubtless lie in them.

But there is still time for us to do a home job of making our own country safe for democracy. We can do this if we resolutely exert ourselves to defeat in the coming elections for Congress every candidate who would be only a yes man. If Congress is not to be saved from complete subservience to the White House, there seems indeed hardly any more use for Congress than there is for the Parliament in Italy or the Reichstag in Germany which practically voted away their own existences. The Post Impressionist

Come, Little Leaves

HE SAT right behind me at school, a stout little boy with eyes bright brown like chestnuts, his fingers perpetually inkstained. I loathed him. His joy was to jab me in the back with a pencil. He would jerk my braids as though they were bell-ropes and he would leer with all malice of the small male when automatically I turned on him in angry protest.

He would stab his inky pen in the bright red apple on my desk. He thumped my head with unnecessary force when he passed up the aisle to the blackboard. Once there, if the teacher's back was turned, he would fix me with a mesmeric eye and pretend he was eating chalk, or he would brush his hair with an eraser.

He had ways, too, of irking me on the playground. But his chief delight lay in soto voce mimicry when I rose to recite. No matter how perfect my preparation he could send me faltering to my seat. My averages went down like a flag down a flagpole.

But in one subject I was invincible. Not even the boy could ruffle me. I had a deadly facility at memorizing the poems that filled our readers and great histrionic delight in repeating them, as was frequently required of us. This was not the case with the boy. For him it was torture. If I had, at that time, any mercy in me, I should have forgiven him everything in pity for his anguish whenever he was called upon to wrestle with the simplest iamb or trochee.

I remember well that autumn afternoon that he became so hopelessly becalmed on a harmless bit of flubdub that began:

"Come, little leaves, said the wind one day,
Come over the meadows with me and play!
Put on your dresses of red and gold,
For summer is gone and the days grow cold!"

I shook in silent mirth at the boy's discomfiture. Somehow I felt repaid for all the humiliation I had suffered at his grimy little hands. I was too immature to reflect that he may have found the words beneath his dignity, as indeed they were.

My cup brimmed when the class advanced blithely to the next poem, leaving the boy still battling with the leaves.

One day after school I decided to make a pilgrimage to a deserted mansion that stood on the outer fringe of town, its gloomy shoulders wrapped in vivid autumn shawls. My mission was to gather some choice leaves which I would later press between the pages of grandfather's ponderous Bible.

I scampered through lanes where sumac burned its gypsy fires, and scuffled through drifts of rustling leaves. The old house was dozing, huddled under its bright trees, and I wandered about the vast yard selecting my specimens. There were sassafrass more scarlet than a cardinal's flight and hickories alight with gold.

Then, going home, I had to pass the house where my tormentor lived. As luck would have it, he was in the yard busily raking leaves, piling them into heaps to be burnt.

When he saw me he dropped his rake, and for a second he stood silent. Suddenly he began capering; he also fluttered his fingers delicately and waved them about. And with false falsetto tones he began to sing "Come Little Leaves," meantime advancing to where, against my will, I stood rooted, dangling my autumn bouquet.

Then, with an abrupt whirl, he snatched up his matches and fired the glowing heaps of foliage, and instantly they were held in the radiant grasp of flames.

Again he advanced on me, leaping like a small vindictive Indian, and plucking my treasured leaves from out my helpless hands, he flung them on the flames.

"Let's Bow Our Heads"

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Can you or anybody else tell me where the glory comes from that is being passed around the Administration bailiwick for the aid given to Europe in the famous surrender to Hitler?

The only thing the Munich treaty did was to assure the democratic nations they must get busy building up a fighting machine that will cope with anything that the Duce-Hitler land grabbers will see fit to turn loose at the first opportunity of gobbling up another weak nation. Much as we should like to keep out of Europe's troubles, we may at least show our disapproval when a strong nation takes advantage of a weaker nation.

Mr. Farley suggests the Roosevelt peace move will have its effect on the election. Here's hoping for a boomerang effect. Let's bow our heads in shame instead of trying to glorify the momentary peace at any price. PERRY F. SKINNER.

The British Astors

NOW AND AGAIN we in this country feel a little impatient with ourselves for submitting to the constant criticism of our manners, habits and all by visiting British authors and lecturers. I am not saying we shouldn't be annoyed, for these chittering sopranos do be a nuisance, but what do you suppose are the feelings of the poor English people toward us, considering that their government has just about been taken over now by a clique of purse-proud snobs exported from the United States—the Astors and the Nancy Langhorne that was?

The Astors struck it rich in the United States and then, finding the fox hunting wasn't so good in this country, and finding the lower classes a little too ready to sound off at the lip, this Astor group high-tailed it for England, where they order such things much better.

IN TIME, with their American money, they bought themselves aristocratic rank, and now they run the good old Times of London, which, in the recent embarrassment with Adolf Hitler, laid down the course to be followed by the British government. They are the so-called Cliveden set, and Nancy obviously possesses, or pretends to, more influence than the Queen herself.

Nancy is a born Virginia fox hunter, one of the old country set, very dashing and spirited and all that, and she was at one time known as the beautiful Nancy Astor, although, from her pictures of late, she is the image of that soul of sweet and purring serenity, Margot Asquith, of whom one British lecturer-at-large in this country once said that she never could be met face to face, as she "hadn't got a face but two profiles stuck together."

NANCY'S IDEA of democracy is to bandy rough and ready repartee with the lower orders of society in political meetings and, although there have been moments when the simple navvies or ditch-diggers of England have hollered "Good old Nancy!" there is none of that nonsense about the simple fraternity of human beings in the Cliveden set.

You wouldn't be finding much of that simple fraternity business among the Astors anywhere, and if it does come to a question of democracy the most democratic experience that has befallen the family in all its interesting life occurred in the American branch when the current John Astor incurred a stepfather who was a second-rate Italian prize fighter named Enzo Fiermonte.

THE INTRICACIES of the family are such that it would be difficult to decide offhand the actual relationship between Enzo Fiermonte, known in American pugilism as Enzo the Ginzo, and Maj. John Jacob Astor, the Mr. Big of the London Times and British foreign policy. Maj. John Jacob Astor and the Cliveden set probably have no impatient desire to establish the relationship, for not only was Enzo the Ginzo a prize fighter, not a fox hunter, but he was once ruled out of a proposed match with Slapsie Maxiebloom for the light heavyweight championship of the world.

The New York Fight Commission ruled out the stepfather of the American John Jacob Astor on the ground that he wasn't a good enough prize fighter, but persons of democratic mind around New York booed the decision as class discrimination. People around here just thought that a stepfather of John Astor was as good as Slapsie Maxie Rosenbloom any day, as long as he behaved himself. We got real democracy over 'ere, mate.

THE BRITISH ASTORS and Col. Charles Lindbergh have been chumming it of late in Great Britain, and after the word came out of Cliveden that the British prime minister would please be good enough to do thus-and-so it developed that the American Lindbergh had dipped his bill into the councils which had led up to this super-royal decree. All this government policy may have been good policy, and it may be that the apostate Americans, of Cliveden in council with Col. Lindbergh, the absentee American, give the poor British a better government than they could give themselves if they possessed the authority as well as the form of government.

But anyone who knows the British will understand that they must have a stuffy sense of fedupness with this imported government, and we in this country will have to admit that our problems with the British lecturers, even the Communists among them, is nothing compared to that of the British people under our expatriate fox hunters.

So 'ere's wery good 'ealth to the poor British, good hunting and all such as that and yoicks, thrice over, to 'er precious grice, Viscountess Nancy Astor, and all 'er kin, to 'oom the poor British are damn welcome.

Ambassador Kennedy Urges Friendship With Dictators

Fears Arms Race Will Bring World Disaster But Defends Rebuilding Of Defenses Assures British Of Peace With U. S.

By the Associated Press.

London, Oct. 19.—United States Ambassador Joseph P. Kennedy declared tonight that democratic and dictatorial countries should bury their differences and seek to re-establish good relations in a world threatened with disaster from a mad armament race.

Speaking at the annual Trafalgar Day dinner of the Navy League, Kennedy praised Prime Minister Chamberlain's "all but superhuman efforts in behalf of peace" in the recent crisis. He said, however, that "only history will show whether or not he made the right decision."

In the light of that crisis, Kennedy said, "it is hard to quarrel with the decision of any nation to build up its military forces; in fact we can only commend such action on the part of those sincerely committed to a policy of peace."

But he expressed the belief that the armaments burden was approaching the point "where it threatens sooner or later to engulf us all in a major disaster."

"For this reason the American people look forward to the day when the nations of the world will realize they must agree upon limitation and reduction of armaments."

"I know that no one nation can stop this vicious circle of misdirected energy, but we are going to have to get together if we are to maintain a standard of living anything like that which we now enjoy. The arms burden in the final anlysis comes out of the livelihood of the workers of the world. It falls with equal weight on the people of every land regardless of the form of government.

"It is true that the democratic and dictator countries have important and fundamental divergencies of outlook which in certain matters go deeper than politics.

"But there is simply no sense, common or otherwise, in letting these differences grow into the unrelenting antagonisms. After all, we have to live together in the same world whether we like it or not."

The United States and Great Britain, he said, in building up their navies, ruled out the possibility of using them against each other and without any sort of alliance "actually welcomed every ship launched by the other."

"Neither navy has assumed any obligation to assist the other in the time of trouble . . . This is not an alliance in any sense of the word, not even a negative alliance.

"It is just common sense.

"So far as Great Britain and the United States are concerned," he said, "the navy is incentive not to discord but to peace."

Turning to merchant shipping, he said the feeling had "not been quite so harmonious" in that field.

He continued, however:

"We have come to an agreement on naval limitations; we are developing transatlantic aviation on a cooperative basis; there is no reason why we should not get together on the merchant marine.

"The United States found it necessary to maintain a modest fleet in foreign trade.

"Our reasons are the same as those which govern the shipping policy of Great Britain. Even more important, so far as we are concerned, is the problem of naval auxiliaries . . . without which the fighting force would be helpless.

"We in America realize that shipping is, for us, an uneconomic industry, and that we should maintain no more vessels than are considered absolutely necessary for the purposes of trade and defense.

"I do not believe Britain has any cause for worry over the maritime policy of the United States.

"Our aims are really very modest.

"We are competitors to be sure, but there is no reason why we cannot be friendly competitors.

"We try to understand your need for a great merchant fleet. We hope that you will try to understand our need for small one."

Ickes, in Hollywood, Warns 'Totalitarianism Is on March'

By the Associated Press.

Los Angeles, Oct. 19.—Secretary Ickes warned an audience here tonight that "totalitarianism is on the march" in the United States as well as in Europe.

"Totalitarianism is insidiously boring from within the temple of our own liberities as well as assaulting it from without," he declared in an address at the Shrine Auditorium under auspices of the Hollywood Council for Democracy.

"Our first line of defense against fascism is a passionate devotion to the American ideal of fraternity and equality of opportunity for all Americans, regardless of origin or mythical descent," he added. "There must be no steerage citizenship in the United States . . .

"It has become one of the elements of our own self-protection that we bring the forces of social justice within our own borders to equilibrium—in time. The state of our law—the state of our sense of social justice—have become almost as important items in our scheme of national defense as armaments themselves. They must be made right—in time.

"That's what Franklin D. Roosevelt, that's what a liberal Democratic Party in the progressive tradition have been trying to do for these past six and one-half years—make those reforms, bring about those changes which will give America complete confidence that we may live in the best possible way for all, not a few, of us to live—before the sands of the hour-glass run out in Europe's hands.

"And no one can escape the responsibility of enlisting on one side or the other in the lines that are forming, as surely as if on the battlefield, to hammer out the answer—either with the liberalism of Franklin D. Roosevelt or with the reaction and the threat of fascism."

"Across the seas a new dark age seems to be well on its way," Ickes said, "more terrible than any in the past because the resources of modern science are at its disposal. The art of war has become the supreme all pervading art of life. No task of military science, however staggering, seems to be beyond the skill and boldness of man, while no task of peaceful adjustment, however small, seems capable of solution by human minds. This is the story of human progress in the year 1938."

British Royalty's Contemplated Visit

THE IDEA that King George VI and his Queen might visit the United States began to be talked about during the summer, and almost certainly the idea was first promoted by unofficial Americans connected with the coming World's Fair in New York. Apparently the matter has now reached the stage where the two governments must decide whether such a visit is to be arranged.

But before deciding they have resorted to the diplomatic device of sending up a trial balloon to see how the winds of opinion are blowing. The Daily Herald, the organ of the Labor opposition in Great Britain, has been allowed to publish an article which raises the question without committing the British government. The official decision will not be made, we may assume, until the significance and the probable consequences of such a visit have been thoroughly examined.

For it goes without saying that a royal visit is an altogether different thing from a private visit, and the ordinary rules of private hospitality do not apply. At any time the visit of a King to another country is an affair of state; at this time in the history of the two English-speaking peoples a visit of this kind would have such world-wide consequences that it cannot be undertaken without the most thorough-going consideration.

FROM OCTOBER to May is a long time, a very long time, measured by the rapidity with which events are happening in the world. But insofar as anyone on this side of the Atlantic can foresee what is going to happen, it is not probable that the coming spring will be a good moment for the King to come to Washington. For unless all the signs are misleading, the American Congress will then be debating a vast project of American armaments, and the mere presence of the King at that time would embarrass him and confuse the debate.

The sponsors of the visit are unquestionably well-meaning individuals, but they have not yet, I fear, begun to realize how profound and far-reaching has been the change in world politics since the first amiable suggestion last summer that it would be pleasant to have the King and Queen come to the World's Fair in New York. But they will begin to realize how epoch-making is the change when they see the outlines of the armament program which this country is now compelled to consider.

And when they see that program, and begin to measure the sacrifices which it will impose upon the American people, they will understand that such sacrifices cannot be asked of the people nor accepted by the people if there is the slightest suspicion that the sacrifices have any other purpose but to protect the vital interests of the American Nation. The arrival of the British King in the midst of this momentous debate would infallibly revive the suspicion of foreign interference, and would disunite and distract American public opinion.

THE BRITISH foreign office and the American Department of State must know out of their long experience that in matters of this kind, the appearances may be even more important than the realities. No responsible person really supposes that President Roosevelt is acting on anything but his own entirely American judgment of what is now required to defend the American position in this hemisphere; and no responsible person imagines that the King and Queen could influence him or that they would even try. But the unprecedented fact of a royal visit in the midst of an unprecedented revision of American policy would infallibly cause popular suspicion throughout the world, and no official disclaimer could allay it entirely.

The suspicion would have much to feed upon. For it is the undeniable fact that the necessity for these new American armaments is the direct consequence of the sudden revelation of British weakness in Europe and in the Far East. The security which the United States has enjoyed since Trafalgar and Waterloo has been shaken, if not lost, at Munich. The British sea power which has hitherto stood as the first line of defense for the Monroe Doctrine is, for the time being, paralyzed by the fact that London, the heart of the empire, is so vulnerable to attack from the air. Though the British navy is still afloat, it is from an American point of view no longer the navy that it was. And for that reason, unless and until the British recover their power and their independence, Munich must be regarded by Americans as one of the decisive, though bloodless, battles that shape the history of the world.

WE ARE COMPELLED not only to restate the Monroe Doctrine but, for the first time in our whole experience, to maintain the principles of that doctrine without even the indirect help of the British navy. That is why armaments on a scale never previously considered are being projected so suddenly, and for most men, so unexpectedly. But though these armaments are forced upon America by the weakness of Great Britain, they cannot and must not, under any circumstances, be regarded as an effort on our part to remedy the weakness of Great Britain. They are, on the contrary, based upon the recognition that for the time being, perhaps forever, the United States no longer depend upon British power.

As long as this is the position a British royal visit could only cause misunderstanding here and abroad. Here it would falsify the reasons for American armament and make it appear, though it would be entirely untrue, that this is another 1917 and that we are arming to save the British Empire. Though we must most sincerely hope that the British Empire can be saved from the mortal dangers which confront it, the fact is that the empire can be saved only by the exertions of the British people. Even the announcement of a royal visit while the British are still hesitating as to what they are prepared to do would only serve to give British public opinion a false sense of security.

OUTSIDE THE English-speaking world the effect would be equally ambiguous and misleading. It would be like the effect produced in Europe last August by the reports of the spectacular and excessive intimacy with which Ambassador Kennedy and Mr. Chamberlain were consulting. Those reports had a most unfortunate effect upon Czech and upon French opinion. For they suggested that America and Britain were co-operating in a kind of understanding which, in fact, did not exist, and so these advertised consultations contributed to stiffening Czech resistance when there was still time for a compromise. They were, whether or not that was the intention, a kind of bluff which misled everyone but Hitler himself.

A royal visit to the White House in the present crisis of Europe would be the continuation on a grander scale of this very diplomacy that has failed so disastrously.

WE HAVE PASSED through a season of amateur diplomacy during which the advice of experienced diplomats has been disregarded at every crucial point. Since the world has reverted openly to power politics, the democracies will need men who are educated in the history of power politics.

Now in an educated diplomacy a state visit by royalty is not something undertaken to promote vague popular good will. The visit of a King has only one meaning in the international world of great powers—to confirm publicly an alliance which has already been formed. If there is no alliance, and there is none between Britain and America, then the visit of the King would be a mistake. It would be an advertisement of weakness rather than a demonstration of solidarity and strength, and so it would be interpreted in the quarters that matter most. It would mislead the innocent without impressing the mighty.

FOR ALL THESE reasons it seems unlikely that the unofficial proposals for a visit will be adopted officially when the two governments have fully considered the matter. They are much more likely to wait before committing themselves, to wait until the British people and the American people, each in its own way, has drawn its own independent conclusions from the Munich peace.

Contraband?

Mae West, Carole Lombard, Ginger Rogers and several other comely American cinema stars are sought by the Japanese army. More accurately, the production of the stars in person was demanded by several Japanese soldiers in Shankhai.

It all happened at the American-endowed St. John's University, Shanghai, which is situated in the Settlement on the border of Japanese-occupied Chinese areas. Recently two Japanese soldiers on one of their frequent "inspection tours" visited the university.

They noticed several pictures of Hollywood stars on the walls of a room formerly occupied by a student. They immediately demanded of the Chinese caretaker conducting them that the women be produced, and produced quickly. The caretaker tried to explain, to no avail.

Finally, the Japanese left, and the caretaker heaved a sigh of relief. The same pair arrived on the scene again accompanied by ten additional Japanese soldiers, who insisted that the Hollywood beauties be produced. After much explanation, the Japanese soldiers finally retired.—From "China at War."

The Federal Diary

DR. LYMAN J. BRIGGS, Bureau of Standards director, tells us that a promotions-from-within policy has been established definitely in the bureau. Congratulations to him.

The bureau, Dr. Briggs hastened to say, always has had an eye to promoting its own personnel in every instance where the practice seemed to justify the best interests of the bureau.

But previously the word that shifts were to be made or vacancies filled went only to the division or office heads. Now such notices are posted on the bulletin board so all the personnel can see and try, if they choose, for promotion.

The United Government Employees, Inc., organization of colored Federal employes headed by Edgar G. Brown, issues an extra of the U. G. E. Bulletin with a screaming headline: "U. G. E. President Fights to Protect Our Womanhood Against Police Brutality." It is the organization's official statement of protest against the occurrences which ensued when 30,000 aspiring charwomen made a rush for 2,000 civil service application forms at the Fourth Police Precinct Station last week, a situation that resulted in the arrest of President Brown. He has protested to President Roosevelt.

RANDOM LINES: Roland Clark, whose book of 70 wildfowl etchings will be published today by the Derrydale Press, of New York City, is the designer of the 1938 Federal duck hunting stamp; he is known in town . . . Do you own any land in the recently devastated areas of New England. If so, the Forest Service wants an easement so its men can extend fire prevention work to the privately owned areas. It is a real situation, troubling the Forestry office here.

The office sent Axel Lindh and a dozen other foresters to the storm-struck country where, incidentally, 4,000,000 feet of timber is on the ground, some of it already wasted. The foresters, fearful that fire will break out in this mass of tumbled timber, have established fire prevention devices on all the publicly owned areas, but are finding themselves unable to operate on the privately owned land.

Much of this is in absentee-ownership. Charles Randall, of the office here, now asks these absentee owners to write immediately to the United States Forest Service Emergency Office, Federal Building, Boston, and give easements to enable the foresters to go to work.

'Controlled' Prices

Futile 5-Year Experiment

THIS WEEK occurs a five-year anniversary, from which America can draw lessons of high public importance.

On Sunday, October 22, 1933, President Roosevelt delivered the third of his "fireside talks." He had been in office eight months and eighteen days. During those months, the initial rebound from the extreme bottom of depression had taken place. To this Mr. Roosevelt alluded. He recited the change in terms of unemployment. He said that when he took office:

"There were about 10,000,000 of our citizens who earnestly, and in many cases hungrily, were seeking work and could not get it."

THAT WAS the number, Mr. Roosevelt said, when he took office March 4, 1933. He then pointed out the improvement that had taken place during his eight months in office.

"In the short space of a few months, I am convinced that at least 4,000,000 have been given employment—or, saying it another way, 40 per cent of those seeking work have found it."

That condition, 6,000,000 unemployed, was the condition five years ago this week. Subsequently, as all know, the number of unemployed increased. Today the number of unemployed is about what it was the day Mr. Roosevelt took office, 10,000,000.

TURNING FROM unemployment to the prices of farm crops, Mr. Roosevelt made a confident prediction, an exultant promise. He said:

"I do not hesitate to say, in the simplest, clearest language of which I am capable, that, although the prices of many products of the farm have gone up and although many farm families are better off than they were last year, I am not satisfied either with the amount or the extent of the rise, and that it is definitely a part of our policy to increase the rise and to extend it to those products which have as yet felt no benefit."

Clinching his affirmation of promise, Mr. Roosevelt said:

"If we cannot do this one way, we will do it another; do it we will."

	Oct., 1933 Cents	Oct., 1938 Cents
Cotton	9.55	8.28

To recite all this merely as a prediction not made good, an undertaking not fulfilled, would be futile. To use it as merely an occasion for jeering at Mr. Roosevelt and his Secretary of Agriculture, Mr. Wallace, would be no contribution to public usefulness whatever.

But the exhibit calls for the most serious study. If the failure of most farm crops to rise (and also the failure of employment to increase) is studied with sufficient thoroughness, and also freedom from partisanship, with due weight to all the qualifications, it will furnish answers to vital questions.

IT WILL GIVE the answer about Mr. Wallace's intricate series of farm measures and practices. However, for that answer we do not need to search—the bedevilled Mr. Wallace himself knows the answer already, and is about to try something new. He has reorganized his department, he proposes a "two-price" system for farm crops, and he proposes revival of the processing tax. Whether these devices would be more successful than the past ones is a large question. An official who has tried many experiments without success is under a heavy burden of proof when, tacitly acknowledging lack of success, he proposes yet more experiments.

To the fact that farm prices are lower today than five years ago, it is, of course, no answer to say that farm income has been increased. For the increase of farm income has consisted of subsidies paid by the Government. And it was not subsidies that Mr. Roosevelt promised to raise. It was prices he promised to raise.

THE PROBLEM—failure of farm prices to rise, accompanied by failure of employment to increase—covers more than the Administration's farm measures. It raises questions about Mr. Roosevelt's monetary measures, and about his measures in the field of business.

This table of prices, if studied thoroughly and impartially, will give the answer about the whole theory and practice of "planned economy." The study should be made by some person or group who are free from partisanship, who will give due weight to all factors and whose conclusions will command public confidence.

Old Man Price is a tough customer. Sooner or later he usually has his own way. Not all the king's horses nor all the king's men, not even the head of a great nation, with practically unlimited power and resources, can push him around.

Skilled Workers Too Few for War, Johnson Warns

Detroit, Oct. 19 (AP).—Louis Johnson, Assistant Secretary of War, gave warning in an address here today that a shortage of skilled labor threatens to impede mobilization of America for national defense in an emergency.

He spoke before the Wire Association, which is holding its annual meeting here in connection with the National Metals Congress, and warned the manufacturers they were failing to develop an adequate supply of skilled workmen to meet the increased demands war would create.

"All American industry which may be called upon to produce munitions of war is confronted with the same problem," he said.

Mary Haworth's Mail

Deliberately Excluded From Reception List, Yet Asked to Wedding, Woman Wonders Whether to Go

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: I have received an invitation to a wedding. The bride-to-be is the sister of a close friend of mine. The bridegroom's sister is also a very good friend. I have known the bride and bridegroom-to-be quite well for several years. But this is my problem: I am not invited to the reception. I sent a wedding gift, which I wanted to do. But since sending it, I have been told that the bride's mother refused to send me an invitation to the reception.

The sister of the young man told me this, as she was embarrassed because I was not invited. The bride's mother has received me in her home as a week-end guest several times. I can see no reason for her actions toward me. She has cut me short on the telephone more than once, but I overlooked this as I thought she might be upset over something.

Should I go to the wedding? I feel slighted, as several of my friends, who are their friends also, will be going. I really feel as if I should have been asked to both. Was I wrong in sending the gift? I hope this does not seem too ridiculous, because it has me stumped.

LET-DOWN.

The Retort Courteous

DEAR LET-DOWN: If it is indeed true that the bride's mother feels so unkindly toward you as to make a deliberate point of crossing you off the list of desirable reception guests, it seems to me the only possible retort-courteous is for you to remain away from the wedding as well. After all, she will be something of a co-hostess at that event, and you are justified in assuming that your presence in the larger and less exclusive company would be no less disagreeable to her than your presence at the reception would be. Considerations of pride and delicacy (in the sense of subtle, fastidious tact) should prompt you to bow yourself entirely out of the picture.

It was not wrong for you to send the wedding gift. It was a fortunate and gracious gesture. Aside from the fact that an invitation to a wedding customarily is acknowledged with a gift for the newlyweds, it was entirely suitable and natural that you, as a long-time associate of the contracting parties and a close friend of their respective sisters, should express good will with a wedding present. Not to have sent a gift because you were not invited to the reception might have been construed by mercenary minds as meaning that you withheld a gift because you felt you wouldn't be getting your money's worth in return. M. H.

Romantic Dilemma

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: For the past six weeks I have been going with a man seven years my senior. The other night he confessed his love for me. He is a fine, clean-minded person who neither smokes, drinks nor swears, but he is jealously inclined. Unfortunately, I do not love him, although I am terribly fond of him. I do love someone else. He has never asked me and I have never told him of that love.

Should I continue seeing him, knowing that I don't love him? I enjoy being with him and we have grand times together. I don't know what I would do if I had to give him up, as his friendship means a lot to me. But perhaps if I were to call quits he might find someone else. Shall I give him up or try to keep what I have? EIGHTEEN.

When Rejecting Love

DEAR EIGHTEEN: Since the man has lifted the veil of reticence to declare his love for you, pay him the compliment of reciprocal frankness and let him decide for himself—in the light of truth—whether he wishes to break off and try his luck elsewhere. Tell him what you have said here—that you are "terribly fond of him," but do not love him; that you do love someone else; that you enjoy being with him and have had grand times with him; that his friendship has meant much to you and that you would be desolated without it; but that you do not feel it is fair to him for you to cling selfishly to it, when friendship is the most you have to offer and when he might, by having done with you and looking further, find a girl who is more deserving of and more responsive to his love.

If his expression of love is sincere, and you cannot return it in kind, the least you can do by way of appreciation and reparation is to give him the truth, the whole truth and nothing but the truth, stated in the kindliest possible language. You should lift yourself above the petty level of selfish coquetry in rejecting his love, doing it in such a way as to substantiate and affirm his good opinion not only of you, but of womankind in general.

It is rather unnecessarily brutal to reject a man's friendship because one cannot return his love, and should only be undertaken in instances where the man gives evidence of supposing his devotion invests him with certain rights and privileges where the lady is concerned. When he shows the mature judgment and self-containment to follow the woman's lead in the relationship; when he seems disposed to accept friendship in lieu of love, he should in all kindness be conceded that much. But he should never be kept in doubt as to the lady's intentions toward him. M. H.

Miss Haworth will be glad to help you in solving your problems. Write her in care of The Post Woman's Page.

Modern Woman Wages War On 'Spare Tires' and Hips

Also Exercises for Firm Molded Arms
Flattening Stomach Is a Problem
Stretching and Twisting Aid Waist Line

By Ida Jean Kain.

WOMEN have taken to exercise like they took to doing their hair up. It used to be that only the very ambitious—and, of course, the physical education majors—took exercise, but now practically every woman has a set of ups and downs.

Underweights combine exercise with a diet to pick up curves. Overweights combine diet and exercise to control their curves. And the normal weights have taken up exercise because that is the thing to do. The only explanation of this new popularity of calisthenics is that the average woman knows she can have a good figure and she intends to have it. She is not going to have a tire to spare, or let herself look dumpy and older . . . not when a little exercise can put a stop to the loss of her figure.

Streamlining, however, calls for exactness in the selection of the position and movements that will slim inches off the hips, whittle down the waist, or give a firm, molded look to the arms.

Use Triceps' Muscles

In order to beautify the arms, your exercises must effectually use the triceps muscles, which are located on the backs of the upper arms and are seldom used in everyday activities. To exercise these muscles, the best position is with the arms held at shoulder level either straight out in front or out at the sides.

You have a chocie of three methods for slimming the hips: Rolling, spanking and leg swinging. Rolling smooths the hips, spanking the hips against the floor breaks down the flabby fat tissue and firms the contours and leg swinging wears off the excess inches. For reduction of the back portion of the hips, the best exercise is to swing the leg high up in back. Move the leg back and forth like a pendulum, but have the backward swing as high as possible.

A little different technique is required to use the inner and outer thigh muscles and smooth out bulges or hollows along the thighline. It is a side-to-side swing of the legs which exercise these muscles, so swing the leg across in front of the body, out to the side, and back across. An effective exercise is to flax one knee and describe circles with the kneepoint, circling in both directions.

Flatten the Tummy

The tummy is apt to be the portion of the figure most in need of streamlining, for the entire routine of living tends to weaken these muscles. To flatten the tummy, lie on the floor and contract the abdominal muscles by pulling the small of the back down to the floor, or assume the long-sitting position and pull the small of the back flat against the wall. On the hands and knees and in stretching to full extension the abdominal muscles are reflexly contracted. As you know, the waistline is slimmed down with twisting, stretching and sideward bending.

Doctor Blames Soft Living As Heart Ailment Cause

By Logan Clendening, M. D.

We hear on all sides today of the increase in heart disease, and that this is due to the high pressure of modern civilization.

Such terms are misleading. It is not so much heart disease but arterial disease that is more conspicuous than formerly in the tables of vital statistics. I refer to such arterial accidents as apoplexy and angina. And whether these are brought on by the so-called modern high pressure of civilization is highly debatable.

No, the real cause of the increase in the arterial diseases is that modern civilization is so soft that more men and women are living to an age where these conditions come on.

Any man or woman over 50 may have a pang in the heart and hear the diagnosis of angina pectoris. It is true that when that occurs, the best thing is to take it easy, reduce the pressure of living and retire to the armchair for a spell. It is really a very pleasant life, and usually lasts for a long time.

Tobacco, unfortunately, should be stopped. It has a bad effect on the arteries to the heart which are involved in angina.

Coffee, on the contrary, is a good thing. It increases the circulation through the heart without putting any undue strain on the arteries. Tea has the same effect. Authorities are not agreed as to the effects of alcoholic beverages, but most are inclined to think they do no harm.

The Gentler Sex

How to Be Elegant

"Today, ladies in our little series of chats on personality, we will discuss how you may follow the season's trend toward elegance. As of course you know, it has now become woman's first duty to be elegant. Clothes are elegant, coiffures are elegant, houses are elegant, food is elegant, people—at least all the smart people—are elegant. YOU too can be elegant. But how?

"I am now going to make a few simple suggestions for the business girl or housewife on a limited budget. Even though you may have but one evening dress, go to few parties, do not let that deter you. You can still be regally magnificent, quaintly romantic around the office, about the home. Remember if the El Morocco and Cliveden sets can be elegant, you can too. If you are a business woman, try these tricks:

"If you cannot afford a mink coat have a muff made of mink, and every morning pin on it a fresh bouquet of violets, or better still an orchid. It will do wonders for your old suit or coat."

"Get some antique jewelry to wear with your rusty last year's black crepe—something in heavy old gold or dull silver with intricate carving or set with precious stones.

"Catch up your back hair with a pink comb set with aquamarines. Wear a red feather boa about your neck to protect yourself from drafts as you sit at your typewriter, and also to give you 'that period look.'

"Tie a colorful chiffon scarf gipsy fashion over your curls when you go out in the hail to the drinking fountain or stick some magenta ostrich plumes in your hair when you go into the boss to take dictation.

"Change your type daily by alternating a black Chantilly lace jacket adorned with sequins with a sculptured angel jacket of white satin embroidered in gold over your suit blouse.

"Be soignee, regal or languorous as you glide about your office. Remember that it is never elegant to hurry.

"Now, then, here are a few ideas for the housewife who should find it quite simple to be elegant even in her kitchen:

"Get a delicate pink maribou jacket to slip on over your housedress as you are getting breakfast.

"For answering the doorbell to peddlers, tradesmen and neighborhood children, stick some jeweled aigrettes in your hair, don a paillette snood, or put some gay little nosegays on your house slippers to give the elegant touch.

"Try a pair of luxurious velvet pajamas richly embroidered in sequins for doing your marketing.

"For receiving the grocery boy, put on a dog collar of pearls or try a spray of jeweled flowers in your coiffure in the Louis Philippe tradition.

"For greeting your husband at night try a headdress with a draped harem veil, or throw a feather cape over your smock, or set a little pillbox of precious Persian lamb with turquoise ostrich plumes on top of your head, or put on some fragil lace mitts and carry a glittering beaded bag or an ostrich muff, or do any of those countless little things that dramatize your personality and create the period influence.

"Finally, remember it is the little detail that counts in trying to be elegant."

D. C. Vacationer Finds Nazi Style Monotonous

German Clothes 'Dull' - War Crisis Felt French Maintain Dress

By Genevieve Reynolds.

Thoughts of French women might have dwelt on the horrors of war during the recent crisis in Europe. But their conversation was breezy and gay—their appearance that of elegance. Only the tenseness around the eyes hinted of unusual happenings. And while Hitler stalked across the Rhineland to meet Chamberlain to decide the fate of Czechoslovakia—and possibly that of all Europe, Parisian women bedecked themselves in their gayest finery and talked of fashions. German women thought and talked nothing of personal appearance, and kept a grim, solemn expression.

This is the observation of Miss Kathleen Murphy, of 3630 New Hampshire avenue, who was in Paris, Berlin and London during the recent war scare, and who returned to Washington last week after an extensive vacation tour. Miss Murphy, who is employed at the National Archives, and who is a member of the National Historical Association, was traveling down the Rhineland at the time Hitler was journeying to Munich to meet Chamberlain.

In her association with both urban and rural women of Germany, she found a complete lack of style consciousness and pride in personal appearance. Even feminine Nazi uniforms were worn without snap, she pointed out.

Finds Nazi Dress Dull

"Not once did I see a well-dressed German woman," said Miss Murphy. "Their clothes were stolid and dull without any imaginative touch to relieve their monotony. They were sturdy and practical—reflecting the wearers' personalities.

"War—not styles and beauty—were the absorbing thoughts and grim chatter of these women. All they could think of and talk was the inevitable greater destiny of Europe at any price. 'The dominating Germany,' as they expressed it."

This, however, was not the case of the French women, who showed no slackening down in their usual chic appearance. Despite the dread and uncertainty that harassed their minds, they wore dashing, impractical hats, dripped silver fox furs, kept a smile on their faces and continued to radiate charm.

"Extreme Styles"

Discussing the Parisian women's undeniable chic, Miss Murphy said: "They wear extreme styles and make-up. And they strive for glamour rather than practicality. Frills, furbelows and cocky hats with upshooting feathers and plumes are part of their daytime wardrobes."

"However, the illusion of perfect beauty and style is ruined by the heavy-looking shoes. The French woman forgets about chic below the waistline, but she emphasizes smart coiffures, hats and facial make-up."

A deep safron make-up was the French woman's first choice, Miss Murphy reported. This made her look like a 'high yellow,'" she said. "Her eyes were heavily made up with mascara and eye shadow during the day as well as night. However, the Parisian woman never makes up or repairs her make-up in public. She seems to have found the solution for keeping the make-up on and looking freshly done throughout the day or evening.

"All the Parisian women seemed to be blondes of the bleached variety. This is probably just a fad of theirs now for the French woman is not afraid of fads. In fact they adopt whatever fad they like in regard to dress and make-up so long as they consider it smart."

Good Manners Win Friends

HOW LIKE Betty to make a break at the football game—and she was so thrilled when Jud asked her to go!

Betty's applause for the team opposing Jud's is no great crime. Nor was it so terrible not to rise for the school anthem. But it's such little etiquette boners which keep her on the edges of social life, never in the thick of it.

At dances she lets herself get stuck. At restaurants her ordering amuses the waiter, annoys her beau. On home dates she never knows how to welcome callers.

Naturally, Betty is tenth choice on everybody's list. A pity because smooth manners are easy to learn.

When you find yourself grimly stepping dance after dance with one boy, you can break it up by suggesting he take you to your boy escort. Gently hint that the boys might change partners.

And if your escort's not in sight, excuse yourself for complexion repairs. Then join a gay group—and see if a new partner doesn't pop up.

At restaurants you look charmingly poised if you remember yours is a following role. Follow the waiter to your table. Wait for your beau to ask what you want, then tell your preference to him, not to the waiter.

On home dates be smoothly cordial with "I'm so glad to see you." Suggest to your beau where to put his hat and coat but don't put them away yourself. Introduce him, "Mother—this is Tom Smith," not the other way around.

A Woman's New York

By Alice Hughes.

New York, Oct. 19.

WE HAVE now had our official annual shock for 1938; the same being the arrival of Miss Greta Gustafsen, better known as Garbo, from a summer in foreign parts. No matter how often this rite happens, I always get a fine case of goose pimples as I behold the sublime Swede without the spangles and war-paint

ALICE HUGHES.

We are so used to seeing this remarkable woman, well-dosed with studio glamor, and looking breathtakingly beautiful in the long series of close-ups which are the staple of Garbo films. And then, when we clamber aboard the Kungsholm and behold this long-time idol in civilian clothes and au natural face, the bump is pretty severe. Her face is adorned only with the historic phony eye-lashes, an dher long golden bob is far from neat. She wears a mannish, gray-blue suit, with heavy gray lisle stockings and pumps of blue suede. Garbo looks like practically anything but a screen star who for 13 years has been thrilling the world with hear beauty and undoubted genius.

The interview is most routine. No marriage, no children desired with the world in its present tragic state. Her phobia for reporters still rages in her buzzim. "I might like you as friends if you didn't haunt me all the time," she tells us. Garbo keeps having thirtieth birthdays, but she is probably nudging 35. And although she has been receiving us for the past year or two, she still remains a grade A enigma. Literally adored by thousands down the years, the woman remains silent, cold, the most perfect solitary among the public figures of our day. I'd give a lot to know just what warms her, brings her to life, gives softness to that face and sparkle to that fascinating face. But I never shall.

GIRL ABOUT TOWN—My distinguished colleague, Eleanor Roosevelt, has been having some times here lately. No wonder she was annoyed at the honor guard of six flatfeet in mufti who met her at the depot the other day, for it was all against her New York practice. When she comes to town she really enjoys her freedom, and I am used to see her striding rapidly around the busiest streets, drawing only an occasional smile or bow. The other night she had a happy visit backstage at the John Golden Theater with her old friend Fred Stone, now celebrating his fiftieth year in show business by starring in "Lightnin'."

Is black or brown genuine lizard. Also classic pump, high heel.

Frances Parkinson Keyes Returns From Europe

40,000 Words Written on Next Book
Author Attended Nuremberg Rally
Lecture Tour Here Will Begin Soon

By Hope Ridings Miller,
The Post Society Editor.

BACK FROM EUROPE with 40,000 words written on her next novel and a wealth of colorful impressions gleaned recently in Poland, France and Germany, Frances Parkinson Keyes now looks forward to a winter filled with endless activity. As in several seasons in the past, Washington will be her headquarters. She has re-opened her apartment at the Monmouth and has resumed work on the National Historical Magazine, which she has so ably edited the past year. Before the winter is over she hopes to finish her novel and in between times, she will be off here and there on lecture tours.

As indefatigable as the First Lady herself, Mrs. Keyes scarcely has one job out of the way until another is planned. And so, last spring, when her most recent book, "Parts Unknown," was launched at a large tea given by Mrs. George Barnett and attended by scores of notables, including Mrs. Roosevelt, nobody was surprised to learn Mrs. Keyes soon would be off to Europe, gathering material for another novel.

TRUTH IS, however, her trip included much more than a novelist's search for background and inspiration. Traveling in Germany last month, she went down to Nuremberg during the Nazi party rally and had a ring-side seat at the most exciting event in recent times. She has little to say about the situation in central Europe. Whatever she believes in that connection probably will find its way into print under her own by-line. But she observed history being made from the platform at many gatherings and heard Hitler speak before vast audiences several times.

Her sojourn in Germany followed a visit in Poland, where she spent some time in Danzig and then proceeded to Marienburg and Konigsburg in East Prussia for brief stays. While in that section of Europe she visited Count and Countess Dohna for several days in their magnificent old castle and made it her headquarters while she collected material for her book.

ALTHOUGH MRS. KEYES has been in Europe many times, this trip was the first in which she did most of her traveling by automobile and plane. At the conclusion of her visit with Count and Countess Dohra, she returned to Danzig for a few days, later motoring from there across the Polish Corridor to Berlin. In the latter city she had the opportunity to go to Nuremberg and was off by motor again.

The scene in that fabulous city was one she will never forget. Residential districts in both town and suburbs were crowded with foreign visitors, all of whom were given every possible attention. Shortly after her arrival there, she ran across Senator and Mrs. Claude Pepper, who also were on hand to see the rally.

BACK TO BERLIN by plane; then to Cologne and on to Amiens went Mrs. Keyes, and finally to Paris to spend several days. Arriving there when the threat of war was at its height, she remained a week ("a very hectic one," she reports) before going to Liseux, the quaint French town where she gathered material for her book, "Written in Heaven," a few years ago.

By the time she got to Liseux, war fears had subsided. While there, she witnessed two celebrations in which she was particularly interested. One marked the hundredth anniversary of the founding of the Carmelite convent; the other observed the fiftieth anniversary of St. Therese's entry there.

Returning to America on the Normandie, Mrs. Keyes stayed in New York a few days before coming on to her apartment here. She has not yet found time to go up to her New Hampshire home, but hopes to get away for a brief stay there early next month. Her lecture tours, which this year will take her both north and south, will begin in a few weeks.

French Attache There

On the eve of the Inter-American Horse Show, the members of the Chilean equestrian team were feted again, with the Air Attache of the Chilean Embassy, Squadron Leader Ismael Sarasua and Senora de Sarasua as their hosts at a cocktail party yesterday afternoon.

All the returns aren't in yet, but with the fete yesterday, it begins to look as if the Chileans were "one up" on the Mexican team as regards the number of parties they've tucked under their Sam Browne belts since arriving in Washington.

Guests were received in the living room of the Sarasua's home on Massachusetts avenue. Senora de Sarasua was attired in a black floor-length gown, trimmed with a gold belt, and her husband wore his Chilean uniform. Also in olive drab were the members of the team, Maj. Eduardo Yanez, Capt. Pelayo Izurrieta, Capt. Guillermo Castro and Lieut. Hernan Vigil.

Most prominent among the guests was the Chilean Ambassador, Manuel Trucco, who was accompanied by the Misses Marta and Rebeca Trucco and his son, Manuel Trucco, jr. About The Town

With Dudley Harmon

IF YOU HEAR people muttering about "edges" and "eights" in the near future, don't be surprised, as they are probably mentally practicing for the new skating club which is being organized under the direction of Mrs. Creighton Peet. All the pale people who complain that it's impossible to get enough exercise in Washington in the winter will be pleased to know that Mrs. Peet is already hard at work getting up a committee and that the first meeting will take place very shortly.

DUDLEY HARMON.

The club will be modeled like those of Baltimore and New York and the new rink on Connecticut avenue will be the scene of operations. It is hoped that members will be able to meet on Sunday mornings, and possibly another morning and afternoon each week. Fancy skaters will work under a professional and the more advanced will form a dancing class and skim over the ice in waltzes, tangoes and even rhumbas.

A REPUBLICAN STRONGHOLD completely wedged in by Government property is the recently completed home of Mr. and Mrs. Richard Sanger. An ardent worker for the Republican National Committee, Mr. Sanger has christened his home, just over the District line in Maryland, Ringside, short for "Ringside at the Greatest Show on Earth."

This fascinating house, which manages to be modern without looking like a factory or seeming to rise up and hit you in the face, was the scene of a small and very congenial cocktail party yesterday when the Sangers entertained in honor of John Farr Simmons, Charge d'Affaires of our legation in Canada. Mr. Simmons is in Washington for a few days after attending a reunion at Princeton.

SUCH whimsical Republican touches as a steel design below the mantelpiece of the stock market curve since the 'twenties are among the features of the residence. Almost breath-taking is the scene from the drawing room, where an enormous plate-glass window, extending almost the entire length of one wall, looks out onto a terrace surrounded by oak trees and facing a reservoir in the distance. To sit in the white iron furniture on the terrace of an autumn evening and see the light reflected on the water beyond the trees is guaranteed to make one feel like the leading lady in a Frederick Lonsdale drama.

Deep blue curtains, of heavy velvet, extend to the floor on either side of the enormous window. All the furniture, which harmonizes with the thick white rug on the drawing room floor, was made to order. The doorknobs—enormous things of polished steel—came from Sweden. The wallpaper is a combination of Japanese grass and silk, which sounds strange yet is completely lovely.

ALL THE ROOMS have a certain restful quality, but the dining room so much so that one can't imagine ever getting angry or worried in such surroundings. A completely streamlined chandalier casts diffused light from the ceiling; the maple furniture is beautifully simple, and the walls are hung with floor-length curtains of grey and pale chartreuse.

One of the most interesting bits in an unusually successful house is the world map which the architect has done on the wall in the study. Fortunately he was working on it at the time Hitler took over Austria, so could bring that part up to date, but he had completed the job before the Czechoslovak boundaries were changed.

Most of the guests yesterday were seeing this house for the first time, although the Sangers have been working on it for two years.

Among those who came, saw and admired were Mr. and Mrs. Charles Darlington, Mrs. Darlington wearing a russet jacket and hat to match with her tweed skirt; Mr. and Mrs. John Carter Vincent and Mrs. Theodore Achilles; Eugene O'Dunne, Hugh Cumming, Walter White, Mr. and Mrs. Creighton Peet, and one or two others.

As soon as the elections are over, Mr. and Mrs. Sanger will sail for a vacation on the island which, with a group of friends, they own in the Virgin Island group.

Women's Club Opens Home

A white birthday cake with 25 candles marked the silver anniversary of the Woman's Club of Chevy Chase yesterday at the first business meeting held in its new clubhouse. The birthday luncheon was the first meal served from the new kitchen, and the club's new silver and dishes were used. George A. Finch, assistant director of Carnegie Endowment for International Peace, addressed the club following the luncheon.

Tables were set up in the auditorium. More than 500 club members were served on the new club china, white with the monogram W. C. C. C. in colonial red.

As Mrs. Joseph Travers Maguire, the president, cut the birthday cake she asked all the members to make a wish for the club. She and other members of the executive board were seated on the stage. Mrs. Harry W. Price was chairman of the luncheon.

The afternoon program included the presentation of a handsome American flag to the club by Mrs. Eugene Stevens as a gift from the past presidents. This was followed by the pledge of allegiance to the flag and piano solos by Louis Potter, who directs the club chorus.

Gifts for the new clubhouse announced by Mrs. Maguire included andirons, given by Mrs. Alexander McC. Ashley, a past president; a Colonial clock and pictures, by Mrs. Paul Plitt; a glass bowl by Mrs. Edmund Erk; an upright piano by Mrs. Charles O. Hardy, and a flag by Mrs. Harrison Fitts.

Reports of committees were given, including those of Mrs. Frank A. Linzel, president of the building company; Mrs. Frederick Kerby, of the $8,500 committee which raised that amount for the building fund since April; and Mrs. Fitts, chairman of the house committee. All were given a vote of appreciation for their work in connection with the building.

Each member who attended the luncheon brought a book for the club library, bearing her name as the donor. Mrs. James C. Rogers, as librarian, will be in charge on club days, when members may borrow books.

That of Christian Hines is near old St. Paul's Church, where the members of the society will meet at 3 o'clock. Mrs. Frederick A. Fernald, chairman of the memorial markers committee, will be in charge of the ceremonies, assisted by Mrs. William A. Hartman, the chaplain, and Mrs. Lane Schofield, president.

U. yesterday, at the closing business session of its annual convention, passed a resolution to "stand unalterably for prohibition of the liquor traffic in the District, and to join other civic and welfare agencies in securing as many prohibitions as possible within the liquor laws and regulations."

The resolution also deplored "expensive window advertisements of liquor; radio advertising which comes into our homes, and the sale of intoxicating liquor near churches and schools."

Dr. Peter Marshall, of New York Avenue Presbyterian Church, who addressed the convention last night, denounced the politicians who had promised there would be no saloons after repeal and then had permitted such conditions as now exist. He also took issue with Emily Post on the matter of declining liquor without obvious disapproval of drinking.

Mrs. Ida W. Ramsey, who presided at the convention, held in First Congregational Church, was re-elected president of the District organization. Other officers for the coming year are Mrs. Earl Willey, first vice president; Mrs. Jennie Esmond Wright, second vice president; Mrs. Belle T. Pickett, corresponding secretary; Mrs. Darrell C. Crain, treasurer; Mrs. Manuel Kline, recording secretary, and Mrs. Marie W. Brinley, assistant recording secretary.

In the afternoon, life certificates were presented to the following members: Mrs. Walter Lowdermilk, Mrs. E. S. Henry, Mrs. James G. Trimble, Mrs. Annie Barnhart, Mrs. Mary A. Bradburn, Mrs. Emma G. Knaub, Mrs. Eva Rollinson, Miss Charlotte Pound, Alton B. Carty, a memorial certificate to Dr. Charles H. Butler; other life certificates to Mrs. Mary E. Arnold, Mrs. William W. Watts, Mrs. Helena Butler, Mrs. Morris Kile, Mrs. Edna E. Rankin and Mrs. Navin F. Ladd.

Bedtime Story

By Thornton W. Burgess.

The Decision

You cannot hope to always win;
Accept defeat with cheerful grin.
—Reddy Fox.

Reddy Fox looked at Mrs. Reddy. Mrs. Reddy looked at Reddy. Such a funny look as each gave the other. Johnny Chuck had disappeared from almost under their very noses. He had disappeared in the ground. He had entered his own house by way of a back door the existence of which neither had suspected. Reddy Fox began to dig furiously among the ferns that had hidden that back door. But he dug for only a minute. He did it because he just had to do something to give expression to his feelings. What were they? Chiefly disappointment, but some anger was mixed with it, I suppose. There often is when a great disappointment comes suddenly and unexpectedly.

Reddy stopped digging as abruptly as he had started. He turned and looked at Mrs. Reddy with such a sheepish expression that she grinned.

"Do you feel better, my dear?" she asked.

Reddy said that he did, and he really did. That frantic digging had been a sort of safety valve for his feelings. You know that when there is too much steam in a boiler a valve opens and lets enough steam escape so that the boiler will not explode. Feelings are much like steam sometimes in that they simply must find expression.

"It is our own fault," said Mrs. Reddy mildly.

Reddy nodded. "Quite so," he replied. "We should have known of this back door of his. I don't see how we came to overlook it."

"He must have opened it after these ferns were pretty well grown," said Mrs. Reddy. "I'm sure it wasn't here when these ferns were unrolling. He must have dug it after he had dug his two other back doors which we have known about for so long."

"Probably he knew that we had found them and so decided on another," said Reddy.

"Probably," replied Mrs. Reddy. "Now the question is what are we to do? Shall we let him get away with it or shall we dig him out. The two of us together might do that."

"We might," agreed Reddy. "Again we might not."

"What do you mean by might not?" Mrs. Reddy wanted to know.

"I might dig in one way, and you another and still we might not catch him. He has too many doors and passages leading to them," explained Reddy.

"If we failed we would have had a lot of work for nothing, hard work," said Mrs. Reddy thoughtfully.

Reddy went over to the front door and peered down the long dark hall. Then he went to each of the back doors in turn. "You are right, quite right, my dear," said he. "I hate to give up, but I hate to do anything foolish, especially anything requiring so much work as digging. Besides we really don't need him. We may want him, but we don't need him. There is a great difference between wanting and needing."

"Indeed there is, a very great difference," agreed Mrs. Reddy. "At this time of year there is plenty to eat without working too hard to get it. If we were starving it would be quite another matter. In such case I would say that we try to dig him out. As it is, I am not especially hungry. A Mouse or two or even some grasshoppers will do me nicely. Then a long nap and I will be ready for a good night's hunting."

Reddy yawned. "I'm glad you feel that way about it, for I do, too," said he. "What we miss today we may get tomorrow. Johnny Chuck has been around here so long that it would seem queer not to seem him any more. Anyway, I would rather catch him by being smarter than he than to dig him out."

So together Reddy and Mrs. Reddy trotted off toward the Old Pasture. Down in his underground house Johnny Chuck lay listening for a long time. No sound reached him. By this he knew that no attempt to dig him out was being made. Those Foxes might be lying in wait for him to come out again, but if so they would wait a long time. Johnny curled up on his bed of grass in his snug bedroom and went to sleep.

Widow Loses $1,000 Bill; Roomer Held

Whole Savings Gone Needed for Operation Man Admits Taking It

Mrs. Ella Virginia Rector's habit of hiding money under a brown and red linoleum rug in the bedroom of her rooming house at 1211 Fourth street southwest yesterday was ended for all time—a $1,000 bill, her entire savings, was gone.

For four and one-half years the bill had been hidden under the rug in a flat leather purse. Mrs. Rector kept all her money under it.

Yesterday the $1,000 was gone, and with it Mrs. Rector's hopes for new clothes for her five fatherless children, coal to go through the winter and a much-needed operation for herself.

Police were holding a roomer, who they reported said he took Mrs. Rector's $1,000 bill, but could not produce it.

The man, who had roomed at Mrs. Rector's house two years, said he was "rolled" Sunday night by a waitress known only as Margaret and a male companion. Police were searching the city yesterday despite reports that "Margaret" was headed for California.

Mrs. Rector said the roomer helped her scrub woodwork around her linoleum, bank October 7 and had seen her draw $2 from under one end of the rug and that he took the money then. She had not looked back under the rug until Monday, however, when she wanted to go pay some bills and put the rest of the $1,000 in a bank.

She kept the money in the house instead of a bank just because she "wanted it handy," she said. No one knew she had the money, she added.

Three of Mrs. Rector's children are living with her aged mother near Warsaw, Va., while the eldest is in a tubercular sanitarium. She wanted to take him to Arizona with part of the $1,000.

Doctor at G. U. Assails Job Ban On Bad Hearts

Office and industrial workers afflicted with mild symptoms of heart disease are too frequently the victims of rigidly enforced laws which deprive them of means of gainful employment, Dr. Frank S. Horvath, director of the cardiac clinic at Georgetown University Hospital, said in a lecture yesterday afternoon.

He blamed the severity of civil service and compensation laws for an unemployment problem among cardiac cripples.

A majority of the workers who are suffering from high blood pressure, one of the main causes of chronic congestive heart failure, are perfectly able to perform their duties for 8, 10 or 15 years longer, Dr. Horvath said.

His discussion of employment problems affecting cardiac cripples was suggested by questions asked by Dr. John R. Cavanagh, director of the out-patient department.

German Plane Sets Record on Azores Hop

Lisbon, Oct. 19 (AP).—The German seaplane Nordstern, completing the last of a series of New York-Horta experimental flights this year, alighted at the Azores today with a new record for the 2,400-mile crossing—11 hours, 15 minutes.

Curley's Accuser Freed of Perjury

Boston, Oct. 19 (U.P.)—Frederick H. Graves, who accused former Governor James M. Curley of accepting a $30,000 bribe while mayor of Boston, was found not guilty late today of committing perjury in Superior Court last fall.

Graves, however, pleaded guilty to perjury in previous testimony before the Boston Finance Commission with respect to settlement of the same damage claim for which Curley allegedly accepted the bribe, and was sentenced to 18 months in jail.

The case was based on an attempt by Curley, now Democratic gubernatorial candidate, to win vindication from the graft accusation.

Societies Observe 157th Year Since Yorktown Victory

Williamsburg, Va., Oct. 19 (U.P.)—Members of patriotic societies of the State and Nation gathered at Yorktown today to observe the 157th anniversary of the Revolutionary victory of Yorktown when Cornwallis surrendered to the combined forces of the French and American armies.

Dr. H. J. Eckenrode, Virginia State historian, speaking in place of Gov. Price, called the battle one of the most significant in history.

Other speakers were Mrs. William H. Pouch, of Washington, national president of the D. A. R.; Miss Lilian Chenoweth, State regent, District of Columbia D. A. R.; Kenneth Chorley, president of the Williamsburg restoration; Dr. Clifton Clark, honorary State president of the Sons of the American Revolution, and Messmore Kendall, president general of the S. A. R.

Hard Cider Seller Given $50 Fine; Others Warned

Frederick, Md., Oct. 19 (AP).—The hard cider season is officially here and with it came a warning today that farmers who sell it should have a liquor license—at least in Frederick County.

Associate Judge Arthur D. Willard fined Mrs. Lucy Toms, 40, mother of four children, $50 and costs for selling cider without a license at her home near Middlepoint.

Taking into account that Mrs. Toms' testimony she was unaware a liquor license was required, Judge Willard said the fine imposed was "in no sense a precedent for future action."

State's Attorney Sherman P. Bowers said a liquor license costing $250 must be obtained by cider sellers.

2 Suspects Moved To Avert Lynching

Tia Juana, Mexico, Oct. 19 (U.P.)—Two Chinese, suspected of slaying a 19-year-old Mexican-American girl, were removed to the Tia Juana Jail tonight from the border town of Tecate when crowds of peons threatened to storm the Tecate Jail and lynch the two suspects.

The men were arrested when officers found the body of Genevieve Barron, 19, of Ensenada, buried beneath a truck load of vegetables which the two men were driving along the Mexicali highway.

How Women in Their 40's Can Attract Men

Here's good advice for a woman during her change (usually from 38 to 52), who fears she'll lose her appeal to men, who worries about hot flashes, loss of pep, dizzy spells, upset nerves and moody spells.

Just get more fresh air, 8 hrs. sleep and if you need a reliable "WOMAN'S" tonic take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, made especially for women. It helps Nature build up physical resistance, thus helps give more vivacity to enjoy life and assist calming jittery nerves and those disturbing symptoms that often accompany change of life.

Pinkham's is WELL WORTH trying.

"—he hid the shaker"

What eminent Washington official had to hide his cocktail shaker while mixing a few on the deck of a small cabin cruiser with his own hands while steaming down the Potomac when a big excursion boat suddenly drew alongside?

Maybe business confidence would be revived if worried businessmen knew that New Dealers occasionally shake up a drink.

In a relaxed moment one day President Roosevelt was telling some friends that he never worried more than when, as Assistant Secretary of the Navy, he was responsible for Woodrow Wilson's safety when he accompanied the War President to Europe.

Some of the top brain trusters agree with the G. O. P. critics that the huge sinking fund for Social Security is all wrong.

They think the pension payments should be placed on a pay-as-you-go basis, with each year's pittances to the elderly taken out of that year's income tax collections. Which would mean a lot more in income taxes, of course.

Jews, Christians Urged to Unite For Security

Baltimore Pastor Speaks
Assails Anti-Semitism
Hebrew Group Meets

The Rev. A. W. Gottschall, pastor of the First Christian Church in Baltimore and secretary for the Southern area of the National Conference of Jews and Christians, declared last night anti-Semitism was only one phase of a general threat against the democratic process.

The Rev. Mr. Gottschall, addressing more than 150 members of the Washington Hebrew Congregation Brotherhood in their first fall meeting, urged that security against anti-Semitism be found through what he termed "cultural pluralism."

He said Jews, Catholics and Protestants were alike ready to die to keep the integrity of their faiths unsullied, and urged each group to live up to the highest ideals of its own faith, in the solution of their respective problems.

In the larger problems of the day, security and peace, he suggested the groups work together.

Where such co-operation was blocked by prejudice, he urged that whatever differences existed be brought into free discussion.

"The issue is not discrimination but the problem of maintaining at all hazards, and at all costs, the democratic process," he said.

The meeting was the first in a series of discussions to be held through the season on security.

First Attempt To Boost Taxi Fares Fails

The first attempt to obtain a boost in taxi fares since the enactment of the compulsory taxicab liability insurance law was halted yesterday by the Public Utilities Commission.

The commission made known it had been petitioned by the Taxi Drivers Union, Local 447, to grant a public hearing "for the purpose of determining a satisfactory rate to carry the additional burden imposed on the operator by the enactment of the law."

Spokesman for the commission said the request for a public hearing must originate with taxicab owners, which to date has not been forthcoming.

Free Movies To End Halloween Pranks—Maybe

Free movies, a G-Man, a professional whistler, and Arch MacDonald will help keep the children of the Chevy Chase section out of trouble on Halloween night, according to plans announced last night by the Chevy Chase (D. C.) Citizens Association.

Officers of the group recalled that $2,000 worth of broken street lights, windows, and other damage greeted residents of the section the morning after last Halloween. Free movies for 4,000 children, one official estimated, would mean a cash saving of about $1,900 if they were effective.

The movies will be shown at Woodrow Wilson High School and the E. V. Brown School from 7 p. m. to 11 p. m. October 31. Tickets will be available through the association's secretary, George E. Dieffenbach at NAtional 8850.

Of the possibility the free movies might not eliminate new damage, Donald Carpenter, acting president, said he had asked eighth precinct police to enforce the law without favoritism.

O'Conor's Suit Against State Cited by Nice

By the Associated Press.

Westminster, Md., Oct. 19.—Gov. Nice tonight accused Attorney General Herbert R. O'Conor, his Democratic rival for governorship, of attempting to aid a Baltimore contractor to obtain additional funds from the State.

"When Mr. O'Conor makes charges of favoritism and inefficiency in connection with the State roads commission, I am reminded that during the primary campaign he made the . . . statement that he had but one client and that client was the State," Gov. Nice told an audience at the Armory.

"It might not be presumptious for me to call to his attention that he had at least one other client, and that client happened to be a paving contractor for whom he fought valiantly to obtain from the taxpayers of Baltimore City a claim for extras.

"I do said O'Conor filed a suit to secure for his client "practically $30,000 extra" after "every effort had been exhausted by him to obtain the money through private negotiation."

When brought to court, Governor Nice said, the judge refused to grant the claim.

Curb on Liquor Stores Asked In Chevy Chase

Citizens Group Votes
McCoach Honored
Flower Prizes Given

Opposition to granting new liquor licenses along upper Connecticut avenue was voted last night by the Chevy Chase Citizens Association of Chevy Chase, D. C.

This vote indorsed a protest made to the A. B. C. Board recently by Donald Carpenter, acting president, and George E. Dieffenbach, secretary, in co-operation with representatives of the Forest Hill Association.

David McCoach, Engineer Commissioner, was guest of honor. He presented awards to the following winners of the flower garden contest sponsored by the association:

James O. Barry, 3505 Legation street northwest, a cup for first place; Mrs. Henry Gordon Clay, 5433 Thirty-third street northwest, second, and Gilbert Posey, 6106 Thirty-first street northwest.

The association admitted 260 new members, bringing total paid membership to 1729, largest of any citizens' association in the District, a lead it has held for four years.

16th St. Group Elects

The Sixteenth Street Highlands Association last night re-elected William E. Stontameyer president for another year. George M. Gooch was re-elected first vice president and Dr. Alfred Richwine second vice president. Havilland Hobbs was re-elected treasurer an Miss Mildred Green secretary. Dr. John P. Turner and Dr. Alfred Richwine were elected delegates to the Federation of Citizens Associations.

The immediate need of traffic lights at Fourteenth and Kennedy and Sixteenth and Kennedy streets northwest also was discussed.

Wilson, who in turn will present it to the superintendent for dedication. Mrs. Frank A. Coe, jr., Mrs. C. P. Heins, Mrs. Clair V. Allen and Mrs. R. A. DeGroot will participate in the lighting of the hearth fire, and the keys to the house will be presented by Wilson to the minister of the church, the Rev. W. Clark Main. Douglas True will sing, with Mrs. A. E. Dye at the piano.

Historic Dog Mart to Open Today in Fredericksburg

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Fredericksburg, Va., Oct. 19.—This city tonight was prepared to greet some 4,000 persons and 600 dogs at the eleventh annual revival of its historic Dog Mart here tomorrow in City Park.

The curtain will rise at 9 a. m. with the registration of animals and will not be rung down until the strains of the Dog Mart Ball Orchestra die away 17 hours later.

Two hundred and thirty odd years ago, as another means of extracting gold nuggets, furs and other valuables from unsuspecting Indians, Colonel David Harums agreed it would be a good idea to give the redskins an opportunity to acquire dogs needed for hunting. Accordingly a meeting was arranged, and so successful did it prove—for the city fathers—that it became an annual custom for the next 100 years.

Thus began Fredericksburg's famous Dog Mart and thus it will be observed tomorrow, but without the Indians or their gold nuggets.

The bench show, starting at 9:30 a. m. and ending at 12:15 p. m., will be followed at 12:30 p. m. by a street parade composed of Battery F, 111th Field Artillery, as well as hundreds of dogs.

After time out for lunch the Mart will resume at 2 p. m. with a trick dog show, to be followed 15 minutes later by a fox horn blowing contest.

The auction, highlight of the event, will start at 2:30 p. m. W. Barton Mason, of Orange, will be the auctioneer.

The day will be topped at 10 p. m., when the Dog Mart ball gets under way at the Elks Home.

400 Episcopalians Hold Dinner Here

Addresses by Dean Hiram Bennett, of Wilmington, Del., and Dr. R. Frank, of Philadelphia, were heard at the annual church school institute dinner of the Episcopal Church, Washington Diocese, held last night at St. Paul's Church, Rock Creek Parish. More than 400 attended.

The Rev. William R. Moody, rector of St. Mark's Episcopal Church, Capitol Hill, presided at the conclave, which included a forum on church school problems, led by Miss Frances H. Withers, chairman of the missionary education committee of the religious education department of the diocese.

Among those present were Dr. F. G. Bohanan and the Rev. Robert S. Jones, rector and assistant, respectively, of the host church, as well as delegates representing 70 parishes in Washington and Maryland. Women of the Rock Creek Parish served the dinner.

Ban Sunday Meetings
Plan to Save Fuel
Budget Exceeded
Forum Head Objects

Drastic economy will be the rule in District schools during the current fiscal year, the Board of Education decided at its regular meeting yesterday after Dr. Frank W. Ballou, superintendent of schools, said expenditures for fuel, lights and power already had exceeded the budget. Other developments were:

Adoption of recommendations that all Sunday meetings in District school buildings be discontinued, over the protest of Edgar G. Brown, colored leader of the United Government Employes group, that such action would discriminate against Sunday forums conducted by his group at the Garnet-Patterson School auditorium.

Act on Stolen Goods

Authority granted to Superintendent of Schools Ballou to place the question of recovering stolen typewriters now held by pawn shops in Virginia and Maryland in the hands of District Commissioners, with the request that the Governors of the two States be notified of the action.

Plans to enlist principals of all schools to keep a check on danger from falling plaster.

Regulations calling for stringent economy on the part of community centers, night schools, principals and custodians of buildings approved.

Included were instructions to community centers to avoid all Sunday meetings in the future, while full responsibility for conservation of electricity, fuel and gas was placed in officials of centers, night schools, principals and custodians.

Discuss Economy Today

Dr. Ballou said he intended to discuss the economy drive further today at the first meeting of administrative and supervisory officers. Statements of cost of fuel, gas and electricity in each building for each month last year will be made to show where reductions can be effected this year.

Coincident with the board's action on checking up on plaster hazards, a letter was placed in hands of board members from Charles Houston, former board member, presenting claims from 13 colored students injured last spring when plaster fell in the Cardozo High School.

Claims were presented last summer to the board which disclaimed all responsibility on the ground that there was no evidence the plaster was in a dangerous condition, Houston charged. He asked that the board give the claimants "reasonable compensation for their injuries," consisting mostly of shock, cuts and bruises.

Disposing of other routine business, the board approved appointment of a committee to pass on all essay contests before allowing them in the schools, approved organization of the Delta Nu sorority at Woodrow Wilson High School and approved appointment of cadet officers of the Washington High School Cadet Corps.

18 'Informer' Cases Dropped

Eighteen cases in Police Court, depending on testimony of two informers, one charged with bribery and the other repudiated by a policeman in court, will be nolle prossed, Assistant Corporation Council Milton Korman said yesterday.

This decision followed collapse of 31 cases in District and Police Courts, all based on testimony of "stool pigeons." The 18 cases to be dropped involve sales of illicit liquor to the informers in question.

D. C. Job-Seekers Go on Air To 'Sell Selves' to Employers

Employment Center and WRC Co-operate
132 Interviewed and 360 Land Jobs
120,000 Folders Sent to Home-Owners

Washington's job seekers are selling themselves to employers by means of radio each weekday morning.

In addition to the radio interviews this week, Employment Center officials are reminding employers in the District that this is Employment Week. Through the mails 120,000 folders are being sent to housewives, homeowners and other potential employers.

Unemployment Center officials readily said although only 132 persons have been interviewed so far, 360 jobs filled by the center can be traced directly to the radio programs.

This is brought about by several employers calling in after the broadcast offering employment to the person just interviewed, an official explained.

The applicant interviewed, however, merely represents an occupational group. When several calls come in, the applicant who "sold himself" over the radio is given a job, and Center officials tell employers they can refer another applicant to them who is just as efficient as the person interviewed.

Any applicant desiring to be interviewed notifies a section receptionist at the Center.

50 Million Set for 1940 D. C. Budget

Tax Advisers Meet
Senator King Present
Increase Is Slight
Dual Tax Undecided

The budgetary needs of the District for the fiscal year, 1940, and estimates for several other years were outlined to the local tax advisory committee yesterday in an executive session attended by Senator King (Democrat), of Utah.

Maj. Daniel J. Donovan, auditor and chairman of the committee, is understood to have told the committee that the budget for next year will be near $50,000,000 and not greatly exceed the current appropriations. The amount of revenue to be raised, the committee was told, depends upon the number of present taxes that are replaced.

While not reaching any preliminary decisions, the committee continued to consider the dual tax plan suggested by experts engaged in making a tax study under the direction of the joint committee on Internal Revenue taxation. This is a combination of income and sales levies.

Varied rates on each of the proposed taxes were discussed, but it was explained that the rates will depend upon the amount of revenue to be raised.

Should only the business privilege tax be replaced, the revenue needs will be only about $2,000,000, but if the intangible personal property and the tangible personal property levies are repealed as well, except on automobiles, the new tax bill must raise an additional $4,500,000.

Senator King, who represented the Internal Revenue Taxation Committee, said that he would be willing to support any tax plan that had the united support of the advisory tax committee.

He reminded the group that its report must be in the hands of the Congressional committee by the time Congress convenes as the committee itself must make a report by January 15.

This report will be turned over to the House District Committee to be used as a basis for legislation.

Next Week's Bills

"Garden of the Moon" is announced as chief screen feature for the week beginning tomorrow, at the Warner Brothers' Earle Theater, with Pat O'Brien, Margaret Lindsay and John Payne in the principal roles. This comedy-romance is thickly sprinkled with tunful song numbers and features in its supporting cast such popular players as Johnnie Davis, recently at the Earle in person; Jerry Colonna, Jimmie Fidler and Joe Venuti and His Swing Cats. The stage portion of the bill will be headlined, in person, by the Stroud Twins, Clarence and Claude, popular comics of the air through their Sunday night broadcasts with Charlie McCarthy and Don Ameche. Others on the stage bill will include the 16 Earle Roxyettes, in new dance routines; the Six Continentals, the Juggling Jewels and Reynolds and White.

Bing Crosby, Fred MacMurray, Ellen Drew, Elizabeth Patterson and Donald O'Connor are the featured members of the cast to be seen in "Sing, You Sinners," chief screen attraction at Loew's Capitol Theater for the week beginning tomorrow. The story of "Sing, You Sinners" is the most diversified and diverting that its star has had in many months, embracing race track episodes of an exciting nature in the unfolding of the serio-comic adventures of the Beebe family. Catchy musical numbers comprise an important part of the picture's content. On the stage, the Kidoodlers, a quartet of aggressive young instrumentalists, will furnish the topline divertissement. Others on the vaudeville bill include Marjorie Gainsworth, gifted songstress; the three Swifts, Pritchard and Lord, ballroom dancers, and the Chester Hale Capitol Dancers.

Surpassing the attendance records of her earlier hit films, Deanna Durbin in "That Certain Age" will continue for a second week as foremost screen attraction at RKO-Keith's Theater. In this delightfully romantic and amusing subject the star is supported by Melvyn Douglas, Irene Rich, John Halliday, Jackie Cooper, little Juanita Quigley, Jackie Searle and numerous others. Deanna's remarkable voice is heard in half a dozen songs, ranging from popular numbers to operatic arias. The short subjects will be continued with the major feature.

Clark Gable and Myrna Loy, supported by Walter Pidgeon, Walter Connolly, Henry Kolker, Leo Carrillo and a host of others, will be held over for a second week, beginning tomorrow, at Loew's Palace Theater. This picturization of the adventures of a newsreel cameraman and an intrepid young aviatrix is packed with action and thrills from first flash to last. The auxiliary attractions also will be retained.

Having already played two weeks at the Earle and a six-day engagement at the Ambassador, Frank Capra's Columbia picturization of the George S. Kaufman-Moss Hart Pulitzer Prize comedy, "You Can't Take It With You," will be held over for a second week of its repeat downtown engagement at the Metropolitan Theater, beginning tomorrow. Lionel Barrymore, Jean Arthur, James Stewart, Edward Arnold, Donald Meek, Spring Byington, Halliwell Hobbes, H. B. Warner, Ann Miller, Mischa Auer, Samuel S. Hinds and many others are seen in the foremost roles of this hilarious study of the Vanderhofs' home life.

For the week beginning tomorrow at Loew's Columbia Theater, the foremost feature of the screen bill will be Paramount's production of "Spawn of the North," a romantic adventure story of the salmon fisheries of the Far North. George Raft, Henry Fonda, Dorothy Lamour, Louise Platt, John Barrymore, Akim Tamiroff and Lynn Overman appear in the roles of pivotal importance, supported by a cast of hundreds.

So enthusiastic has been the acclaim by both press and public of "Grand Illusion" that its premier Washington engagement will be continued for a second week at the Belasco Theater. This is the grim, but beautifully executed, anti-war film in which the stellar roles are played by Jean Gabin, Pierre Fresnay, Eric Von Stroheim and Dita Parlo. "Grand Illusion" is one of the genuinely notable releases of the year.

"Life Dances On," awarded the grand prize at the Venice Exposition of 1937 as the best picture produced anywhere in the world that year, has met with such enthusiastic favor upon the occasion of its premiere presentation in Washington that also will be continued through a second week at the Little Theater, beginning Sunday. This episodic, but peculiarly unified, film story of a beautiful young widow's search for the lovers of her youth is interpreted by a splendid French cast, under the direction of Julien Duvivier, who also wrote the screen play. It has the advantage of exceptionally good superimposed subtitles in English.

"The March of Time," devoted to "The British Dilemma" and "U. S. Fire Fighters;" a new "Stranger Than Fiction" release and "Animal Crackers Circus," a cartoon comedy, will be the featured short subjects on the new bill, opening tomorrow, at the Trans-Lux Theater. The bill, hailed as one of the best of the season, will, as usual, be based upon newsreel coverage of the world.

Miss Britton's "Cherry Blossoms" burlesque company, which opens a week's engagement at the Gayety Theater with the usual Sunday matinee performance, is heralded as one of the outstanding attractions on the Hirst Circuit, having established new attendance records in many cities. Miss Britton is described as one of the most beautiful of the exotic dancers. She will be supported by Bobby Morris, comedian, assisted by Maxie Kaden; Pinto and Della, Italian comics and musicians; Richard Dana, Paddy Cliff and Ned Walsh and Anna Smith and June Marshall.

Freddie Bartholomew Here Briefly Today

Has Hour and a Half to 'See Capital'
Priscilla Lane Arrives Saturday
News and Gossip of the Theater

PERHAPS not in Washington's—because it will catch so fleeting a glimpse of him—but certainly in Freddie Bartholomew's memory book this should be a memorable day.

It will mark his first visit to the Capital of the Nation that has lifted him from the obscurity of any small boy living quietly in London to world fame as one of the most strikingly gifted of the youthful stars of the cinema. And this all in the brief space of four short years.

BELL.

His dash through the Capital will be slightly more hurried than that. In point of fact, he will be here for not even four short hours—not even two, according to present plans. Arriving by train this morning at 11:25, he will be whisked directly to the White House. From 1600 Pennsylvania avenue, he will proceed, post haste, to the British Embassy, to be greeted by Sir Ronald Lindsay, his country's ambassador to the United States, and then will flash through the city, presumably along a route that will embrace the Lincoln Memorial, Constitution avenue and the Capitol Building.

At the tentative hour of 1 p. m., it is planned for Freddie to lead a motorcade to Baltimore, in company with the local drama desks, where, a little later in the afternoon, he will be guest of honor at a luncheon given by Carter Barron, Eastern division manager of Loew's, Inc., who will have as his guests also newspaper representatives from Baltimore, Reading and Harrisburg, Pa.; Wilmington, Del., and Richmond and Norfolk, Va.

Accompanying Freddie will be Miss Millicent Bartholomew, "Aunt Cissie," who has wielded a profound influence upon the career of the lad ever since the suggestion was first made that he might prove the ideal selection for the title role in the film version of Dickens' "David Copperfield," the picture that lifted him to immediate world attention as an amazingly talented boy. He was 10 years old then and is only 14 now. Also in the party will be his tutor, who, one suspects, will utilize the Washington visit to sharpen his pupil's comprehension of a few salient facts in American history.

Since "David Copperfield," of course, Freddie Bartholomew has appeared in a long list of other notable screen plays, conspicuous among them being "Little Lord Fauntleroy," "The Devil Is a Sissy," "Captains Courageous," "Kidnapped," "Lord Jeff" and others. In "Listen, Darling," his newest film, he is said to essay an entirely new type of characterization. The supporting players in this subject, coming soon to the screen at Loew's Capitol Theater, include Judy Garland, Walter Pidgeon and Mary Astor.

But an hour and a half is a precious short time to spend in the National Capital. It has only one advantage that I can think of—it is an hour and a half better than no visit at all.

And the parade of visiting stars does not end there. With Miss Pickford gaining conspicuous attention in the public eye yesterday, and still in town today, it is now announced that Priscilla Lane, in the East to attend the world premiere of her latest picture, "Brother Rat," in Lexington, Va., tonight, will pay Washington another of those "On again, off again, gone again, Finnegan" visits on Saturday. Booked for a reception and grand ball at V. M. I. tomorrow night, and ordered back to Burbank, Calif., to begin immediate work on another film on the Warner Brothers' lot, the youngest of the Lane sisters, nevertheless, has found it possible to squeeze out four or five hours for Washington. She is expected to arrive here Saturday about noon, be honor guest of the local Warner organization at a press luncheon at the Washington Hotel at 1 and leave for the Coast at 5. There can't be any question about it, these movie stars really move!

Backstage at the National, in George M. Cohan's dressing room between the acts, the impression seemed to prevail Tuesday night that the second audience at "I'd Rather Be Right" was far easier to play to and infinitely more enthusiastic over the Kaufman-Hart satirical whimsies amiably aimed at the New Deal than Monday night's had been. The slightly—very slightly—phlegmatic Monday-nighters seemed just a mite "Administration-minded," Mr. Cohan, Taylor Holmes and some of the others thought.

However that may have been, the difference on Tuesday night was apparent even to a vagrant scrivener, strolling in off the street for five minutes to get out of the heat and reassure himself that there never has been another dancer like George M. Cohan—a conviction he has nurtured since the old Kohl and Castle days out in Chicago, too many years ago.

Incidentally, had the original plan of two weeks in Washington for "I'd Rather Be Right" been adhered to, the National would not be dark next week. But for good and sufficient reasons that could not be circumvented, the local engagement had to be cut to a single week. It was too late then to book another attraction for the week of the twenty-fourth. Life, unfortunately, is like that—and I don't mean the picture book!

Comes a letter.

"Dear Mr. Bell: If I am not mistaken, you have admonished the ladies, via your column, to remove their hats at the movies. Praise to you. Now will you be good enough to admonish those who have a proclivity for carrying noisy paper parcels to the movies and rustling them vigorously during the performance? Possibly if you would say, 'Please be kind and check your parcels outside,' they would listen to you. My gratitude, if you succeed. Sincerely (signed), CLARA ISABELLE BOONE."

It is only following a strong personal inclination to accede to Miss Boone's wish, but that admonition has appeared here so many times without result that we have abandoned all hope of squelching the paper-rustling nuisances by any such pacific means. The only solution seems to be for each peaceful patron to carry his own straitjacket and blackjack to the movies and apply one or the other, or both, himself when and where it will do the most good.

And another SOS from Bess Davis Schreiner, subscription manager for the Theater Guild and the American Theater Society of Washington, who wishes it known that local subscribers to the season of six plays at the National will receive their tickets for "The Sea Gull," first of the subscription attractions, opening Monday, November 1, and that tickets for "Golden Boy," the second subscription play, will be received a week or ten days prior to the playing date, BUT . . .

To receive any tickets at all, all subscriptions must be paid up this week. Any changes in reservations of seat locations also must be made this week.

So now you know.

Deanna Durbin to Assist Red Cross

Deanna Durbin has accepted the invitation of the American Red Cross to star in a one-reel picture to be used in the annual Red Cross drive for funds.

The singing star will start work immediately in the short film feature which will be produced and directed by Joe Pasternak at the Universal Studios.

In the offering, Deanna will sing a novel selection with appropriate lyrics composed especially by Harold Adamson to the music of "Roses of Picardy."

By appearing in the Red Cross film, Deanna is interrupting her usual "between-pictures" vacation. She recently finished her latest production "That Certain Age" in which the supporting cast included Melvyn Douglas, Irene Rich, John Halliday, Jackie Cooper, Nancy Carroll, Jaunita Quigley and Peggy Stewart.

In preparation at the studio is Deanna's next picture, "Three Smart Girls Grow Up."

'Mike' Delays Mr. Benchley

The mystery of why Robert Benchley is always late has been solved—the comedian says neither he nor his watch is to blame, but a microphone is.

"No alibi, but honest facts" is his way of explaining what he hopes will never happen again, so far as his keeping correct time is concerned.

After the recording on each of his Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer shorts, his watch would go haywire. After repeated repairs proved futile, he sent it to the manufacturer.

"You're keeping the watch too close to a microphone and the electric current makes the hands revolve dizzily," was the reply.

So the comedian decided to make his own test. Prior to dialoguing a sequence in his short, "How to Watch Football," he checked the correct time and set his watch. It was 2 o'clock. After the recording near the microphone, the correct time was 3:10, but his watch read 5:30, so Benchley avers.

Now, he promises to leave his watch with his director, Roy Rowland, before each recording, and vows he will never again be late.

JOE SCHENCK, the movie producer, will go to Hyde Park, among other things to discuss with the President the settlement of the Government's antimonopoly suit against the major companies . . . Schenck was at El Rio last night and participated and was victorious in a rumba marathon, with Lupe Velez as his partner . . . The contest ended when the news photographers who had been sent for finally arrived to record the scene.

LAST WEEK the newspapers published the lists of representatives of foreign governments employed to disseminate propaganda in America. Carl Byoir was listed as being a representative of the Chinese government. As a matter of fact, Byoir no longer represents China . . . Rose Stradner, the Viennese star who appeared with Edward G. Robinson in "The Last Gangster," was signed to a Columbia film contract yesterday. Miss Stradner, who was in 70 plays in Vienna, is becoming an American citizen . . .

THE CAST, except the stars, of "You Never Know" has been invited to take a 10 per cent cut in salary . . . The Hollywood reopens on the twenty-seventh . . . Peggy Fears, who complained that she's down to her last string of pearls, has secured financial backing for a new musical show she'll produce . . . Ernest Truex and Edna Mae Oliver will return to Broadway in a play to be produced by Ned Jacobs—who produced "Houseboat on the Styx" . . . Marie Wilson, the screen star who announced her engagement yesterday, confessed to Bette Davis that she required two hours' rest each morning after a breakfast of oatmeal . . . "Then why eat oatmeal?" Bette asked her . . . "Because," replied Marie, "it's good for you."

THE RIALTO THEATER, reviving horror films, is presenting a double feature, "Frankenstein" and "Dracula" . . . These have proved to be so popular that the Rialto will exhibit them 24 hours a day . . . And, as a followup, the theater will offer this duo's distaff side. "Frankenstein" and "Dracula" will be followed by "Frankenstein's Bride" and "Dracula's Daughter."

Actor Objects But His Name Sticks

Charley Adler, the addled member of the quartet of Yacht Club Boys, last week lost his fight to compel Paramount to change the character name assigned him in his current picture.

Summoning Adler to his office, Arthur Hornblow, jr., producer of "Artists and Models Abroad," informed the actor that the name to which he objected could not be changed.

"Why not?" demanded Adler.

"Because you fit the name," replied Hornblow.

The name is Dopey.

In Hollywood

With Hedda Hopper

Hollywood, Calif., Oct. 19.—The mad Ritzes begin making personal appearances as soon as "Three Musketeers" is in the can. A week's stop in each town where their heaviest fan mail comes from. A smart secretary has checked up on that ever since they've been in movies.

HEDDA HOPPER

They go to Houston, Atlanta, Baltimore, Washington, D. C. Seattle, Portland, San Francisco and Vancouver. And will have to struggle along on $25,000 a week, until New Year's Day, when they open at the World's Fair at double that dough. Yes! brothers and sisters, it pays to be crazy.

I have an idea that big pow-wow with Joe Schenck, Sam Goldwyn and Will Hays in the East means added worry, and more money to boost the motion picture quiz idea, which isn't jelling so well. They've found that couples who can afford only one picture a week patronize those which carry a quiz contest, leaving minor pictures without attention or business. Maybe the whole plan wasn't so hot—huh?

Instead of adding blessings as everyone expected, the making of "Boys' Town" has been a boomerang to that marvelous institution. Former contributions have fallen off 60 per cent. From buildings and activity shown on the screen, people must have thought "Boys' Town" was sitting on top of the world and didn't need money. Such is not the case. The picture is cleaning up—but we mussn't let "Boys' Town" down.

Charlie McCarthy is brushing up on his Southern accent, saying "You-all" and all that tosh. Doesn't know whether to go Alabama or Kentucky. All for "You Can't Cheat an Honest Man." But Charlie hopes to do just that with Bill Fields.

Humphrey Bogart has promised an Academy Award to the best animal actor of last year. His friends think it's a gag—but he's serious about it, and goes himself to see every picture sporting an animal.

We're all so happy that Johnny Engstead is able to keep his job at Paramount, and still open a new photographic gallery on the Strip. Good luck, Johnny.

William Furlong, head of the commissary at Roach Studio, was the first suicide inside studio ranks caused by betting on the ponies.

I sat by an open window the other day, watching a long line of extras fighting for telephones to find out who had won the last race. You'll find that bulge in the chauffeur's pocket is a racing form. And personal maids hand them out instead of powder puffs, obeying orders from higher ups.

Rosalind Russell brought this one back. When an English duchess called on a prominent painter, he had let his manservant go for the day. From his window he saw her approaching. Quickly hustled into servant's clothes, opened the door, ushered her into drawing room, withdrew, changed and appeared as himself. She never looked up so didn't notice the deception.

Clark Gable gave Carole Lombard a new Cadillac for her birthday. Who wouldn't be a blonde? Carole gave Clark a pink ballet dress with C. G. in tinseled letters a foot long on front of it, ballet slippers, 11-D, and sent them to the set of "Idiot's Delight." Shows what she thinks of him as a dancer.

The reason Merle Oberon spent three days in bed was because she knocked herself out whirling around town like a dervish getting new clothes to fly East, grab fastest boat, spend three days in England—and rush back to begin "Wuthering Heights." She wanted to see how much damage they'd done to her front lawn when they dug trenches. But she bumped into her boss, Sam Goldwyn, who said: "No-no-no."

Wish you could have seen Eddie Horton learning the Shag when "The Little Tough Guys" pushed him into a jitterbug contest in the picture "In Society." Dignity went diggity!

Inter-American Horse Show Opens Here Today

Sports | The Washington Post | Sports

*X WASHINGTON: THURSDAY, OCTOBER 20, 1938 21

This Morning

With Shirley Povich

Pardon our British accent, but this department has just inhaled a breath of Old England. An hour at the Meadowbrook Hunt Club and one must battle the urge to break into "God Save the King." A whiff of the setting of the Inter-American Horse Show and Merrie England lives again.

POVICH.

There, hard by the East-West highway, they talk of hounds and hunters and hunters and Aintree jumps. Of post and rail and rustic gates. Of conformation and hunter hacks and star gazers. It is the argot of the hunt set, a strange babble of twentieth century folk attempting to preserve the exclusive sport of the mother country in the midst of spy scares, NLRB decisions and recovery trends.

Advertised as the feature of the Inter-American Horse Show starting today is the military competitions. Army teams of the United States, Mexico and Chile will contest over the jumps. But the military events are merely an attempt to catch the conscience of the paying public, an appeal to the spectacular. With the hunt set, the civilian events are the thing.

A Fitting Spot

Theirs is a hand-me-down sport, brought from England by the Tories who found the terrain of America's Middle Atlantic Seabord States—Maryland, Virginia, Pennsylvania—peculiarly like the old county's, and habitated, too, by the fox. And that Meadowbrook should be the scene of a hunt meet is fitting, for the Meadowbrook Club is pitched in the midst of 200 hunt clubs within a distance of 100 miles—half as many hunt clubs as now exist in England itself.

There at Meadowbrook, the jumps for the Inter-American shown have not been aimlessly constructed. Their Aintree jump is the exact duplicate of the famed obstacle on the Aintree course, as is the Liverpool jump and the Aiken. And the rustic bridge is a faithful reproduction of England's rustic bridges. From a famed Swedish course, the Swedish fence jump has been appropriated. For every one of the 19 jumps on the course there is a background except the Toronto Bank. Nobody quite knows why and how that became a part of the course except that it is always a part of American jump meets.

At first blush, it appears a snooty crowd, with its fetish for style and tradition, but apparently that is not so. They care not a whit for blood lines in their jumpers. Performance is the thing. Half-breds that would shock the sensibilities of race track stewards are eagerly sought by the hunt riders if they can perform. They do not insist on pedigree in their mounts. In fact, the best two jumpers in the show—the U. S. Army's famed Dakota and Joe Aylshire—are out of dams of unknown blood lines.

Courage First Requisite

"Give me a horse that's game and we've got a big start toward beating the purest-breds over the jumps," said a well-known civilian rider yesterday. "Blood lines are all right but they don't necessarily mean a horse has heart. And to take some of these jumps, the first requisite is courage. The faint-hearted mount hasn't a chance.

"Look at that old Dakota. He's 16 years old if he's a minute and he's the best bet to win first honors in the military jumping. Why? Because he has courage and loves to jump. You should see him in practice, or competition either, for that matter. He goes around the course with his tail actually whirling in delight and with him jumping is really a joy. With other horses it's a task."

No flash in the pan are the jumping and hunting stars. On the race tracks a steed is at his best at 4 years of age, is considered washed up and ready for retirement at 6. But Dakota at 16 is in his prime as a jumper. At 22, Joe Aylshire last year won top honors in the military events. From Arlington Hall today, Fritz Kleemann will bring his famed Kismet, a 32-year-old jumper, and Kismet is expected to take down another blue ribbon.

Rigorous Training

The disparity of the longevity of the track horses and the hunt horses is easily explainable. Running horses, trained for racing as 2-year-olds, are under high pressure. For each race they must be, in the vernacular of the tracks, "wound up" before each race, "unwound" after each race. To no such rigorous training is the hunter subjected.

"But," continues our informant, "that is not the reason our best jumpers are 10 years old and more. The jumper must be far more intelligent than the race horse. At 4 years, when the race horse is at his best, the jumper is still in the early stages of his training. His footwork must necessarily be intricate and his gauge of distances perfect or both horse and rider may be fatally hurt. Training a champion jumper is a matter of years."

And now may I disillusion you? Fellows like Hoot Gibson and Harry Carey, our heroes of the old Westerns, couldn't sit in a hunt saddle. I am reliably informed. Without their high pommels which make baskets of their saddles, they'd be lost. They would not know how to act in an English saddle with short stirrups, and in a hunt they'd be bums, no less.

We may as wel face the facts.

Hockey Player Retires

St. Louis, Oct. 19 (AP).—Bobby Burns, left-winger of the St. Louis flyers of the American Hockey Association, has made a business connection in Toronto, Canada, and has retired from hockey, Manager Johnny Mackinnon reported today.

Londos and Bruns Head Mat Program

Attractive Card Lined Up for Tonight
George Zaharias Will Meet Dr. Murphy
New Faces Offered in Supporting Cast

By Lewis F. Atchison.

It will be Jim Londos, the self-styled "international wrestling champion," against Bobby Bruns, the 24-year-old Chicago challenger, tonight at Turner's Arena in the headline bout of Joe Turner's weekly mat program.

It will be Bruns, the former Northwestern University football star, seeking revenge for two previous defeats handed him by the Greek last summer at the stadium.

And it will be Londos, the once great world champion, determined to prove to the old wrestling faithful he has lost none of his old-time artistry.

MURPHY

There will be four other attractive bouts on the card, offering wrestlers who run the gamut from a Golden Terror, or masked wrestler, to a Chinaman.

The Golden Terror, a stocky 230-pounder, whose identity has been carefully guarded, will make his debut against Sammy Menacher, from New York. They go 30 minutes or less.

Lee Yat Wing, son of an antique dealer, born in Canton and educated at the University of St. Louis, is the Chinese wrestler on the card—the first of his kind ever to wrestle here. Wing, who stands 5 feet 9 and weighs close to 200 pounds, meets the villainous Irish Jack McArthur. He is said to be especially fast and an expert in holds.

The semiwindup finds George Zaharias returning to familiar scenes to meet Chief Little Wolf. Zaharias yesterday was booked to replace Dr. Dropkick Murphy. Zaharias is reported married to Babe Didrikson, of Olympic and golf fame, and, if this be true, Babe will probably be at the arena.

Another 30-minute brawl will bring together Dr. Len Hall, the Nebraska Medico, who has the reputation of being the biggest braggart in the business, and Walt Percy, a newcomer from England.

Danowski Seeks Mark

Leads Pro Passers
May Set 2 Records
White, Krause Tops

By the Associated Press.

New York, Oct. 19.—Ed Danowski, former Fordham star now doing his forward passing for the New York Giants, is headed for a new National Football League record for completion of aerials.

Big Ed has completed 45 out of 76 tosses for 523 yards and an average of 59 per cent. By continuing his present pace, Danowski can establish two new individual records for the season. He is two passes a game ahead of the 1937 schedule of Washington's Sammy Baugh, who completed 81 aerials last year for a new league mark. Such a pace also would shade by a few yards Baugh's 11-game mark of 1,127 yards gained on completions.

Although Whizzer White, of Pittsburgh, and Max Krause, of Washington, were idle last Sunday they retained first and second place, respectively, in group gaining with 216 and 207 yards, Don Hutson, of Green Bay, took undisputed possession of first place in scoring with 31 points, two more than his teammate, Clarke Hinkle, while Ward Cuff kicked his fourth field goal of the season against Philadelphia to take command in that department of place.

All Teams in Shape For Big Horse Show

Mexican, Chilean, U. S. Horses Are Ready
Mexican Team Captain Praises Meadowbrook
Dakota, U. S. Ace, Appears in Top Form

By Hotspur.

Yesterday's preparatory schooling at Meadowbrook for the Inter-American Horse Show which starts today had the appearance of an Inter-American peace conference with the dove of peace preening its feathers, but the captains of the United States, Mexican, and Chilean army teams in tense attitudes of watchfulness—one eye on the performances of their own horses, and the other eye glued to what their competitors were doing.

Capt. Villareal of the Mexican Army Team, tall, slender, a born horseman, was approached and questioned regarding the condition of the Mexican horses. "They are all in fine shape," he replied. "Whatever the outcome, we could have no excuses to make in that respect."

He turned to watch their great jumper, Azteca, clear the difficult Toronto bank and go over the water jump as though it didn't exist. Then he smiled and said, "This is a very difficult course, very, as you say, tough. Toughest in America." Then he added with a wide-spread gesture that took in all Meadowbrook and its encircling trees, brilliant in autumn foliage, "It is also the most beautiful."

Azteca, Donaji, and Esmeralda, a new horse, seem to be the ones in which the Mexicans have the most confidence. They all looked good yesterday.

Dapper Maj. Yanez, captain of the Chilean army team, reports all their jumpers in fine condition except Chilena, which shares the top place on the South American team with Toqui. Chilena is so lame that she may be scratched; but there is a broad bright ray of sunshine for the Chileans. Toqui, the most beautiful horse in the ring yesterday, was going over the jumps in a sensational manner.

Maj. Yanez remarked upon the wonderful improvement in the Mexican team over its Washington appearance two years ago. While he would make no predictions, his attitude reflects supreme confidence in his team and the outcome of the strenuous four days of competition.

Maj. Cole, captain of the United States Army team, says, "I never saw such improvement in a team as that of the Mexican army team."

All the United States horses are in excellent condition, according to Maj. Cole. "Old Man Dakota," as the cavalry calls the United States Army's ace jumper, is in top form and he certainly looked it yesterday. If ever there was a horse that loves to jump, it's Dakota.

King High, a good looking gray, will be Maj. Cole's chief reliance next to Dakota. Dinger gave evidence of greatly improved jumping form due to the schooling and riding of Capt. Matteson, who thinks the big bay will come close to winning individual honors in the military competition. Maj. Cole, like Maj. Yanez and Capt. Villareal, was also chary of making any prediction regarding his team's chances of winning the military trophy.

He simply stated, "We'll do our best and I hope it's good enough."

DON BUDGE

By the United Press.

Salt Lake City, Oct. 19.—Dave Freed, secretary of the Intermountain Tennis Association, said tonight that Don Budge, world's No. 1 amateur tennis player, has been signed "for several weeks" on a one-year contract as a professional at $50,000 for the year.

The contract was offered by Jack Harris, Chicago promoter, according to Freed, who said Walt Senior, who made a pro tour last year with Ellsworth Vines and Fred Perry, had disclosed the Budge contract to him during a visit here in September.

"Senior told me that Budge had okayed a contract for a tour this winter," Freed said, terming as a "publicity stunt" the "disagreement" reported between Harris and Budge over whether the salary would be $100,000, asked by Budge, or $75,000, offered by Harris.

"Plans for the tour probably include Gottfried von Cramm," Freed said. "That is, if he can obtain permission to leave Germany."

Rodak Is Detained; To Arrive Today

Leo Rodak, the National Boxing Association's standard bearer, who meets Freddy Miller, of Cincinnati, for the world's featherweight crown in a 15-round match at Turner's Arena Monday night, was unavoidably delayed yesterday, and will not arrive in town until today.

Rodak, accompanied by his pilot, Nate Lewis, and trainer, Babe Herman, will arrive at 8:25 on the Capitol Limited. The Chicago ace will train at the National Sporting Club gym, 519 Morse street northwest at 2 o'clock each afternoon, and the public is invited.

Miller will open his drills here Friday.

D. C. Golf Team Beats Baltimore

Washington Women Score 11½ to 6½ Victory
Meckley-Dettweiler Even With Morrow-Marvin
Marion Brown-Mrs. Stokes Are Defeated

By Merrell W. Whittlesey.

A Staff Correspondent.

Baltimore, Oc. 19.—The District Women's Golf Association closed its intercity team match scheduled here today over the Elgridge Course with a decisive 11½ to 6½ victory over the host city combination, scoring its third victory in four matches.

The middle brackets, including the third to fifth teams, swept nine points to offset the deficit of the first, second, and sixth duos, and ran the season's count over the Baltimore All-Stars to 23½ to 12½.

The winners defeated the Oriole City 12, 12 to 6, in a previous encounter.

DETTWEILER

Mrs. Betty Meckley and Helen Dettweiler, who defeated the highly touted duo from Philadelphia, Mrs. Glenna Collett Vare and Mrs. Thomas Hulme in Washington on Tuesday, were forced to win the eighteenth hole to earn an even split of the three points against Mrs. E. Boyd Morrow, many time Maryland and Middle Atlantic champion, and the transplanted South American star, Evelyn Marvin.

Marion Brown Loses

In the second match Marion Brown and her partner Mrs. Walter Stokes also won the last hole to gain a point against two for Mrs. Louise Bell and Mrs. T. E. Schluderberg. The latter team was three up at the ninth and won the 18-hole match, 2 and 1.

Mrs. L. G. Pray and Mrs. Myron Davy earned three points over Mrs. Jerome Sloman and Gladys Greiner, teaming perfect as Mrs. Pray did a lion's share of the work on the front nine and Mrs. Davy rallied on the back to end everything by the sixteenth hole.

Mrs. Landra Platt, Chevy Chase Club championship finalist, played two nines of 42 for an 84 and was ably assisted by Mrs. K. S. Giles, of Indian Spring, in winning three points from Mrs. H. C. Trace and Effie Bowes. Mrs. George Hussey and Louise Claytor were never extended in clinching the match for the District team as they trounced Mrs. Paul Darrington and Mrs. Ralph Holmans. A substitute District duo, Mrs. Y. E. Booker, Chevy Chase, and team captain, Mrs. N. J. Waldron, Beaver Dam, lost the eighteenth hole and three points to Mrs. W. H. Evans and Mrs. C. C. Barr, who scored the only shutout for the hosts.

Miss Marvin Stars

Miss Marvin was the individual star of the feature match, playing the Elkridge course in 81, while Miss Dettweiler had an approximate 83 and Mrs. Morrow an 84. They halved the first nine, and then the Baltimore team had an opportunity to win 2½ points on the eighteenth hole as they compiled a one-hole lead on the back nine, but Miss Dettweiler drove 220 yards and dropped a four iron on the pin to clinch the hole and save the points.

It was a successful season for the D. C. team, as their 23½ to 12½ margin over the Baltimoreans proved their superiority, while the 18-18 draw in two matches with the supposedly stronger Philadelphia team was very satisfactory.

WASHINGTON, 11½; BALTIMORE, 6½

Mrs. Betty Meckley (Indian Spring) and Helen Dettweiler (Congressional), all even with Mrs. E. B. Morrow (Elkridge), and Evelyn Marvin (Suburban), 1½ points to 1½.

Mrs. Louise Bell (Hillendale) and Mrs. T. E. Schluderberg (Baltimore C. C.), defeated Marion Brown (Manor), and Mrs. Walter Stokes (Indian Spring), 2 points to 1.

Mrs. L. G. Pray (Manor), and Mrs. Myron Davy (Congressional), defeated Mrs. Jerome Sloman (Suburban), and Miss Gladys Greiner (Elkridge), 3 points to 0.

Mrs. Landra Platt (Chevy Chase), and Mrs. K. S. Giles (Indian Spring), defeated Mrs. H. C. Trace (Rodgers Forge), and

Sam Snead Leads Pros

Tops Vardon Play

By the Associated Press.

New York, Oct. 19.—Though he failed to win either the National Open or the national professional championship, Sam Snead, of White Sulhpur Springs, W. Va., is leading the Nation's golf pros, both in money winning and in the race for the Professional Golfers Association's low-scoring Harry Vardon Trophy.

SNEAD

With a $2,000 Open at his home course next on the schedule, November 8-10, Snead has piled up earnings of $17,572.83, the biggest contribution to that being the $5,000 first prize he took down in the Westchester 108. His total already has set a new record for one-year winnings, and should be jacked up considerably before December 31, since $29,000 in prize money still is to be distributed.

Recover From Spills

Washington's own blue-ribbon special, the Inter-American Horse Show, opens its four-day stand at 2:20 o'clock this afternoon at the Meadowbrook Show Grounds, where the city's horse people will be on hand to applaud a field including many of the finest stables in the North, South and East.

Exact number of entries for this, one of the outstanding shows of the country, could not be determined at a late hour last night, due to the failure of several expected stables to report, but officials confidently predicted more than 400 entries, composed of some 150 horses.

Among the missing prominent stable owners will be Mrs. John Hay Whitney, Upperville, Va., and Mr. and Mrs. Alvin Untermayer, Greenwich, Conn. Mrs. Whitney, world-renowned for her string of magnificent thoroughbreds, is in Hollywood and her absence robs local horse lovers of another chance to see her Hexameter, which dominated last year's show.

Recovering From Spills

The local contingent, many preparing for competition in the Governor's Cup event, seem to be in excellent condition, despite several nasty spills at the Indian Spring Hunt Club show Sunday. Fenton M. Fadeley, captain of the Maryland Governor's Cup team and an outstanding threat for blue ribbons in other events, apparently has fully recovered from a tumble taken when his Laquer Lady made a bad takeoff for a jump.

The Virginia sportsman is displaying a "mouse" and some scratches about his eye but otherwise is ready for further honors. Laquer Lady, too, is in fine form as a recent workout convinced her owner and a group of concerned spectators.

Margaret Cotter, leader of Washington's team, also has shaken off ill effects of her fall Sunday with her crack jumper, Rocksie, and is set for another fine performance.

She and other leading District exhibitors, including Mrs. Gardner Hollman's Lady and Jack and Elizabeth Steig's Hi-Ho, have turned in promising workouts this week.

U. S. Team Drills

The United States team, which will compete against Army teams from Chile and Mexico, has been drilling regularly at Fort Myer and is now quartered along with the Chileans and Mexicans at Meadow Brook.

A striking difference can be noted in size, color and stature among the three species of horses. The Chilean horses are much smaller and more slightly built than the others and also are practically devoid of a winter coating. This is probably due to the warmer climate of Chile.

There are seven events on today's program. They are model hunters, open jumping, limit hunters, international jumping teams, hunters hacks, the Governor's Cup and ladies' working hunters.

Pro grid notes . . . One of the chief reasons the Detroit Lions are pleased to call themselves "the world's most colorful football team" is the new instrument developed by Graham T. Overgard, director of the Wayne University band, which produces an authentic lion's roar. Another band feature of the Lions is the largest bass drum ever manufactured. It is 74 inches high and 24 inches wide and is carried around on a four-wheeled cart. Wayne Millner, Redskins' end and in the writer's opinion the best of 'em all, is the only former Notre Dame gridder now playing in the National Professional League. Two pairs of players on the New York Giants were born on the same day and in the same year. And, would you believe, one of each pair is a halfback, the other a guard. Leonard (Feets) Barnum, halfback, and Orville Tuttle, guard, celebrated their twenty-eighth birthdays on September 18. Ward Cuff, halfback, and Ken Lunday, guard, were both born on August 13, 1913.

HERMAN

As a constant reminder of the collapse of Pittsburgh's pennant-bound Pirates, several of the Smoky City baseball writers still wear in the lapels of their coats handsome pins, inscribed "World Series-1938-Pittsburgh, Forbes Field." They are the pins issued by the ball club in anticipation of the fall classic . . . Speaking of baseball, reports from St. Louis say the race for managerships of the Cardinals and Browns is still fairly open, although Billy Herman is not wanted by the Cards since the World Series. Two former catchers, Ray Schalk and Harold (Muddy) Ruel are said to have the inside track for the Browns' job.

Here'n there . . . Planning another "foray on Broadway," the 50-piece Georgetown band and a goodly number of students will accompany the football team to New York for Saturday's game with Manhattan. Georgetown alumni groups in the Gotham also are preparing elaborate celebration . . . Bing Crosby, who makes more than any other star in filmdom is a turf enthusiast, plays the lead in a racing picture for the first time. St. John's Prep, with one of the finest football teams in its annals, confidently looks forward to revenging last year's defeat by its arch-rival, Gonzaga.

Down In Front

By Richards Vidmer

Not So Hardboiled

New York, Oct. 19.—Jim Braddock was heavyweight champion of the world and in just a couple of days he would go into the ring to face the most celebrated slugger of modern times. Everyone was saying that Joe Louis would knock him out and some of their words must have got back to Jim.

VIDMER.

Yet there he sat in front of his training quarters looking like a man without a care in the world. I wondered at his placidity as he talked of inconsequential things, and I wondered if he weren't nervous or excited or tense.

"No, why should I be," he replied when I asked him. And then he smiled as he added, "Ive been knocked out for a lot less than I'm going to get for this fight, and he ain't goin' to kill me."

Dizzy Dean was going out to face the Yankees in just a few minutes; going out to beat them with a crippled arm and a change of pace that ranged from slow to slower and sometimes slowest.

That was all he had left of his pitching greatness, that and a great heart and a baseball brain, nothing more.

"Aw, it's just another game as far as I'm concerned," he said in answer to a question. "They're just another ball club; they ain't so great."

And so it would seem with professional athletes and those closely connected with professional athletes—the crowd may have the chills running up and down their spine, they may cheer themselves hoarse with excitement and feel their pulses pound, but the fellow down there on the field or up there in the ring takes it all in stride.

Too Tough to Take

The day that Yale played Columbia at New Haven, I ran into Frankie Frisch in the Bowl, and asked him why he wasn't at the Cornell-Colgate game instead.

"You mean because of Johnny?" he asked.

Frisch shook his head.

"I can't take it," he said. "Why, Johnny has been like my own son. I've known him and been around him since he was that high, and the first time I ever saw him play football I choked up so I had to leave. Honestly, tears came to my eyes I was so stirred."

This seemed strange coming from Frank Frisch. He had played football himself at Fordham. He had been an all-American, selected by Walter Camp. Was he afraid Johnny would get hurt? Frank shook his head.

"No, it isn't that," he said. "I think it's great that he's playing, but I start to blubber every time I watch him. I guess it's just that I'm so damn proud of him."

Fathers and Sons

And it must be just as tough for Eddie Collins, as he sits in the stands at New Haven and watches his fine young son perform in the Blue backfield these Saturday afternoons. It was easy enough for Eddie to take it when he was playing quarterback for Columbia, World Series games became a routine in his years with the old Athletics, and as general manager of the Boston Red Sox he probably can watch the club struggle through the season without a single chill. But when his own boy is out there on the football field it's a different matter.

And Billy Gibson has a boy playing center for Dartmouth, a smashing, dashing, roving center. I doubt if Billy ever knew the same tenseness in his throat even when he squatted in the corner and saw Benny Leonard floored by Lew Tendler and then come up off the canvas to win, or Gene Tunney plunge out at the opening gong at Philadelphia and rip and tear the heavyweight championship away from Jack Dempsey. I doubt if he was half as thrilled during those fights as he is these Saturday afternoons watching his red headed Bob back up the Dartmouth line.

Coaches Holiday

Lou Young saw a lot of football players come and go during his tour of coaching at Penn and possibly he became accustomed to the parade. But alongside Bob Gibson, playing a guard, is Lou Young, jr., and the seasoned coach must find it much harder to sit still in the stands than it was on the sidelines in the years gone by. In those seasons it was only his team that was out there on the field! now it's his boy.

Eagles Outlook Saturday Dark

American University, as Coach Gus Welch will tell you, is worrying more about being able to put eleven men on the field Saturday against St. John's at Annapolis than tales of the foe's triple-threat backs or ponderous tackles.

With their tail feathers very well plucked by Swarthmore last week, the Eagles are hopeful of flying high this week-end, but recent injuries to Mervin Werksman, halfback, and Kimber Shoop make that highly doubtful.

Werksman, a local boy, received a broken ankle in the Swarthmore game and is out indefinitely, while Shoop, bulwark of the Eagles' line, sustained a painful ankle injury. This pair joins the rapidly mounting inactive list which already included several of the team's stars. Two of these, Davido and Fox, however, may be ready for action Saturday.

Filchock Is Due to See Plenty of Action Against Eagles

Newcomer Impresses Flaherty

Flashes Form in Drill Is Excellent Passer Good Defensively 'Skins Fear Eagles

By Shirley Povich.

Frank Filchock, a Redskin who has yet to see action in a Redskin uniform, will be unveiled before Washington's football public on Sunday at Griffith Statdium.

Withheld from last Sunday's game against the Detroit Lions for reasons which will require another paragraph, Mr. Filchock will see a deal of duty against the Philadelphia Eagles, Head Coach Ray Flaherty indicated yesterday.

In the Redskins 'workout yesterday, Filchock, a blond Czech, took over the direction of the team's passing attack and was employed on half the team's running plays. Flaherty was quite won over by the manner in which the fellow acquired from Pittsburgh performed.

"Unless I'm mistaken, he'll be in our backfield as long as any other player on our club," said Flaherty. "I know now what he can do. I'm not afraid to take a chance on him.

"Filchock didn't play in the Detroit game because I had never seen much of him on the defense. I had seen him beat the New York Giants with two touchdown passes and I wasn't worried about that part of his game, but out there in Detroit we had to play a defensive game. I couldn't take a chance on Filchock. But he'll be in there Sunday."

The bulk of the Redskins' workout yesterday was given over to the defense against the Eagles' long-range passing attack. With Joe Carter, Bill Hewitt and Jay Arnold as receivers, the Eagles have been in the habit of turning loose long aerials on which Dick Riffle and Dave Smukler have been on the passing end.

The Eagles' passing game all but licked the Redskins in the 26-23 affair at Philadelphia last month and much of its effectiveness was due to the superb protection given Smukler and Riffle on their throws.

Sending only three men down field, the Eagles surrounded the passer with blockers and Smukler and Riffle had an inordinate long time to survey the field for receivers. Yesterday the Redskins concentrated on a charge that would hurry the Eagles' throwers.

Coach Flaherty, who has been withholding Sammy Baugh from his starting line-ups, is expected to change that custom and start Baugh against the Eagles. He envisions a free-scoring game and deems Baugh's presence at the outset as vital.

When Baugh is not in the backfield, Filchock will share with Bill Hartman the Redskins' passing duties. Despite Hartman's impressive record with his passes and his superb poise, Filchock is regarded in many quarters as a superior passthrower.

General Manager Jack Espey of the Redskins announced last night that although a sell-out for the game is anticipated, reserved seats are still plentiful.

"On Sunday, standing room will not be sold," said Espey. "Sales will stop when all seats are exhausted. Inconvenience caused the fans by standees at the Giants' game will not be repeated."

Soccer Sponsored By Gallaudet

In need of a vigorous outdoor sport since football was temporarily suspended, Gallaudet College is now adopting soccer, and it is the hope of Coach Teddy Hughes that it can soon be classed with basketball, wrestling and track as an active game among Kendall Green students.

Although the sport is only a few weeks old at Gallaudet, Hughes is hopeful that a team can be formed and meets arranged with nearby colleges and universities. Fencing also is new at Gallaudet this year and many candidates are taking an active interest in the delicate, skillful sport.

Colonials Lose Tonkavitch, Rebholz for Game Tomorrow

By Jack Munhall.

George Washington's surprisingly able Colonials will be missing two regular players when they expose their undefeated, untied and unscored-on record to Davis and Elkins at Griffith Stadium tomorrow night.

John Tonkavitch, brilliant sophomore fullback who came into his own against Colorado last week when he reeled off a touchdown run of 57 yards, and John Rebholz, senior 200-pound tackle and a leader of the strong Colonial line, are definitely out of the game.

Tonkavitch is nursing a painfully sprained ankle and Rebholz an aggravation of an old knee injury which caused him considerable trouble last season. Although Tonkavitch has been a doubtful starter all week while Trainer George Lentz worked overtime to try to get him in shape, the news that Rebholz will not be available was made known only yesterday.

Right Knee Wrenched

X-ray pictures, together with a report by Dr. Daniel Borden, school physician, revealed Rebholz's right knee is wrenched and is further irritated by a large, discolored bump.

Complete rest has been ordered for the pair and both are expected to be in shape for Friday week's game with Mississippi, a much more imporant contest for the Colonials than is Davis and Elkins.

With the exception of Rebholz and Tonkavitch, the G. W. squad is in fine condition. Gone are the wearying after-effects of a four-day train trip and most of the bruises received in the hard-fought Colorado battle. Vic Sampson is complaining of a soreness about his throat and Tackle Sunny Jones of a disordered stomach but both ailments are expected to be negligible and in no way a handicap.

Coach Bill Reinhart after leading his squad through another light dummy scrimmage, with emphasis on forward pass defense and blocking, announced that tomorrow night's line-up will be the same as started against Colorado, with the single exception of Rebholz. Tonkavitch was not a starter in that game. Duce Keahey, a 198-pounder, probably will replace Rebholz.

G. U. Scrimmages Frosh

Georgetown, the District's other undefeated eleven, dummy scrimmaged against the freshman again yesterday in an effort to smooth out any lingering defects of attack or defense before Manhattan is met Saturday in a testing game at Yankee Stadium.

The Hoya line, a group of nice lads averaging 190 pounds, which has yielded only one first down in three games this season, continued to defy the opposition's attempts to dent it. Led by Tackle Joe Frank and Center Jim Reichey the varsity forward wall completely outplayed the frosh who are almost equally large.

It is on this formidable line and the probability that Joe Mellendeck, fleet halfback, will be able to break away for some of his characteristic long, twisting runs that Coach Jack Hagerty bases his hopes for a Georgetown victory.

Catholic University's Cardinals, eager to hit the comeback trail against West Virginia Wesleyan Saturday at C. U. Stadium, yesterday were given for study four significant numbers: 17, 12, 13 and 88.

These innocous-appearing numerals are nothing of the sort, avers Coach "Dutch" Bergman who knows that four fierce Bobcat stars lurk underneath. No. 17 covers the broad back of Mede Mullen, Wesleyan fullback and the team's outstanding star.

Allen Mackey, a triple-threat halfback, hides in front of No. 12; Clark Thurman, an excellent passer, sports No. 13, while Eddie Meigghan, a sub and a smart passer, wears No. 88.

Notice, please, that three of the men Bergman has marked for scrutiny are forward passers. Recall what Detroit's Eddie Palumbo did to the Cards with his bullet-throwing and you will understand.

Maryland divided yesterday's practice session at College Park between devising a defense to halt Jim Gillette, Virginia backfield ace, and in tuning up its own attack for the Cavaliers' invasion Saturday.

The Terps have a wholesome fear of what Mr. Gillette can do with a football, and because their own one-too-strong line has been weakened by injuries, are working overtime to develop an adequate defense.

Leo Mueller, dependable end reserve, is the latest Terrapin to be forced out of action. Mueller was hurt in the Western Maryland game Saturday, but it was hoped that he would recover in time for the traditional Virginia classic. He didn't.

This injury reduced Maryland's varsity squad to the pitifully small number of 24 players and a hurried call was issued to recruit Charley Morris, an end of the junior varsity.

Where There's a Featherweight There's Usually Mr. Reilly!

One Smart Manager Has Freddy Miller Knows the Game

By Lewis F. Atchison.

With Freddy Miller poking his battle-scarred, schoolboyish face back into the championship picture through the medium of his 15-round bout with Leo Rodak Monday at the Arena, it appears that Pete Reilly, alias the Silver Fox, may get his thumbs in the featherweight pie again. That would not be news, of course, in a strict interpretation of the word, but it gives us something to work on.

Reilly, to establish his identity, is Miller's manager. He and the featherweight championship were inseparable until Petey Sarron gave Miller a good thrashing at the ball park a couple of summers ago. Since then Reilly has been like a man without a country, a duck out of water.

The graying ring strategist long ago won recognition as the guardian angel of the 126-pound crown, and foster father to its wearers. He managed to work himself into a fine dither over possession of the crown jewels years ago and never completely recovered. His passion for the title possibly arises from the discovery, made years ago, that the featherweight champion, fighting every week, 52 weeks in the year, coins more money than any other pugilist, barring the heavyweight champion.

Reilly first realized the possibilities in owning the championship when Tony Canzoneri, a moon-faced, iron-fisted Italian boy, was earning a pretty peso with the featherweight title. That intrigued Reilly.

Had Three Champions

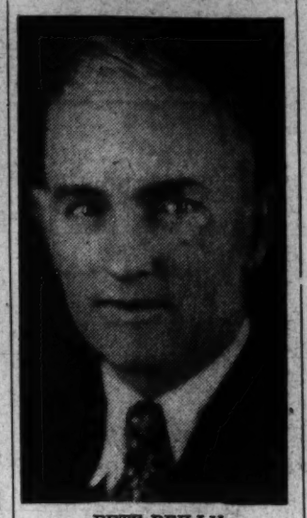
He started by digging Andre Routis out of New York's subway circuit and purchasing his contract. Routis, to show his appreciation, went out and blasted Canzoneri from under his featherweight diadem. The success of this venture supplied enough momentum to rush Reilly to the top in the ring game. A shrewd judge of men and a capable business agent, he parlayed his original investment in Routis into there champions and yards and yards of long green—the variety usually found in box offices and sometimes referred to as velvet.

But Routis was merely a tough club fighter at best, and when Reilly heard of a kid tagged "Battling" Battalino, who had experts thumbing through dictionaries for fresh adjectives, he suspected the kid of being a therat to Routis' supremacy. His deepest suspicions were confirmed when Battalino wrested the title away from Routis in a bout that grossed $50,000. But Pete was left holding only the money bags. He had taken the precaution to buy Battalino's contract immediately after the fight.

Unaccustomed as he was to eating regularly, Battalino proceeded to bulge slightly around the waistline, and swell a bit over the 126-pound limit. When they weighed him for a scheduled bout with Lew Feldman at Madison Square Garden, the scales revealed that "Bat" had burrowed through miles of spaghetti and the featherweight class into the lightweight division. The fight was canceled and the customers' money refunded.

This was one of the most unfortunate incidents of Feldman's career, for wizened ring experts still say he was a lock to whip Battalino that night. It wrought hardship with Reilly, too, for he had arranged to buy Feldman's contract in the event that he won—and made a deposit on same.

That cancellation, incidentally, caused a fissure in featherweight ranks. New York recognized Kid Chocolate as champion when he stopped Feldman in 12 rounds on October 13, 1932, with the National Boxing Association dissenting. In January of 1933 Fredd Miller whipped Tommy Paul in the finals of a Chicago tournament, and the N. B. A. recognized him as its champion. Oh, yes, Reilly had purchased his contract, and, it is reliably reported, had an option on most of the others entered. Petey Sarron and Fidel LaBarba also were entered in the lists.



PETE REILLY

Interesting Career Started 'Way Back Had 3 Champions

Miller was not champion in New York, of course, but that didn't fog Mr. Reilly's happiness, for his boy was recognized in the remaining 47 States. He was completely satisfied—until Sarron came along and bumped off Miller. Reilly tried to buy Petey's articles only to find that Jimmy Erwin, Sarron's manager, had his own inimitable ideas about Pete's idea.

Miller and Reilly trailed Sarron to South Africa in a vain attempt to get the title back, but their quest failed. Reilly was extremely unhappy—until Matchmaker Ahearn wired him, inquiring if Miller would like to box Leo Rodak for the N. B. A. title. Would he?

We are checking a report that Mr. Reilly already has an option on Rodak in the event he wins Monday, but wouldn' be too sure of it—not with Nate Lewis doing Rodak's business.

Nathan is not to be misled on such matters.

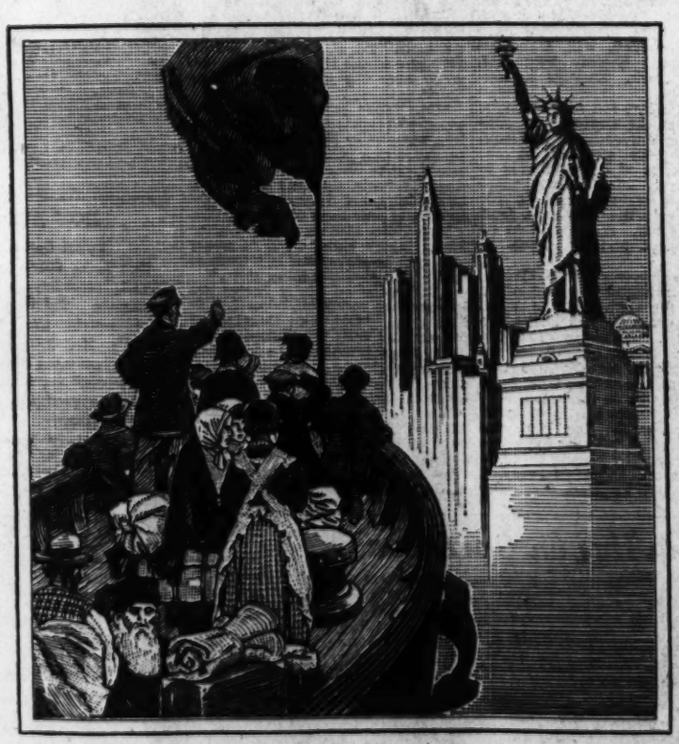
See America First... Last... and Always



Yes, see America for what it really is—better than a promised land.

To our forefathers it was just a plain land of promise with no trimmings. The merciless frontier drove hard bargains... demanded privations and daring in exchange for day-to-day existence. But they were thankful and confident.

Today vast oceans still guard our freedom. We have the Earth's greatest storehouse of natural resources. Comforts and conveniences abound. Best of all, we see every promise of a future more generous still. For America? Yes! But especially for all those with the spirit of America's pioneers.

Mrs. Priddy Victor Miss Wood Triumphs All-Richmond Play For State's Title

By the Associated Press.

Richmond, Va., Oct. 19.—A stunning quarter-final upset eliminated Mrs. Lily Harper Martin, young Portsmouth star, who has reigned over Virginia's feminine golfers for four years, from the seventh annual State tournament today.

Mrs. Clara Priddy, of Richmond, seeking to regain the crown she won in 1930, played consistent golf to nose out the defending champion 1-up in 18 holes. Mrs. Martin showed none of the flashy stroking which gave her a sub-par card in yesterday's spectacular first round and Mrs. Priddy had only to card an 87, ten blows over regulation figures, to triumph.

The lightning struck just as unexpectedly a second time when Miss Lillian Wood, tall Richmond girl, eliminated Mrs. George Owens, the tournament medalist and co-favorite from Petersburg, 3 and 2.

Hamby, Roanoke, 3 and 2; Mrs. Hunter Watson, Crewe, defeated Mrs. John Ryland, Richmond, 5 and 4; Mrs. Jean Jones, Richmond, defeated Mrs. C. C. Vaughan, Richmond, 2 up.

Georgia Coleman Is Heroine of Comeback

Diver Recovers From Infantile Paralysis Story of Recovery Great Tale of Will Power Now Wants to Design Swim Suits for Children

By Jack Cuddy.

Copyright, 1938, by the United Press.

New York, Oct. 19.—The Springboard:

Georgia Coleman sat on the hotel bed and gazed gleefully down at her black satin slippers. She lifted her long black evening gown slightly to feast her eyes on the new footgear.

She said, "at last I'm wearing high heels again. They feel like stilts. But they feel wonderful—like going up in the air once more."

COLEMAN

She rose, gave her bobbed, thick blonde hair a final pat befnre the mirror. She put on her new three-quarter coat of shiney black monkey hair. Then pinned a corsage of orchids to the coat. She was ready—all set for her radio performance.

It was a night of triumph for Georgia. She could lift her arms and move her hands with freedom. She could walk—still with just a slight hesitation. She could talk in her natural voice. She was wearing gorgeous apparel. She was back on Broadway in high heels. Her springboard had lifted her a long way.

You can appreciate her rise if you recall Georgia's story. As a child she lived in Catalina Island, near Los Angeles, with her parents and her two brothers and two sisters. She was in the water half the time, swimming every day.

Later the Coleman family migrated to Florida, then to Houston, Tex., and finally to Santa Barbara, Calif. During that prolonged migration, she learned to dive from springboards and tower. By 1928 she was the best woman diver in the United States. In the Olympic games at Amsterdam that year she won the tower dive, but that was all.

In '32 she made a grand slam of American diving championships, taking the 3-foot, 10-foot and tower titles. No other woman, before or since, ever accomplished this. In addition she won the 10-foot title at the Los Angeles Olympic games, the most coveted trophy. She was queen of the world's divers. That was her last international competition.

Came marriage, professional appearances, separation and then——

Last November Georgia was stricken with paralysis. Unconscious for nearly a month, her mind gradually drifted back to the world, just about the time people were preparing for Christmas. With consciousness came the ghastly realization that she couldn't move arms or legs, as she lay there on the Los Angeles hospital bed. Her voice was baby-thin. She was helplessly paralyzed. Incautious visitors remarked that her limbs were withering away and that her once pudgy face was almost skeletonized.

Back to the water! That was her request, her entreaty, her command. Her parents and physicians declared such a move might prove fatal. But she insisted. She begged. She screamed. Finally they took her to the water—to a pool, where she sank like a stone. Friends hauled her out.

But she wasn't beaten. Not Georgia Coleman. She forced them to take her to the pool day after day. At last she could float. Then slight movements came to her limbs. Gradually the movements increased.

She was removed to a health camp near Los Angeles where her dips continued and where she started taking the lightest of exercises. She regained complete the use of hands and arms—and gradually her legs.

Now, at 26, she is in New York. She came for one radio appearance. But she hopes to remain in the city as a designer of bathing suits for children—bathing suits equipped with a new self-inflating life belt. She tries to skate now and then at the "Gay Blades." She swims daily.

She insists that ultimately she'll be diving again. Maybe she will. Because she has the necessary springboard—fashioned from heroic courage and steel determination—that lifted a daughter of despair back to high heels on Broadway.

Race of Schooners Again Postponed

Aboard Schooner Gertrude L. Thebaud Off Gloucester, Mass. (via Radio Telephone), Oct. 19 (AP).—The third scheduled race between the Canadian defender of the International Fishermen's Trophy, Capt. Angus Walters' Bluenose, and the Gloucester challenger, Capt. Ben Pine's Gertrude L. Thebaud, was postponed today when Bluenose's steering gear became disabled just before starting time.

The two schooners had gone out to the start of an 18-mile triangular course, which they were to have raced twice around, when the big saltbanker from Lunenburg, Nova Scotia, raised a red ensign, indicating trouble.

Hitchcock's Annibal Wins Chevy Chase Steeplechase

On Fishing

When reports of good catches come from Capt. Taft Tippett at Ridge, the going is usually excellent, for he is conservative to say the least. He notes stripers weighing up to seven pounds, and as many as 60 to the boat. As if that isn't enough, almost identical cards from Raub Drury and Brady McKay.

ACKERMAN.

For the past week, these captains in St. Jeromes have been predicting, all that was needed was a little cold weather, to bring the fishing to a par with that all time high of last season.

Of that we wouldn't be so sure. Neither would we take a chance on saying this section wouldn't enjoy that kind of fishing again this year. But it doesn't hardly seem probable that the rock will congregate in the one large school, as they did then, with the great amount of food everywhere in the bay.

In the Patuxent, the schools are sticking to their home waters, and supplying Solomon Islanders with a type of fishing they haven't had before, this season. Catches in numbers so great we feel constrained to withhold the figures—although in all fairness to these boatmen—they are fishing for the market in the absence of parties. The individual fish running greater in weight than at any other point on the Chesapeake from which we have had reports.

In the mouth of West River, and Herring Bay, even though the schools are rising fairly regularly, they are producing but few catches. Just across, however, in Eastern Bay, and at Swan Point, in the mouth of the Chester River, is an entirely different story, for this is the best season of the year for the Rock Hall boats, and Capt. Bob Lee's Shadyside boats, are daily bringing in fine catches from the Bloody Point area.

Everywhere, the yellow-headed Florida feathers seem to be the only lure to get results. Also some lead is being used at times, which does take some of the joy out of life.

Kilbourne Castell leaves tomorrow for another trip to the North Carolina beaches below Oregon Inlet, for the big spottails that are consistantly bettering the thirty pound mark, and taking almost any lure or bait offered. On one of his earlier trips, the flies were so savage in their pursuit of fresh meat, he and his companion were forced to take to the water to escape them. Since we are willing to wager, a large bottle of dope has been the most important accessory in his kit bag. A fact worth noting by any angler considering a trip to this section, for, often throughout the month of October, these pests are liable to make life miserable for surfmen, without protection.

George O. Sutton, whose new Wheeler cruiser, Happy Days, was in the white marlin schools at Ocean City from the beginning of the run, until the very end, is getting ready for a ten-day cruise to Hatteras Inlet, where Paul Townsend and Bill Dickey, after a short hunting trip, are again searching the offshore waters for the elusive blue marlin.

Corey Ford, well-known sportsman and author, is on his way to shoot at his hunting lodge in Bladen County, N. C., with his partner, Alastair McBain, on what they term their "plantation."

Everyone seems to be either going or coming to this sportsman's paradise, that appears to have been "found" only in the past several years.

Large schools of fish, strayed from warmer waters, have had their part in its discovery. Just this week, an angler landed a 65-pound whipray in New River Inlet with nothing but a small-caliber pistol as his tackle. With a party, he had been fishing for trout and channel bass with eminent success, when he noticed a commotion on the opposite side of the river. Investigation proved it to be a large ray, a tropical cousin of our common stingray, floundering in the shallow water, evidently marooned by the outgoing tide.

Wading in the water, to better direct the course of the many shots required to kill it, while the fish repeatedly tried to sink the barbed bone of its buggy-whip-tail, the battle was all in favor of the big fish.

The whip, which measured 1 inch over 5 feet is being mounted as a trophy.

Our Guest Selector

Our Guest Selector for today is James McDermott, a blacksmith. He puts shoes, not hard-earned dollars on horses. While his father once did a heavy business with the carriage horses, McDermott deals almost exclusively with bangtails that circle nearby tracks. He strikes the nail on the head when he says that most horses are only as good as their shoes. While his friends put theirs on the nag's nose, "Mac" puts his on the hoofs. He doesn't recommend that The Post readers hock the family jewels to get down on these, but he does contend they have an excellent chance to fill out the money circle on the Laurel card today:

1—Que Gato, Balcony, Jadaan.

3—Mary Allen, Carnage, Yarn Sox.

7—Package, Would Dare, Prettylass.

Best bet—Ghostflyer.

Second Spot Is Taken by Stablemate

Rioter Trails Winner Four Horses in Race 7,500 Watch Event Victor Pays $2.70

By Walter Haight.

Staff Correspondent

Laurel, Md., Oct. 19.—Annibal, French-bred gelding, won the Chevy Chase Steeplechase Handicap in the light green and gold colors of Tommy Hitchcock, the polo star. Won in a draw after Hitchcock and other sportsmen had imported a group of horses last year, Annibal scored her fifth victory in six starts this year and brought Rigan McKinney, wealthy gentleman rider, his third victory in this stake.

A stablemate of the winner, Rioter, was second in the vest pocket field of four competing in the test of 16 fences and 2½ miles. Many observers believed that Jockey J. Mason had eased up Rioter at the final brush to give the chief honors to Annibal and McKinney.

The Hitchcock entry also dominated the betting. The 7,500 customers flocked to the pair and a payoff of $2.70 resulted. Good Chance, representing the capable Rokeby Stable, was third close up with Game Runner, owned by Mrs. F. M. Gould, a distant fourth. With the exception of two poor landings by Game Runner the jumping was without mishap.

The victory was worth $4,475 in win money to Hitchcock. Annibal now has a total of $17,079 for the year.

Rioter, beaten here last week when McKinney lost a stirrup, set virtually all the pace today, while Annibal brought up the rear. McKinney, however, fairly brushed the beacons in saving ground.

With two jumps to go, Annibal was put to pressure. He came to the inside at the final fence and went to the front as Rioter slowed. Good Chance, under wraps for the final bid, was turned loose but could not cope with the other two.

Annibal was clocked in 4:36 3-5, far over the record for the course and the race.

A pair of well-backed horses contributed victories in the key races to bring a $28.30 payoff to daily double wagerers. After Lone Hand had come from far back to take the day's opener at an individual mutuel of $9.70, Solar Flight, a $6.30 shot, annexed the third event.

The day's best flat race was the fifth, the Grade A Handicap, and the chief money went the way of so many others—to the W. L. Brann Stable, trained by Lou Schaefer, the former jockey. Savage Beauty, with George Seabo up, was the winner under a powerful drive that barely allowed the daughter of Challenger 2d to last ahead of Mr. Canron. Rex Flag continued to disappoint, finishing third in the field of six. The winner was the favorite at $4.30.

2d Carlin Will Filed by Widow In Alexandria

Written in 1892 Leaves Her Estate Other Probated Here

Mrs. Lillian B. Carlin, widow of former Representative Charles C. Carlin, has offered for probate in the Corporation Court of Alexandria, Judge William P. Wools, presiding, a will, written in his handwriting and dated August 16, 1892, in which the entire real and personal estate of Mr. Carlin is left to his wife.

The will disposes of property situated in the City of Alexandria of the value of approximately $30,000, and real estate in the counties of Arlington and Fairfax, valued at approximately $50,000. In her petition to the court Mrs. Carlin asks that she be appointed administratrix and that no security be required since she is the sole beneficiary.

A court order has been issued by Judge Woolls directing the clerk of the court and the city sergeant of Alexandria to summons Charles C. Carlin, jr., and C. Keith Carlin to appear in court November 14 to show cause why the will should not be admitted to probate.

A will dated last year was filed Tuesday in Washington leaving the Alexandria property in trust for life to Mrs. Carlin, and appointing his sons, Keith and C. C. Carlin, jr., trustees for the Alexandria Gazette. Property in Washington would go to Keith Carlin on his mother's death. The sons were named executors.

Doctor Buried In Walnut Coffin, 20-Year-Old Wish

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Parsons, W. Va., Oct. 19.—Timber, which he ordered cut 20 years ago and which he had stored for as many years, was fashioned into a coffin yesterday for Dr. U. M. Carwell, 65, of Hendricks, who was buried inside of it today.

Dr. Carwell desired a coffin of solid black walnut, and for the last score years maintained a store of the wood near his home. C. E. Wagner, a Parsons carpenter, made the casket from it.

A native of Augusta County, Va., Dr. Carwell came to this section 30 years ago, and besides a private practice he was physician and surgeon for the Western Maryland Railroad Co. for many years. He leaves a wife and four sons and daughters.

Prince Georges Hears Plan to Number Streets

Wohlfarth Heads Club $100,000 Plan Passes Service Chiefs Meet

Plans for a uniform street naming and house numbering system in the Metropolitan area of Prince Georges County were presented to a special citizen's committee by officials of the Maryland-National Capital Park and Planning Commission, at a meeting last night, at the University of Maryland.

The committee was appointed last November by representatives of all communities in the Metropolitan area, and was ordered to work with the park and planning commission to develop a system of house numbering and street naming in accordance with an act of the last State Assembly. A modified extension of the Washington street system was recommended by the committee, and since the last meeting, three months ago, the planning commission has been working out details of such a plan.

If the plan meets with the approval of the citizens' committee it will be presented to delegates from all communities in the area.

Present at the meeting were Irving C. Root, chief engineer of the park and planning commission; T. Howard Duckett, Frank B. Smith and George N. Palmer, commissioners; A. E. Bryan, special official of the commission in charge of the work, and the five-man citizens' committee—Dr. Steinberg, Bird H. Dolby, Mount Rainier corporation counsel; Arthur C. Moon, Hyattsville councilman; T. W. Venemann, former Riverdale councilman, and J. M. Arnold, former mayor of Seat Pleasant.

Hiram Wohlfarth, Brentwood justice of the peace, has been elected president of the Chillum District Republican Club to succeed Bird H. Dolby, who declined to run for reelection because of his candidacy for a seat in the Maryland House of Delegates.

The club also elected Mrs. Kathryn Payne, of Brentwood, vice president; Mrs. Annie Leathers, of Mount Rainier, secretary, and Joseph S. Haas, of Mount Rainier, treasurer. Mrs. Payne will succeed John T. Duever, Mount Rainier town councilman, who refused to run again because of his candidacy for judge of the orphans' court.

Blanket authorization for the mayor and town council of Cheverly to proceed in mapping a $100,000 street improvement program was voted by 200 property owners of Cheverly at mass meetings Monday and Tuesday nights.

The meetings unanimously adopted resolutions thanking the council for its efforts in obtaining a $45,000 Public Works Administration grant to finance part of the work and empowering the municipal government to go ahead with the project without the necessity of submitting its decisions to the voters for approval.

About 125 prpoerty holders from Wards One and Three attended Monday's meeting while 75 houseowners from Wards Two and Four were present Tuesday.

Blank petitions were given by the council to delegations from each unpaved street in Cheverly, in order that the signatures of the required 51 per cent of the property owners on each street, authorizing improvement of that street, might be obtained.

The council voted, following the Tuesday meeting, to ask two bids for improvements of the town's streets. One would include all streets for which petitions are signed within two weeks, in order that actual work can get under way by December 1, while the other would include the streets for which petitions are received after the end of October.

Petitions from a majority of property owners on each street to be paved are required since the 55 per cent of the cost not covered by the PWA grant is assessed against them on a front-footage basis. To finance the town's share of the project until assessments are collected, the council will ask bids within a few days on $55,000 worth of bonds.

3 Marines Get 8 Years In Fairfax

Admit Car Theft Attacked Owner All 18 Years Old

Three 18-year-old Marines stationed at Quantico, yesterday were sentenced to eight years in the State penitentiary each, in the Circuit Court of Fairfax County, for the assault and robbery of Bernard Cross, of Occoquan.

The offense took place September 16. Cross had picked the trio up in his automobile in Alexandria and near Accotink he was assaulted and thrown from his car, in which they drove away.

The three were identified as Frederick Leonard Thek, Murphy Lee Allran and William Alexander Marshall, jr. The trio pleaded guilty.

Vienna Water Undecided

Citizens of Vienna were unable to agree on installation of the municipal sewage and water system, at a mass meeting Tuesday night in the town hall. Sentiment was about evenly divided.

The hall was so crowded that a large number were forced to stand and it was impossible for Chairman Joseph Berry to take a decisive vote on either of the two proposals. One was that both projects be dropped as too expensive and the other that the town council ask the circuit court to call a special election.

J. E. Covington reported a preliminary survey of the town revealed 60 persons who will take either water or sewage service or both as soon as the systems are installed. Engineers estimated the financing program for the proposed system anticipated no more than 30 subscribers at the opening of the systems.

Road Hearing

The Fairfax County Board of Supervisors yesterday voted to attend the hearing of the State highway commission for allocations on primary roads in the county November 2. Plans were made to hold the regular meeting of the board beginning at 9 a. m. and adjourn at noon. The hearing will be in Fredericksburg.

The board approved a separate hearing unit for the county trial justice building. The contract for the furnace room was awarded to H. T. Curtis, of Oakton, and the installation of furnace and oil burner was awarded to John H. Ruff, of Vienna.

A request was received from the county Chamber of Commerce asking the county to pay the salary of the county juvenile worker, which is now being paid by Community Chest funds. Action was postponed until the budget for next year is prepared.

A meeting of the citizens of the section around Seminary Hill in Falls Church magisterial district will be held tonight at 8 o'clock in the library of the Episcopal High School to form a citizens' association. Alexandria and Arlington residents in the area have been invited to join.

Those in charge of the meeting state the community has an interest that is not divided by county and city lines.

Woman Sentenced

Isabelle Marshall, colored, was sentenced to two years in the State Penitentiary in the Fairfax Circuit Court yesterday on a plea of guilty to stealing clothing and jewelry from Mrs. Katherine Heflin, of Belle Haven, wife of Cecil R. Haflin, assistant district attorney in Washington.

New York, Oct. 19 (AP).—Cotton fluctuated irregularly within a range of 6 to 8 points in quiet trading today. Closing prices were unchanged to 5 points lower, with December easing from 8.32 to 8.26 and finishing at the low.

Prices turned steadier early in the day, but transferring of hedges to late months caused them to sag for a while. The market again firmed up on a mid-afternoon upturn in the stock market. Toward the close more Southern selling appeared and final prices were mostly at the lows.

Stocks Stage Rally in Final Hour
Profit-Taking Forces Heavy Selling
Chrysler News Is Encouraging

New York, Oct. 19.—Restoration of prices following recent price cuts of $6 a ton in the steel used in building automobile bodies gave the stock market a spirited but brief rally in the final hour of trading today. The action of the smaller steel companies was highly significant and supplied the basis for some hope that wisdom eventually will rule in the steel industry.

Coupled with the statement of K. T. Keller, president of the Chrysler Corporation, that his company has recently increased production schedules by 20 per cent and that employment with the corporation is increasing rapidly, this gave Wall Street all that anyone could desire in the matter of bullish news.

But individual investors of the leading issues were too tempted by the handsome profits of the last two weeks, and they utilized the bulge to unload portions of their long holdings.

Irregularity Continues

The result was that the irregularity of the morning hours was continued in the last few minutes of trading after the brief bulge on the above two announcements. It left the market down an average of ½ point. Trading was in good volume, amounting to 2,433,890 shares. Oil stocks, which have recently been the wall flowers while the gay parade proceeded, acted contrarily, as they are wont to do, and managed to move against the trend. There was also good support for the members of the food group and the better grade rails. Net declines were in the majority in other sections of the list, but fractional fluctuations predominated.

Steel Cuts Rescinded

Rescinding of the recent price cuts in steel is one of the most constructive pieces of news that has come to investors in recent weeks. From within the steel industry there was little offered in the form of official explanation concerning the recent wave of criminal price cutting, and to an outsider it appeared that the industry was intent upon suicide.

United States Steel was the most active of the steel shares today and closed down 2 points, with Bethlehem off approximately the same. Republic and National were down less than a point, and Youngstown, 1⅞. While the monopoly inquiry doubtless will look into the steel industry before its investigation is completed, the record of the last few weeks should demonstrate that monopolistic practices are not too well intrenched in this particular field of endeavor.

Aviation and public utility shares, leaders of the last few days, were again active today, but trading in them was at a slower pace, and they were subjected to profit-taking sales. Most active in the aviation division was Curtiss Wright, which was down a small fraction, while Bendix lost 1¼ and North American, ¾. Douglas dropped 2⅛. Trading in the utilities was sufficiently restricted so that not one of the power and light shares broke into the list of 15 most active issues, whereas a few days ago this class of stock monopolized the active list.

Loft had a larger share turnover than any other stock today and advanced a small fraction. Among the higher-priced leaders there were declines of around 1 to 2 points in American Can, American Smelting, Anaconda, Consolidated Edison, General Electric, General Motors, Goodyear, Harvester, North American, Sears Roebuck, Union Carbide and Westinghouse. Allied Chemical was off 4⅝. Preliminary estimates that carloadings last week advanced more than seasonally contributed to support for the rails.

Wheat and corn were helped by a broadened European demand for North American grain, each jumping about a cent and closing up ⅞ to ⅞ cent. Cotton was irregular and ended the day unchanged to off 5 points.

Bond List Steady

The listed bond market had a fairly good tone today, despite a degree of irregularity in some sections. High grade investment bonds were well maintained, as the new $80,000,000 issue of Public Service of Northern Illinois bonds was an immediate sell-out and attention once again was directed to older bonds. Speculative rails showed more small gains than losses, and in general this held true also of other departments where speculating is done in bonds. Trading in all issues totaled $7,680,000.

Rapid distribution of the large new corporate issues occasioned the usual return of large institutions to the Treasury bond market, and these issues showed small fractional advances, which sufficed to place some of them at highs for the year. The guaranteed bonds of the farm and home corporations also were firm. Best grade utility, railroad and industrial obligations moved fractionally uward. United States Steel debentures moved to a record high.

Rails Irregular

Speculative rails wavered with the stock market much of the session, but closed on a firm note. The result was apparent in minor gains, which were offset only here and there by losses. Holding company bonds and convertible issues were not much changed. Local tractions and communications issues closed lower. Amusement bonds, commodity issues and other special groups were quiet and firm.

In the foreign division the high grade Scandinavian, Canadian and Australian issues were steady. Italian and Japanese securities were irregular. German and other European default bonds had good tone, while among the Latin-Americans further active speculation developed in Peruvians, which closed slightly higher.

Steel Output Declines to 51 Per Cent

Not True Picture
'Bargain' Buying
New Business Helps

New York, Oct. 19.—Ingot production has fallen off half a point this week to 51 per cent, a decline that has no significance, in view of the increasing volume of new business, says Iron Age today in its weekly review of the steel industry.

"A further decline of $2 a ton in prices of hot and cold rolled sheets, hot rolled strip, enameling sheets and long ternes has developed on top of the $4-a-ton break early last week, making a total reduction of $6 a ton from the published prices of two weeks ago. The weakness in sheets and strip has extended to cold rolled strip, which is down $6, and to galvanized sheets, which are $4 a ton lower. Though none of the steel companies has made public public announcement of the current quotations, they are generally recognized as the going prices.

"Incoming tonnage has been variously affected by the price break. In those products that have declined there has been an increased volume of "bargain" buying, as many consumers and jobbers recognize the possibility that such low prices may not be long available, but there has been hesitant buying of other products that have not been affected beyond the occasional irregularities prevalent for some weeks.

"Some mills are protecting their customers over the remainder of the quarter at the new prices, but are stipulating that all specifications must be received in time for completion by December 31, it being their determination not to carry over any of the low-priced business into the first quarter.

"Whether the price decline will have any repercussions on steel wages is an open question, but a wage cut appears to be as far away as it was before the price break, notwithstanding the fact that steel companies' losses in fourth quarter may be larger than in the third quarter, even with higher operating rates.

"Though mill specifications for structural steel and other building requirements are gaining as a result of recent lettings, there has been a lull in new awards, which amounted to only 12,000 tons in the week, while new projects totaled less than 17,000 tons. Reinforcing steel awards were 11,000 tons and new projects call for 10,000 tons. Railroad car builders have had an informal inquiry from the Southern Railway, which is considering the purchase of 2,400 freight cars.

"Steel scrap is 50 cents a ton lower at Pittsburgh, based on a mill purchase, but has strengthened 25 cents at Chicago. The Iron Age scrap composite price is 8 cents a ton lower at $14.17."

Bob Burns Says—

I think the most kind-hearted and tactful bunch of men I ever saw in my life are these directors out here in Hollywood. They've got a way of turning you down for a part and making you feel good about it. They'll tell a man he's too handsome for the part and they'll tell a woman she's too young. I use'ta think it was jest a part of their business, but now I believe they're naturally tactful.

The other day one of 'em was out huntin' and he mistook his friend for a rabbit and shot him. He rushed over and took his friend in his arms and says, "I'm sorry—I mistook you for a noble stag or a bull moose."

Farm Program Is a Failure, Says Landon

Assails Centralization
Asks for Consistency
Depression 'Political'

By the Associated Press.

Vienna, Ill., Oct. 19.—Alf M. Landon, of Kansas, told a southern Illinois audience here today the Roosevelt farm program "proved a failure and led to the same end as all other Administration attempts to help business—centralization of more authority in Washington."

Then Landon, who was the Republican Presidential nominee in 1936, declared:

"A President who thinks there is no constitutional limit to his power is thinking in terms of the absolute ruler."

"Secretary of Agriculture Wallace already is talking his usual new idea for farm relief,' Landon said. "He brings out a new model almost every year."

With that, the speaker coupled the suggestion that the policies of the Federal Government "should be pointed toward one end—not shooting at the North and South poles at the same time."

"If the President's program of spending to save was sound," Landon declared, "we should now be doing a booming business. If a program to absolutely control every farm from Washington is sound, we should be enjoying something better than 40-cent corn, 50-cent wheat and 7-cent hogs.

"It is not any wonder the farmer's purchasing power has been reduced by one-fifth in the past 12 months."

Landon spoke at a rally sponsored by Republicans of the Twenty-fourth and Twenty-fifth Illinois Congressional Districts. Party leaders were also present from sections of Indiana, Missouri and Kentucky.

Broadening his criticism of the farm program into a general denunciation of the New Deal, the Kansan stated:

"It is evident the methods of the New Deal are not the methods needed to bring recovery and employment.

"We are in a political depression, pure and simple.

"Although there was a brief effort toward recovery, the financial policies of the country were soon steered into a dangerous course. That course has steadily become more precarious. Business has been kept in a constant state of jitters . . .

New Farm Bill

New York, Oct. 19, (AP).—U. S. Senator Ellison D. Smith (Democrat), of South Carolina, chairman of the Senate Agriculture Committee, was said by the Magazine Country Home tonight to be writing a new farm bill which he will introduce in Congress next session.

The new bill, the magazine said, would be based upon a system of State banks for farmers, similar to the Federal Reserve Bank system.

"I am sick and tired of farm laws framed by hysterical and wild-eyed dreamers," Senator Smith was quoted as saying. "We have had enough of butterfly rule! The AAA won't work. It won't work because it attempts to mold farmers to the law instead of law to the farmers. I piloted the AAA of 1938 through the Senate. I voted for it. But I warned those who framed it that I didn't think it would work. I merely hoped for the best. Now I know it won't work."

Fort Bragg, N. C., Oct. 19.—The most spectacular night parade of motorized artillery ever held in this country—ever piece of anti-aircraft artillery in the continental United States—passed in review before Gov. Clyde R. Hoey tonight under a blaze of lights.

The regular garrison of Fort Bragg, under Brig. Gen. William Bryden, and the provisional brigade consisting of the anti-aircraft equipment, in all 5,962 officers and men, 649 vehicles and 579 horses and mules, paraded past the reviewing stand in a display of armed might.

Long guns capable of hurling 95-pound shells 12 miles; short-nosed howitzers that shoot similar shells, hauled by 11-ton trucks, were dwarfed by the gigantic howitzers that take five 10-ton tractors to pull them, and which in action shoot 345-pound parcels of destruction.

Contrasting were a battalion of the powerful midgets of the Field Artillery, the mountain howitzers, each in six parts and carried on the backs of mules. A touch of the old artillery was given by a battalion of horse-drawn 75s.

As the last of the vehicles passed in review, two of the 800,000,000 candlepower lights swung across the heavens and came to rest to form guides for six planes of the regular garrison as the planes approached the first beacon. Two more lights picked up each succeeding plane and followed them until the planes became mere specks in the star-studded sky.

The lights went out on signal, the darkness startling in its swiftness. Suddenly the night was a weaving network of light, beams lacing and interlacing as the powerful searchlights were swung.

The crowd of 30,000 stood spellbound, uttering occasional sighs as each new spectacle of light was tried out, and as two parachutes appeared below a captive balloon, and, illuminated by two searchlights, drifted slowly to earth. The highway patrol reported traffic blocked for 10 miles in each direction.

Female of Species Held More Deadly But Less Criminal

Though women ran a poor second to men in crime during the first nine months of 1938, the gentler sex led in murder and assault, the Federal Bureau of Investigation announced yesterday. Its report was based on a study of 432,527 arrest records and an average group of 1,000 each for the more violent types of crime.

In the matter of general crime, women represented only 6.7 per cent of the records examined, as compared with 7 per cent last year. Yet in cases of murder, assault and narcotic addiction, women strode ahead.

Of 1,000 men arested, 11 were charged with murder and 56 with assault. Of 1,000 women, 16 were charged with murder and 66 with assault. Women also appeared in a somewhat larger ratio of arrests for larceny, but men far outdistanced them in such crimes are robbery, burglary and automobile theft, and in driving while drunk, by a score of 39 to 12.

Garment Union Will Decide Here On C. I. O. Status

New York, Oct. 19 (U.P.).—The International Ladies Garment Workers Union announced tonight that its general executive board would decide November 10 at a meeting in Washington whether the union "will participate in any moves to change the set-up of the C. I. O. from that of a committee to that of a permanent national federation."

The executive board meeting was originally scheduled for November 14, it was announced, but the date was advanced because the C. I. O. has chosen November 14 for a national convention in Pittsburgh, at which the proposal for organization as a federation is to be considered.

The I. L. G. W. U. announced that its board would hear the report of a special committee appointed at the union's last convention to explore the possibilities of peace in the labor movement. The committee, consisting of Vice Presidents Luigi Antonini, Julius Hochman and Isidore Nagler, met with leaders of the A. F. of L. and the C. I. O. last month.

Liquor Board Out To Punish 'Clubs' For Late Drinks

It was learned the board will ask the District Commissioners to approve a proposed regulation requiring the "clubs" to keep their doors open providing immediate entrance for liquor agents and police for routine inspections.

Violations of the liquor laws, particularly the regulation prohibiting the sales of drinks after 2 a. m. weekdays and midnight Saturday, is the major reason for the regulation, it was stated.

The regulation is directed against a group of colored-operated clubs, which will permit only members to enter.

Dr. Ruffin Tells Of Serum Work In Pneumonia

Praises Dr. Ruhland
Mortality Cut by 33%
Medical Papers Read

Serum treatment has reduced the mortality rate from certain types of pneumonia by one-third or more, Dr. Sterling Ruffin last night told the District Medical Society.

Addressing the weekly scientific meeting on "The Pneumonia Control Plan of the District of Columbia," Dr. Ruffin praised Health Officer George C. Ruhland for making the serum available to the needy sick.

In type one pneumonia the mortality percentage has been cut from 30 to 10, and corresponding success has been achieved in other types for which there is a specific serum, Dr. Ruffin asserted.

Sera may now be obtained here, at pharmacies and supply depots, for types, one, two, three, four, five, seven and eight, which account for 68 per cent of all cases. In all, 32 different types of pneumonia have been recognized.

Prompt administration of serum often brings spectacular results, with the temperature dropping very soon to lower and safer levels, the former president of the local medical society said.

"In a short time the patient has passed from a condition of great anxiety and danger to a state of comparative comfort and safety," he declared.

Two coordinators from the medical society, Drs. Harry F. Dowling and T. J. Abernethy, have been assisting in the Health Department's control program. Both participated in last night's symposium, their papers being discussed by Drs. Lewis C. Ecker, Oscar B. Hunter and James G. Cumming.

Smyrna, Ga., Oct. 19 (AP).—Eleven men were in the Cobb County jail at nearby Marietta tonight on charges of malicious mischief growing out of disturbances here Monday and Tuesday over the slaying of a white man and woman by a colored man.

Sheriff E. M. Legg of Cobb County, said "more arrests may be made later."

In the demonstrations, a colored school was burned, several houses damaged, and a number of persons beaten.

Chain Store Tax Blow at Labor, Richberg Holds

Sees Earners Hit
Purchase Power Cut
Cites Lower Prices

American wage earners would suffer, in effect, a 10 per cent pay cut if chain stores were taxed out of business, Donald Richberg, former NRA administrator, charged in a speech broadcast last night over a Nation-wide hook-up. He criticized the Patman bill aimed at chain stores.

Richberg estimated that consumers saved $1,000,000,000 last year by trading in chain stores. He cited results of a survey conducted by the Federal Trade Commission which, he said, showed that food and drug chain store prices were from 6 to 18½ per cent lower than independent store prices. He added that chain stores have not put the independent merchant out of business.

Cites Popularity

"The American people evidently like chain stores," he continued. "They like low prices, reliable goods, quick and efficient service. But whenever millions of people like something there always is some crowd of reformers or racketeers who want to take it away from them."

He charged that a well-organized lobby has been leading the fight to destroy the chains.

"The truth is that behind the anti-chain store campaign are not only some retail groups blindly fighting to kill competition, but also a number of business organizations that make money in the complicated, expensive process of transferring goods from the original producer to the shelves of the small retailer.

Entitled to Reward

"Whenever these wholesalers and jobbers perform a necessary service they are entitled to compensation; and the ultimate consumer has to pay the bill. But so far as that additional cost can be avoided, and so far as retail selling costs can be reduced by more efficient merchandising—and so far as these savings are passed on to the consumer—just so far is the purchasing price of the worker's dollar increased.

"That explains why the A. F. of L. convention recently voted opposition to the Patman anti-chain store bill. The American worker knows that a dollar saved is just as good as a dollar earned. The American housewife will roll up her sleeves one of these days and go out after the legislators who are trying to increase her household bills. I wonder what has been detaining her!"

Steel Battery Cables Called More Efficient

By the Associated Press.

A U. S. Bureau of Standards scientist reported yesterday the development of a new low-resistance electrical cable for use in automobiles and airplanes.

The cable has been a military secret for three years while it was being tested and finally placed in use by the Navy.

Dr. Melville A. Peters, physicist at the Bureau of Standards, developed it. He found seven strands of stainless steel wire would allow an electrical current to flow much more readily than copper wire, the type used in ordinary cables.

Officials of the Washington Institute of Technology said the cable makes it possible to start a gasoline engine with 30 per cent less drain on the battery, and gives higher top speed lower idling speed, longer life for spark plugs and less interference with short wave radio reception.

Girl's Spy Story

Special Dispatch to The Post.

New York, Oct. 20.—A statement signed by Johanna (Jenni) Hofmann, 26-year-old former hairdresser on the North German Lloyd liner Europa, in which she told of her activities as a messenger for an alleged German spy ring, was read into the record of United States District Court late this afternoon by Lester C. Dunigan, assistant United States attorney. Miss Hofmann, with two codefendants, Erich Glaser and Otto Herman Voss, is on trial under an indictment for espionage.

Miss Hofmann's statement, admitted by Judge John C. Knox despite vigorous objection by defense counsel, was signed in the office of Leon G. Turrou, then an agent of the Federal Bureau of Investigation, on February 25, according to the testimony of Guenther Gustav Rumrich, who completed his fourth day on the witness stand today.

Rumrich Translator

Rumrich, who has pleaded guilty under the indictment, said he acted as a translator between Miss Hofmann and Turrou, and that he assisted in the preparation of two copies of the statement, one in German and one in English. He said he translated the English version to Miss Hofmann, and that she then signed both copies. It was the English statement that was read into the record.

Rumrich also told of his own arrest, which came after his clumsy attempt to secure 50 passport blanks by posing as "Mr. Weston, Under Secretary of State," and he told of a letter he received from a German agent which indicated, through warnings couched in general business terms, that agents operating out of Berlin and Breman held neither respect nor trust for agents operating out of Hamburg.

The letter was signed, "N. Spielman." The espionage indictment named as one of the 18 defendants Capt. Lieut. Erich Pfeiffer, in charge of naval intelligence at Bremen, and gave the name "N. Spielman" as his alias. However, Rumrich said that Karl Schlueter, former steward on

Japanese Storm Port 35 Miles From Hankow

15 Miles From Canton
Both May Be Given Up
Reported Chiang's Plan

By the United Press.

Hongkong (Friday), Oct. 21.—Japan's victorious armies were driving into the environs of Hankow and Canton today and Chinese resistance on a national scale appeared to be suffering a major collapse.

On the Hankow front the Japanese were storming Ocheng, last fortified Yangtze River port below the provisional Chinese national capital, and were reported within 35 miles of the strategic Wuhan (Wuchang, Hankow and Hanyang) area.

In South China Lieut. Gen. Iwane Matsui's "model" army from Formosa was within 15 miles of Canton and Japanese were predicting occupation of the great South China metropolis within a week.

Gen. Chiang was reported to have decided at his southern field headquarters in Henyang, South Hunan province, to give up both his provisional capital and Canton and center new lines of resistance in the western province of Szechuan and the southwestern provinces of Kwangsi and Yunnan.

The Japanese reported at midnight that they had captured Chankang-shu, within 20 miles of Canton, and fought their way 5 miles further along the highway leading to the big southern city.

They understood that the Kwangtung provincial government had fled from Canton to the interior.

On the Hankow front, a Japanese spokesman said in Shanghai, powerful Japanese land forces, supported by warships, were expected to complete the occupation of Ocheng during the day. The city is on the south bank of the Yangtze, southeast of Hankow. On the north bank of the river another Japanese column was storming Kishui, from which it will drive on strong Chinese positions in Hwangfeng.

To the southward one of the Japanese spearheads driving toward the Hankow-Canton Railway had completed occupation of the walled city of Tayeh and the big iron works there.

In Shanghai Mayor Fu Tsung-yao of the Chinese city told newspapermen that Chinese nationalist guerrilla bands had been wiped out and that reconstruction work in areas destroyed during the fighting around the city a year ago would be started at once.

British Terms May Wreck U.S. Trade Pact

America Asks More
Draft Feared Final
Autos Cause Hitch

By the Associated Press.

The United States Government has given Great Britain to understand, it was reported reliably last night, that she must grant substantial concessions on certain American products or see negotiations for the vaunted Anglo-American trade treaty fall through.

The State Department was said to be insisting upon a substantial rather than a superficial agreement.

This attitude has been reflected, it was reported, in a communication sent to the London government, summarizing the concessions Britain has offered thus far and declaring they did not warrant this Government in signing the proposed pact and presenting it to the American public.

This was the first public intimation here that the treaty might not materialize.

Autos Cause Trouble

Negotiations for the agreement, which would cap Secretary Hull's general program of bargaining down barriers to world trade, have been under way for six months. Experts on both sides have predicted that trade between the two countries would boom once an agreement on mutual tariff concessions was worked out.

The products causing trouble are automobiles, hams, lard and bacon. For several weeks these have been plaguing negotiators.

The American negotiators are said to feel that they have yielded all they can. They say that they have already made substantial concessions and that the minimum of concessions for British projects has been raised several times.

Can't Sell It to Public

Negotiators have told the British they cannot sell the agreement to the American public as it stands at present.

The discussion on automobiles has centered on applying to cars of 20 horsepower or more the tariff reduction the British were willing to make on cars of 25 horsepower or more. The reduction is 10 per cent.

American negotiators contended that concessions on the higher horsepower cars would not assist American exports sufficiently because

Nazis Kill 5 in Clash
Hitler Decrees Civil Rule

By the United Press.

Prague, Oct. 20.—Germany ordered reinforcements of mobile police and Nazi storm troopers into the Sudetenland tonight to "insure safety with force of arms" after the killing of six Czechoslovaks in clashes with German authorities.

The Prague government, striving for closer friendship with the German Reich, simultaneously issued a decree outlawing the Communist Party throughout the dismembered republic.

The Germans have accused the Communists, and the anti-Nazi German social democrats, of major responsibility for "terrorism" preceding surrender of the Sudetenland.

Papers Suppressed

The decree suppressing the Communists and their newspapers affected Bohemia, Moravia and Silesia provinces and conforms with a similar decree by the autonomous government of Slovakia two days ago.

As result, the official Communist organ, Rude Pravo, will not appear Friday, although Communist Party executives announced they would appeal from the decree.

The German official news agency, D. N. B., announced dispatch of additional police and "S. S." storm troopers into the Sudentenland, par-

Wars on Church End in Disaster, Pope Warns Hitler

Vatican City, Oct. 20 (U.P.).—The Pope today severely denounced the Nazi regime's church policy, it was learned from a trustworthy source. The speech was described as the strongest ever delivered by the present Pontiff.

The denunciation was at Castel Gandolfo before delegates to the Fourth International Christian Archeology Congress, who were received in private audience.

The Pope reportedly warned Reichsfuehrer Hitler by implication that any attempt to crush the church must either fail or end disasterously. He recalled that Bismark had to abandon "Kulturkampf," while Napoleon's fall was due to his brutal persecution of Pope Pius VII.

The informant said the tone of the speech made officials of the papal court hesitant regarding the advisability of publishing it immediately.

2 Gunmen Take $10,000 Gems in Waldorf-Astoria

New York, Oct. 20 (AP).—Two polite gunmen held up a jewelry shop just off the main lobby of the Waldorf-Astoria Hotel today and escaped with $10,000 worth of jewels after binding and gagging three men. They overlooked $150,000 worth of jewelry in an open safe in the rear of the shop.

The men entered the shop, asked to see some wrist watches, and then drew revolvers.

Pedestrians Held to Blame For Traffic Toll in District

By Howard F. Wentworth.

No. 1 in a Series.

"Look at that," said the man on the corner, "it's a wonder they don't get killed."

He was watching the jostling crowd of pedestrians as they darted through the maze of rush-hour traffic at Tenth street and Pennsylvania avenue northwest.

"Where I come from," the bystander continued, "we are supposed to wait for the proper signal before crossing a street—but I guess that rule doesn't apply here."

He was right. The rule doesn't apply in Washington. Pedestrians may do as they please—if they're agile and lucky.

But the man on the corner had no need to wonder "why they don't get killed." The records speak for themselves—they do get killed. This year, 53 pedestrians have been fatally injured.

Within the past two weeks, two elderly men were mangled beneath the wheels of automobiles, a stone's throw from where the puzzled bystander was watching Washington's daily battle of pedestrian vs. motorist.

In 41 cases of the total pedestrian deaths this year, a coroner's jury has held the walkers to be at fault. During the past three years, more than 70 per cent of all fatal accidents involved pedestrians.

Repeated efforts to promulgate pedestrian control laws here—to

Mitchell Asks Civil Service Appeal Court

For Final Decisions
Roosevelt Approves
Union Head Agrees
Urges Simplicity

Wage Act to Be Law

WAGE-HOUR Administrator Andrews called on organized labor to prevent "hasty suits" under the wage-hour act when it goes into effect next Monday. He estimated 750,000 workers would receive pay raises and 1,500,000 would have their hours shortened by the act. Page 2.

Tribunal for Workers

A court of appeals for Federal employe grievances, possibly within the Civil Service Commission and armed with powers of final determination, was suggested yesterday by Civil Service Commissioner Harry B. Mitchell.

The Executive orders of June 24 extending the merit system made some form of appeals mandatory, but its scope had not been officially discussed until the suggestion came yesterday to the Civil Service Assembly, in annual conference here.

President Consulted

It was understood that his suggestion arose from a conversation he held with the President recently. The system would amount to this: Each department and agency would have some form of appeals procedure for workers. Should the employe, after stating his case there, feel that further determination of the issue should be made, the case could be taken to the last appeals court. This, Commissioner Mitchell said, might be within the Civil Service Commission.

Their action would be final and complete. The President is said to have commented that he could empower this last court with final determination.

Congressmen who have taken an outstanding interest in employe affairs have on several occasions intimated that Congress would be unwilling to establish another agency to hear grievances. This was taken as leading Commissioner Mitchell to believe that such a court would center within the commission.

Simple System Urged

His suggestion was made when the assembly, which concludes its five-day conference today, discussed appeals procedure for the whole of yesterday afternoon. It was believed that nothing in this direction would be done quickly; the chances are that nothing will be done until the personnel council, ordered by the Executive orders, is established.

The question arose during discussion that such departmental appeals systems as have been developed—and there is some form of this in nearly every agency in town—had no final authority on the issues.

Writ Blocks Strachey Ouster Pending Hearing

New York, Oct. 20 (AP).—Federal Judge Edward A. Conger today signed a writ of habeas corpus requiring the production in court before him Tuesday of Evelyn John St. L. Strachey, English writer and lecturer, who has been ordered excluded from the United States on the ground that he is a Communist. The writ will prevent the scheduled deportation of Strachey tomorrow, and will assure a hearing for him on Tuesday.

By the Associated Press.

The Public Works Administration arranged yesterday to give John Strachey, British lecturer-author-economist, barred from the United States, "material for an economic study of the New Deal."

Strachey had applied for "reports, statements, statistical summaries of expenditures and histories" of the Administration, in a letter written October 18.

Governor Rebuffed In Packing Strike

Sioux City, Iowa, Oct. 20 (AP).—Although faced with a "demand" from Gov. Kraschel to reopen Swift & Co.'s strike-bound packing plant "forthwith," representatives of both the company and the C. I. O. union delayed action tonight pending further discussion of the executive statement.

Duplicates of the Governor's statement, which demanded arbitration or negotiation on what he termed "minor differences" went to both factions. Kraschel placed settlement of the strike squarely in the hands of company and union.

Sen. Chavez' Sister, Son-in-Law Indicted With 71 in WPA Probe

Coercion Is Charged
Grand Jury 'Amazed'
'Padding' Alleged

By the Associated Press.

Albuquerque, N. Mex., Oct. 20.—A Federal grand jury today indicted 62 persons for conspiracy to violate the Federal WPA laws in New Mexico, among them Stanley W. P. Miller, assistant United States district attorney, and scores of men and women of high place in State and Federal Government.

Eleven other indictments were returned for political discrimination against WPA labor, diversion of WPA funds and services and illegal political activities.

Federal Judge Colin Neblett, grim and low-voiced, ordered the United States marshal to arrest the 73 defendants and bring them to court Tuesday morning to make bond.

Chavez' Sister Cited

The grand jury found true bills against men and women long associated with governmental matters.

Among them were Miller, who is son-in-law of United States Senator Dennis Chavez; Mrs. Anita Tafoya, the Senator's sister; his cousin, Salamon Chavez; his nephew, Salamon Tafoya; Mrs. J. A. Werner, wife of the Albuquerque postmaster; Mariano Werner, the postmaster's brother; Fred G. Healy, former State WPA administrator; Fred Sganzini, head of the State Drivers' License Bureau; Joe Martinez, secretary to Senator Chavez; Richard Duran, of the Department of Internal Revenue, and scores of WPA administrative employes.

A maximum penalty of two years imprisonment and a $10,000 fine may be imposed on persons convicted on the conspiracy charges.

Among defendants charged with violations of the WPA code citing diversion of property and services to personal use, and political discrimination was Bernardo Cruz, Mora County Democratic chairman.

Police Chief Indicted

Others indicted on felony counts of conspiracy included Police Chief John Wooten, of Las Vegas, former State Police Capt. Roy Vermillion, and chief Wooten's brother, Steve.

Miller, departing on a party with wife and friends, said he would have something to say tomorrow.

Senator Chavez received reporters with a smile, saying:

"No comment whatsoever. The matter is pending before the court. Under our system of jurisprudence all persons charged with offenses against the State or Government are presumed to be innocent until proven otherwise. It is a pending case which the court will attend to."

[Martinez, the Senator's secretary, also is in New Mexico and no comment could be obtained from Chavez' office. However, a friend

Age Pension Fever Grips a Dozen States

Survey Is Conducted
Californians Wary
Oppose Plan, 2 to 1

By Dr. George Gallup,
Director, American Institute of Public Opinion.

New York, Oct. 20.—Preliminary results of a survey of public opinion in California show a decisive majority against enactment of the "Thirty-Dollars-Every-Thursday" pension plan on which the voters will give their verdict November 8.

GALLUP.

The scheme, which goes on the State's ballots as the result of a mammoth petition, is not only rocking California but has attracted more national attention than any pension drive since the Townsend Plan. Even the Roosevelt Administration has stepped into the fight and attempted to defeat the movement.

Because it is the most widely discussed of the many extreme pension schemes which are popping up in the Nation, the American Institute of Public Opinion conducted a special cross-section survey throughout California.

Its preliminary findings show the voters against the plan by approximately 2 to 1.

The rank and file of both major parties are opposed to the scheme, according to the survey. Among California Democrats the vote is approximately 3 to 2 opposed, and among the Republicans nearly 4 to 1.

The survey, conducted by field interviewers throughout the State, is not yet completed. Final returns will be reported before the election.

But the preliminary vote indicates that, unless there is some sharp change in sentiment, the scheme will be defeated at the polls in November.

Movement Has Spread To Other States

The "Thirty-Dollars-Every-Thursday" plan, with variations, has spread to many other States. It is being promoted by organizations or political candidates in Tennessee, Alabama, Colorado,

Advisory Board Meets
Roosevelt Skeptical
Calls Idea 'Utopian'

"Funny money" and generous old age pension plans, now held out as a lure to voters in more than a dozen campaigns, are being watched with concern by official Washington pending November's decision at the polls.

While the Social Security Advisory Council meets here today to consider changes in the Federal old age pension law, variations on Dr. Francis E. Townsend's famous prescription are infecting politics from Maine to California.

"Short cuts to Utopia," and "fantastic financial schemes" the President has called them. Secretary of the Treasury Morgenthau labels them "financially unsound." But in unorthodox Republican and Democratic ranks the virus is spreading and no contest is complete without its old age plan of $30 every Thursday.

In California it is "$30 very Thursday," with Sheridan Downey, Democratic nominee for the Senate the vendor of the Townsend plan's most potent offshoot. Graced on the ballot as a proposed amendment to the State's constitution, threatening to deluge the State with stamp money, the new plan will be offered for the California voters' choice in less than three weeks.

More swiftly than the Townsend magic, the word has spread to other States in many forms and many movements. Early this month it was put up to the Arizona legislature as a proposed amendment to that State's constitution. There it was swiftly and emphatically rejected.

In several States it is being dished out on the hustings in more modest form. Gov. Langer in North Dakota has seized on the old-age pension issue in his effort to lick Senator Nye. The North Dakota version calls for only $40 a month to all over 65, including the Federal Government's $15 contribution.

Colorado two years ago succumbed to agitation to enact a $45-a-month pension amendment, and State taxes since have proved inadequate to support it. That is the highest State pension law now in effect, and the reaction has already set in. A movement to repeal it is now in full swing. But a sound truck of the Federation for Workable Old-Age Pensions, leading the

Police Cordon Rings Harvard After City Official Is Mauled

By the Associated Press.

Cambridge, Mass., Oct. 20.—Cambridge police threw a patrol around Harvard University tonight to stop student "burlesquing"— outgrowth of a city council battle to divorce the university from the city.

As policemen, armed with tear gas bombs, watched streets near the famous institution, Sergt. Charles P. Donelan explained they were there "just to remind Harvard men they promised there would be no further outbreaks."

Councilor Michael A. Sullivan said he was kicked while attempting to halt a parade of goose-stepping, blue-shirted students—aspirants for a place on the staff of the Lampoon, the university's comic magazine.

The 60-year-old councilor, protesting that the paraders lacked a permit, said he would seek "John Doe" warrants as a result of the melee.

The Lampoon's heralded "sham battle" came as Mayor John W. Lyons launched an investigation into alleged illegal registration of voters in wards surrounding Harvard.

The mayor said he had heard students were registering improperly to vote for a proposed change in the city charter which would establish a city manager form of government in place of the mayor and council.

Philadelphian Mysteriously Shot On Arlington Road

Earl Willard, 45-year-old osteopath of Philadelphia, Pa., was mysteriously shot yesterday shortly after dark while he walked along an Arlington road, he told police.

Willard was unable to name his assailant, or give any reason for the attack. The bullet struck him in the right shoulder, passing through and out.

Found lying in the roadway a few minutes after the shot was fired, Willard was taken to the office of Dr. Frank Bernard Schultz, in Falls Church, for emergency treatment.

Falls Church police later took him to Georgetown Hospital, where his condition last night was said to be not serious.

Farm Program Is a Failure, Says Landon

Assails Centralization
Asks for Consistency

By the Associated Press.

Vienna, Ill., Oct. 19.—Alf M. Landon, of Kansas, told a southern Illinois audience here today the Roosevelt farm program "proved a failure and led to the same end as all other Administration attempts to help business—centralization of more authority in Washington."

Then Landon, who was the Republican Presidential nominee in 1936, declared:

"A President who thinks there is no constitutional limit to his power is thinking in terms of the absolute ruler."

"Secretary of Agriculture Wallace already is talking his usual new idea for farm relief,' Landon said. "He brings out a new model almost every year."

With that, the speaker coupled the suggestion that the policies of the Federal Government "should be pointed toward one end—not shooting at the North and South poles at the same time."

"If the President's program of spending to save was sound," Landon declared, "we should now be doing a booming business. If a program to absolutely control every farm from Washington is sound, we should be enjoying something better than 40-cent corn, 50-cent wheat and 7-cent hogs.

"It is not any wonder the farmer's purchasing power has been reduced by one-fifth in the past 12 months."

Landon spoke at a rally sponsored by Republicans of the Twenty-fourth and Twenty-fifth Illinois Congressional Districts. Party leaders were also present from sections of Indiana, Missouri and Kentucky.

Broadening his criticism of the farm program into a general denunciation of the New Deal, the Kansan stated:

"It is evident the methods of the New Deal are not the methods needed to bring recovery and employment.

"We are in a political depression, pure and simple.

"Although there was a brief effort toward recovery, the financial policies of the country were soon steered into a dangerous course. That course has steadily become more precarious. Business has been kept in a constant state of jitters . . .

"Business was the first 'fall guy' . . . Now the play is to focus attention on foreign complications."

New Farm Bill

New York, Oct. 19, (AP).—U. S. Senator Ellison D. Smith (Democrat), of South Carolina, chairman of the Senate Agriculture Committee, was said by the Magazine Country Home tonight to be writing a new farm bill which he will introduce in Congress next session.

The new bill, the magazine said, would be based upon a system of State banks for farmers, similar to the Federal Reserve Bank system.

"I am sick and tired of farm laws framed by hysterical and wild-eyed dreamers," Senator Smith was quoted as saying. "We have had enough of butterfly rule! The AAA won't work. It won't work because it attempts to mold farmers to the law instead of law to the farmers. I piloted the AAA of 1938 through the Senate. I voted for it. But I warned those who framed it that I didn't think it would work. I merely hoped for the best. Now I know it won't work."

Liquor Board Out To Punish 'Clubs' For Late Drinks

The District Alcoholic Beverage Control Board acted yesterday to prohibit certain "clubs"—licensed by the board—from serving drinks behind locked doors.

It was learned the board will ask the District Commissioners to approve a proposed regulation requiring the "clubs" to keep their doors open providing immediate entrance for liquor agents and police for routine inspections.

Violations of the liquor laws, particularly the regulation prohibiting the sales of drinks after 2 a. m. weekdays and midnight Saturday, is the major reason for the regulation, it was stated.

The regulation is directed against a group of colored-operated clubs, which will permit only members to enter.

Climax to Anti-Plane Tests at Fort Bragg
Every 'Archie' in Country in Review
Great and Small Cannon Pass Before Governor

By the United Press.

Fort Bragg, N. C., Oct. 19.—The most spectacular night parade of motorized artillery ever held in this country—ever piece of anti-aircraft artillery in the continental United States—passed in review before Gov. Clyde R. Hoey tonight under a blaze of lights.

The regular garrison of Fort Bragg, under Brig. Gen. William Bryden, and the provisional brigade consisting of the anti-aircraft equipment, in all 5,962 officers and men, 649 vehicles and 579 horses and mules, paraded past the reviewing stand in a display of armed might.

Long guns capable of hurling 95-pound shells 12 miles; short-nosed howitzers that shoot similar shells, hauled by 11-ton trucks, were dwarfed by the gigantic howitzers that take five 10-ton tractors to pull them, and which in action shoot 345-pound parcels of destruction.

Contrasting were a battalion of the powerful midgets of the Field Artillery, the mountain howitzers, each in six parts and carried on the backs of mules. A touch of the old artillery was given by a battalion of horse-drawn 75s.

The antiaircraft artillery rolled by with 8-ton guns pulled by 15-ton trucks, and trucks with machine guns mounted and manned.

As the last of the vehicles passed in review, two of the 800,000,000 candlepower lights swung across the heavens and came to rest to form guides for six planes of the regular garrison as the planes approached the first beacon. Two more lights picked up each succeeding plane and followed them until the planes became mere specks in the star-studded sky.

The lights went out on signal, the darkness startling in its swiftness. Suddenly the night was a weaving network of light, beams lacing and interlacing as the powerful searchlights were swung.

The crowd of 30,000 stood spellbound, uttering occasional sighs as each new spectacle of light was tried out, and as two parachutes appeared below a captive balloon, and, illuminated by two searchlights, drifted slowly to earth. The highway patrol reported traffic blocked for 10 miles in each direction.

Garment Union Will Decide Here On C. I. O. Status

New York, Oct. 19 (U.P.).—The International Ladies Garment Workers Union announced tonight that its general executive board would decide November 10 at a meeting in Washington whether the union "will participate in any moves to change the set-up of the C. I. O. from that of a committee to that of a permanent national federation."

The executive board meeting was originally scheduled for November 14, it was announced, but the date was advanced because the C. I. O. has chosen November 14 for a national convention in Pittsburgh, at which the proposal for organization as a federation is to be considered.

The I. L. G. W. U. announced that its board would hear the report of a special committee appointed at the union's last convention to explore the possibilities of peace in the labor movement. The committee, consisting of Vice Presidents Luigi Antonini, Julius Hochman and Isidore Nagler, met with leaders of the A. F. of L. and the C. I. O. last month.

Female of Species Held More Deadly But Less Criminal

Though women ran a poor second to men in crime during the first nine months of 1938, the gentler sex led in murder and assault, the Federal Bureau of Investigation announced yesterday. Its report was based on a study of 432,527 arrest records and an average group of 1,000 each for the more violent types of crime.

In the matter of general crime, women represented only 6.7 per cent of the records examined, as compared with 7 per cent last year. Yet in cases of murder, assault and narcotic addiction, women strode ahead.

Of 1,000 men arested, 11 were charged with murder and 56 with assault. Of 1,000 women, 16 were charged with murder and 66 with assault. Women also appeared in a somewhat larger ratio of arrests for larceny, but men far outdistanced them in such crimes are robbery, burglary and automobile theft, and in driving while drunk, by a score of 39 to 12.

Dr. Ruffin Tells Of Serum Work In Pneumonia

Praises Dr. Ruhland
Mortality Cut by 33%
Medical Papers Read

Serum treatment has reduced the mortality rate from certain types of pneumonia by one-third or more, Dr. Sterling Ruffin last night told the District Medical Society.

Addressing the weekly scientific meeting on "The Pneumonia Control Plan of the District of Columbia," Dr. Ruffin praised Health Officer George C. Ruhland for making the serum available to the needy sick.

In type one pneumonia the mortality percentage has been cut from 30 to 10, and corresponding success has been achieved in other types for which there is a specific serum, Dr. Ruffin asserted.

Sera may now be obtained here, at pharmacies and supply depots, for types, one, two, three, four, five, seven and eight, which account for 68 per cent of all cases. In all, 32 different types of pneumonia have been recognized.

Prompt administration of serum often brings spectacular results, with the temperature dropping very soon to lower and safer levels, the former president of the local medical society said.

"In a short time the patient has passed from a condition of great anxiety and danger to a state of comparative comfort and safety," he declared.

Two coordinators from the medical society, Drs. Harry F. Dowling and T. J. Abernethy, have been assisting in the Health Department's control program. Both participated in last night's symposium, their papers being discussed by Drs. Lewis C. Ecker, Oscar B. Hunter and James G. Cumming.

Colored School Fired, 11 Held

Smyrna, Ga., Oct. 19 (AP).—Eleven men were in the Cobb County jail at nearby Marietta tonight on charges of malicious mischief growing out of disturbances here Monday and Tuesday over the slaying of a white man and woman by a colored man.

Sheriff E. M. Legg of Cobb County, said "more arrests may be made later."

Cites Lower Prices

American wage earners would suffer, in effect, a 10 per cent pay cut if chain stores were taxed out of business, Donald Richberg, former NRA administrator, charged in a speech broadcast last night over a Nation-wide hook-up. He criticized the Patman bill aimed at chain stores.

Richberg estimated that consumers saved $1,000,000,000 last year by trading in chain stores. He cited results of a survey conducted by the Federal Trade Commission which, he said, showed that food and drug chain store prices were from 6 to 18½ per cent lower than independent store prices. He added that chain stores have not put the independent merchant out of business.

Cites Popularity

"The American people evidently like chain stores," he continued. "They like low prices, reliable goods, quick and efficient service. But whenever millions of people like something there always is some crowd of reformers or racketeers who want to take it away from them."

He charged that a well-organized lobby has been leading the fight to destroy the chains.

"The truth is that behind the anti-chain store campaign are not only some retail groups blindly fighting to kill competition, but also a number of business organizations that make money in the complicated, expensive process of transferring goods from the original producer to the shelves of the small retailer.

Entitled to Reward

"Whenever these wholesalers and jobbers perform a necessary service they are entitled to compensation; and the ultimate consumer has to pay the bill. But so far as that additional cost can be avoided, and so far as retail selling costs can be reduced by more efficient merchandising—and so far as these savings are passed on to the consumer—just so far is the purchasing price of the worker's dollar increased.

"That explains why the A. F. of L. convention recently voted opposition to the Patman anti-chain store bill. The American worker knows that a dollar saved is just as good as a dollar earned. The American housewife will roll up her sleeves one of these days and go out after the legislators who are trying to increase her household bills. I wonder what has been detaining her!"

Steel Battery Cables Called More Efficient

By the Associated Press.

A U. S. Bureau of Standards scientist reported yesterday the development of a new low-resistance electrical cable for use in automobiles and airplanes.

The cable has been a military secret for three years while it was being tested and finally placed in use by the Navy.

Dr. Melville A. Peters, physicist at the Bureau of Standards, developed it. He found seven strands of stainless steel wire would allow an electrical current to flow much more readily than copper wire, the type used in ordinary cables.

Officials of the Washington Institute of Technology said the cable makes it possible to start a gasoline engine with 30 per cent less drain on the battery, and gives higher top speed lower idling speed, longer life for spark plugs and less interference with short wave radio reception.
